A NEWSLETTER FOR EMPLOYEES AND FRIENDS OF MINOT STATE UNIVERSITY

Mind/Brain Myth-busters seminar is next week

Educators from the region have been invited Sept. 14-15 to examine popular myths and realities regarding "brain-based" teaching and learning. Consider whether the following are fact or fiction: Does the brain grow more neurons when we learn? Does exercise make you smarter? Are male and female brains different? The Mind/Brain Myth-busters seminar in the Student Union Conference Center will help those attending understand what is myth and what is real.

This seminar kicks off a new multidisciplinary mind/brain initiative at Minot State University. Eighteen faculty members attended the Learning and the Brain Conferences sponsored by the Harvard Mind, Brain and Education program and others during 2006-2007. MSU faculty members, along with P-12 educators and experts from the community will provide information and interactive discussion on topics such as perception, attention, memory, motivation, emotion, reading, math, substance use/abuse, gender differences, sleep, exercise, left/right, nature/nurture and the like.

If there is room not taken by paid registrants, MSU personnel or students may sit in, but meals are not included. If faculty have students who would like to sit in, please contact Judy Bacon in Teacher Education and Human Performance at 858-3028.

Center of Excellence forums scheduled

Campus members are invited by President David Fuller to attend one of two open forums about Minot State University's Center of Excellence proposal. The forums are scheduled Sept. 11 at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. in the Metigoshe Room of the Student Union.

MSU's proposal will establish the Great Plains Knowledge and Data Center and requests $3.4 million in COE funding from the state. The $14.6 million total project would support two key facilities – a production data center and a research and development center, which would be hosted by MSU.

Being developed with Info-Tech Minot Technology Center, SRT Communications and Minot Area Development Corporation, the Great Plains Knowledge and Data Center will promote the development and advancement of knowledge-based business in the region. The initial July proposal received positive reviews and a revised version was recently resubmitted.

Each forum will provide more in-depth information as well as the impact on MSU and the region. Principal project leaders Deanna Klein, Steve Hayton, Selmer Moen, Jerry Stai and others involved will be available to discuss the proposal and to answer any questions.

The president has asked campus members to attend one of the forums to obtain important information about this exciting and far-reaching technology program that will significantly and positively impact our students and community.

Coxwell starts Brown Bag Book Talks for 2007-2008

Margi Coxwell, education and the Graduate School, will talk about the book "1491: New Revelations of the Americas before Columbus" by Charles Mann, Sept. 19.

You need not read the featured book ahead of time and are encouraged to bring a sack lunch; dessert will be provided. The book talks, sponsored by the Gordon B. Olson Library, begin at noon and conclude in time for 1 p.m. classes. All are held in the lower level of the library in Group Study Room 2.

Other book talks for the semester are:

- Oct. 25—Lesley Magnus, communication disorders, on "The Elephant in the Playroom" by Denis Brodey.
- Nov. 13—Audra Myerchin, communication arts, will be discussing two books: "A Return to Modesty: Discovering the Lost Virtue" and "Girls Gone Mild: Young Women Reclaim Self-Respect and Find its Not Bad to Be Good". Both books are by Wendy Shalit.
- Dec. 6—Bill Harbort, art, on "Weirdo Deluxe: the wild world of pop surrealism" by Matt Duke Jordan.

MSU reports opening day enrollment

Minot State University counted 3,441 students at the end of Aug. 21, the first day of classes, compared to last year's first-day figure of 3,567 students.

"It's so important to keep in mind that this is just one snapshot of the overall enrollment picture. Undergraduate students have until Aug. 29 to register for 16-week classes," said MSU President David Fuller. "With the implementation of online registration, returning students are able to register whenever they want, and that makes the numbers even more fluid."

As an example of how quickly numbers change, Fuller said an additional 357 students registered within the last week. Last year the university also picked up 145 more students between opening day and the official third-week enrollment report.

Bright spots right now appear to be substantial increases in full-time graduate students, international students including Canadians, and students enrolled at Minot Air Force Base. Minot State University has already surpassed last year's thirdweek enrollment numbers in those categories.

Fuller said some of those increases are representative of major campus initiatives.

"We are hosting the first graduate cohort from SIAS International University on campus as well as graduate students in the Job Corps Executive Management Program," Fuller said. "It's nice to see enrollment at Minot Air Force Base pick up. One year not too long ago we experienced a large drop out there."

The opening-day report shows a slight lag in students from Ward County, new freshmen, and new transfer students compared to numbers posted at the third week last year.

"None of those numbers is cause for alarm. Rather, they indicate that we're holding our own in our traditional markets," said Fuller.

While this is the second year of mandatory orientation for new students, it is the first year that completing orientation has been directly linked to registration. New students must complete orientation before they are eligible to register. Officials in the enrollment process are reporting a bit of delay for some students.

"It's a new requirement, and we know there is a good number of students midway through the process," said Fuller.

Enrollment figures become official after the 15th day of classes when they are reported to the North Dakota University System office.

WPO presents 'The Mikado'

Minot's Western Plains Opera is offering the comic opera "The Mikado," by Arthur Sullivan and W.S. Gilbert, Sept. 14-16.

The ninth and most popular of Gilbert and Sullivan's 14 collaborations, the show opens in the Japanese town of Titipu where Nanki-Poo, son of "the great and virtuous Mikado," has fled to avoid marrying an elderly woman named Katisha. Traveling under disguise, he falls in love with Yum-Yum, who is already engaged to her guardian, Ko-Ko, a tailor. Ko-Ko, it turns out, has been condemned to death for the capital crime of flirting, but through the twisted law and logic of "The Mikado's" Japan, he is reprieved at the last moment and appointed Lord High Executioner.

Dallas tenor Drake Dantzler will play the role of Nanki-Poo, Julie Biggs, a Winnipeg mezzo-soprano, has been cast as Pitti-Sing, and playwright-director Gordan Portmann of Brandon, Manitoba will be stage director. Minot area people participating include David Bradley in the role of Pooh-Bah, Joann Martinson portraying Yum-Yum, John Scheeler as Ko-Ko, Cheryl Nilsen playing Katisha, and Eric Furuseth in the title role of the Mikado. Kenneth Bowles will conduct the orchestra and large chorus. Furuseth, Nilsen and Bowles are MSU faculty members.

Showtime is 7:30 p.m. on Sept. 14-15 and 3 p.m. on Sept. 16 in Ann Nicole Nelson Hall. Tickets may be obtained by calling 858-3185.

Northwest Art Center Lecture Series slated

The Northwest Art Center Lecture Series debuts Sept. 17 with a presentation on "This is Your Brain Learning: Insights from Developmental Science, Cognitive Neuroscience, and Cognitive Psychology." Minot State University faculty from the Collaborative for the Applied Study of Cognition and Learning Sciences (CASCLS) will explore the intersections of mind, brain, and education. Additional fall presentations include:

- Sept. 24—Greg Gagnon, from the University of North Dakota, will speak on "Funny, You Don't Look Like An Indian' and Other Misconceptions About Indians."
- Oct 22—Erik Anderson, music, talks on "The Nine-Inning Symphony: Baseball and Brahms."
- Nov. 1—Ursula Schittko, biology, will speak about "Native Plants in Medicine: Small Input - Large Impact."
- Dec. 11—D. Jerome Tweton, North Dakota Humanities Council speaker, lectures on "North Dakota's Political Fences: Issues That Divided Us."

All lectures are held in Aleshire Theater at 7 p.m. They are free and open to the public and refreshments are served afterward.

Campus master plan architects visit

The campus master planning architects from Clark Enerson visited campus Aug. 27-28. They met with campus representatives with a focus on signage and landscaping. They also met with city officials about the North Broadway project and with others regarding the cemetery, lighting on University Avenue, and the general master plan.

At an open forum on Aug. 28, they responded to questions about opening 11th Avenue and other features of the campus master plan. The updated plan can be viewed online at (www.minotstateu.edu/master_plan/).

Announcements

CONNECT after review scheduled for Sept. 13

Faculty and staff: Thanks to everyone who participated in this year's very successful orientation and registration sessions. Personally, I was very impressed with the planning and implementation of the events. Equally, I was delighted with number of excellent reviews we received from students, parents, faculty and staff. It is clear those long hours many of you worked benefited a great number of students.

Clearly CONNECT was a great success. Planning is now underway for the spring version of CONNECT and we need your help. The time is right to review CONNECT, while it is fresh in our minds, and consider how we can improve future sessions.

Please consider participating in a CONNECT after-action review on Sept. 13 at 2:30 p.m. in the Conference Center. The review will consider four broad questions:

- What was supposed to happen?
- What actually happened?
- What is the difference between the two?
- What should we do to make up the difference?

Please note that this session is not designed to question the value of orientation or registration; we will leave that to others to consider. Our focus is how to make the next CONNECT even better. Please help us achieve that goal.

— John P. Girard, associate professor of business administration and business information technology and director of enrollment services

State employee recognition week social to be held Sept. 10

State Employee Recognition Week is Sept. 9-15. On Sept. 10 from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. we will have a social gathering in the Conference Center to mark the occasion. At 8:30 a.m., we will have a small program with remarks from President David Fuller. We will also be giving away a few door prizes, so please mark this on your calendar and plan on enjoying some refreshments and good company. See you there!

-Wes Matthews, director of human resources

Studies in community and environment program to be discussed in open forum

For the exchange of information and ideas, please attend an open forum concerning a new major program, studies in community and environment on Sept. 12 at 3 p.m. in the Missouri Room.

As many of you heard on Convocation Day, planning for a new major program at Minot State University is underway—studies in community and environment. Some of you may be wondering just what such a program is, and why we need one at MSU. In brief, studies in community and environment will be a comprehensive Bachelor of Arts program that offers an interdisciplinary approach to the study of human interactions with the environment. It seeks to examine the cultural, scientific, economic, historical, political, and social factors that influence local, national, international, and global environmental issues and policies. Investigating a wide range of perspectives, it includes a broad exposure to many factors confronting humans as they struggle with complex problems and possible solutions to environmental and community questions.

The relevance of such a program should be self-evident: we all live on one planet, and we must learn intelligent stewardship of that planet--but "learn" is perhaps the key word here. Community and environmental studies programs have been in existence in the US for nearly 50 years, and there are some 1,100 programs in colleges and universities across the nation. This is clearly and established discipline, and we are excited to be able to expose our students to it.

We already have Stage I approval for the program, and a committee has been formed (with representatives from humanities, social sciences, biology, science, math, and social work) to do the work of completing the Stage II approval process. This work cannot be done by a committee alone, however. We need your ideas and input. Many of you have questions, concerns, ideas, and suggestions--and we want to hear them all! So please mark your calendars and plan to attend this open forum. We look forward to seeing you there!

—ShaunAnne Tangney, associate professor of English

Marketing tip offered

As an Minot State University representative and as an employee assisting with MSU's marketing efforts, I would like to ask you to review your e-mail signature block and consider noting the following elements as it will assist individuals with your complete contact information and important university information.

- Your name
- · Building location
- Campus address
- Complete campus telephone number with 701 prefix
- Toll-free telephone number
- Your web address
- All white background

Thank you in advance for promoting Minot State University!

Writing Center is open

The MSU Writing Center is now open and will host its third annual open house on Sept. 27, 9 a.m.-4 p.m.!!

The tutoring schedule is in a bit of flux, but you will be getting a schedule and other handouts in campus mail soon. We have new tutors who are being trained and when they are up to speed, we hope to expand our hours to be open just about every weekday, 9 a.m.-4 p.m.

We also have a new online appointment service, WC Online at (www.minotstateu.edu/writingcenter/), which allows students to make appointments online any time. I will be having bookmarks with information about this made up as well.

Please encourage your students to use the Writing Center often. Our tutors enjoy the sessions and learn a lot from them. Remember, we are located on the lower level of the Gordon B. Olson Library.

Hope to see all of your students there. And if you know students who might make good tutors, be sure to refer to them to me.

—Patti J. Kurtz, assistant professor of English

Casino dealers needed

During Homecoming, on the evening of Sept. 17, we are having a casino and karaoke night in the Beaver Dam. If there are any faculty or staff members who can and would like to serve as dealers for our casino games, please let me know. This will be a great way for students to be able to interact with you in a more relaxed environment, and I promise you will have a great time. Thanks for all you do for our MSU students.

—Ann Rivera, student activities coordinator
