Minot's Common Heritage Scan Day at the Minot Public Library

On March 5, 2016, history students participated in Scan Day at the Minot Public Library, during which they helped community members digitally preserve their family history materials. This event was the first event of the History Department's Minot's Common Heritage project, which is documenting Minot's identity at a time when it is rapidly transforming as the result of both significant population and industrial growth related to regional oil activity and the continuing impact of the 2011 flood. This event was sponsored by the Library, Minot State University, and the National Endowment for the Humanities, which awarded the project one of the first of 38 national grants to be made under NEH's Common Heritage program.

Public History

Students in Dr. Bethany Andreasen's Fall 2015 Public History course presented their local history projects to members of the university and the Minot communities on December 17, 2015. See the Digital Minot page for more details.
