MSU academic officials and visitors from PaiChai University pictured are: Libby Claerbout, director of International Programs, Chang In Lee, director of the TESOL program at PaiChai, David Fuller, MSU president, HyeKyung Lee, provost at PaiChai, JoAnn Linrud, dean of the College of Business, and Yae Sock Roh, professor of marketing and hospitality at Central Michigan University.

Minot State University hosted a very successful visit by officers from PaiChai University in Daejon, South Korea, Dec. 11-12. The purpose of the visit was to establish a partnership between the two institutions. Representing PaiChai were HyeKyung Lee, provost at PaiChai University, and Chang In Lee, director of the TESOL Program at PaiChai University, and Yae Sock Roh, professor of marketing and hospitality at Central Michigan University.

“MSU would benefit by increasing the diversity of students on the campus and because MSU students would have more exposure to students from other countries,” said JoAnn Linrud, dean of the College of Business.

PaiChai University, which offers both undergraduate and graduate programs, was established by Christian missionary Henry Appenzeller in 1885. Lee said the institution was a high school when the country was under Japanese rule, but it was revitalized as a college in the 1950s after South Korea gained its independence.

PaiChai’s Appenzeller School of Global Business will begin its new program next semester with 40 students: 10 Americans, 10 Europeans, 10 South Koreans, and 10 from other Asian countries. They will study for three years at PaiChai and will spend their fourth year abroad. Because the program is just being established, it would be several years before students from PaiChai come to Minot State. PaiChai is also interested in establishing partnerships with other American universities. MSU is one of the universities that has a profile that is attractive to PaiChai officials.

According to Provost Lee, the Korean university is interested in sending students to study at MSU in part because Minot is a good quality university in a nice, safe, moderate-size American city. Lee has found that the English spoken here is good, standard English. In addition, parents of students at PaiChai are concerned about safety when they send their children abroad, said Lee.

The provost, who has visited the United States several times, said that PaiChai is highly globalized, with a number of international students. Many of its students study abroad. Both Lee and Linrud said that international experience is vital for people entering the business field today.

PaiChai University's new business program will be taught in English. Linrud said there could be opportunities for MSU faculty members to teach at PaiChai and for PaiChai faculty to teach at Minot State. MSU already has partnership agreements with SIAS International University in Zhengzhou, China, Kadir Has University in Istanbul, Turkey, and Telemark University College in Skien, Norway.

Important notes about Web-based common campus calendar

Input of information onto the Web-based common calendar is vital because campus members will be better able to assist visitors to campus, everyone can look for scheduling conflicts, and changes to events can be immediately updated.

Now that the campus calendar has been implemented, those individuals scheduling campus events will be responsible for inputting their own information.

The Office of Public Information widely distributes the information from the common campus calendar both on and off campus through the Inside newsletter. It is also made available weekly to the Minot Daily News.

When you are submitting events, you will need a User-ID and Password. Contact the PIO at 858-3298 if you need to be added as a user.

MSU student to serve on Chamber of Commerce board

Vanessa Anderson, a Minot State University junior from Buchanan, is eager to be a voice for students on the Minot Area Chamber of Commerce board.

Although Anderson will be a non-voting member, she is looking forward to having an opportunity to be a liaison between MSU's student government and the Chamber of Commerce. Her first meeting was Dec. 18.

Fuller, who also serves on the board, said he wants MSU students to become more civic-minded and thinks being involved on the board will be a good learning experience for them. He also encourages students to provide the Chamber with the students' perspective on life in Minot. Above all, he would like to increase the university's involvement within the community as part of Vision 2013, the university's strategic plan.

John MacMartin, president of the Minot Area Chamber of Commerce, said he hopes that Anderson will help the chamber board stay in touch with issues that are important to students at MSU. That perspective will aid the Chamber as it works on community-wide projects and attempts to make the city attractive for young adults.

The Chamber board would also like to find avenues for MSU students to become more active in the community. For example, the Chamber may discuss a proposal to introduce a Roterac Club, the university-level version of the Rotary Club, at MSU. There seems to be a lot of interest on campus in becoming active in such a service organization, Anderson said.

A sociology and German major, Anderson is a student senator from the College of Arts and Sciences. She became interested in serving in student government this past summer because of concerns about security on campus.

"I feel safe on campus," she said, but recent events did bring the issue of campus safety to the forefront. A Minot State University student was murdered in her off-campus apartment last June and the murder has yet to be solved.

Anderson also finds it exciting to be among the first to know about actions the university has taken to improve security, such as adding cameras on campus and removing some trees and adding more lighting along University Avenue.

The junior said one of the things she would like to bring up while she is on the Chamber board is the possibility of building a bigger recycling center in the community. Anderson plans to attend law school and specialize in environmental law. Consequently, she has a great interest in the environment. She said the only thing that can be recycled on the university campus is paper. She would like to see opportunities to recycle grow.

Final informational session about studying abroad is today

The Office of International Programs has one more informational session about studying abroad scheduled. This meeting will be held today in the space in front of the OIP, 11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.

Lecture series discusses 'speaking your mind' and showcases study trips to China and Great Britain

Robert S. Littlefield, professor of communication at North Dakota State University, will present "Speaking Your Mind: Public Oratory and the Performing Arts in 20th Century America," tomorrow evening (Jan. 10) as part of the Northwest Art Center lecture series.

Littlefield's presentation is an outgrowth of research he conducted as a 2006 North Dakota Humanities Council Remele Fellowship recipient. His research focused on public speeches, debates and oratory in North Dakota and other areas of the nation during the twentieth century.

Because many communities were isolated during the early years of North Dakota's statehood, public oratory and fine arts became a cultural tool to draw citizens together. In his lecture, Littlefield compares the development of these activities in North Dakota to similar forensic and performing arts developments in other parts of the United States.

Littlefield has published more than 75 articles on risk and crisis communication, intercultural communication, forensic education and practice, instructional practices, and political communication. He is the author of "Voices on the Prairie," an historical account of speech education, forensics, and theatre arts in North Dakota since statehood.

On Jan. 14, Minot State University students, faculty, and exchange students will present "Horizons Unlimited: Experience and Learning Across Borders and Cultures." This will be an overview of recent and upcoming overseas study tours sponsored by the university.

Presenters are MSU faculty Robert Kibler and Michelle M. Sauer; Chinese exchange students from SIAS International University, MSU's partner university in China; and MSU students who have participated in past study abroad trips. The program will feature study abroad trips to China and Britain planned for May 2008, as well as photos and highlights from previous excursions.

Study tour destinations for 2008 include Ireland, Scotland, London and China. Trips are open to adult community members as well as students. Information on the upcoming tours will be available at the lecture or from MSU's Office of International Programs at 858-4155, or Kibler at 858-3876.

All NAC lectures are held in Aleshire Theater, 7 p.m. Admission is free and open to the public; refreshments are served afterward.

'Messiah' performance raises funds for John Strohm Music Scholarship

On Dec. 4, The Heritage Singers men's chorus, the Voices of Note women's chorus, area high school students and MSU Concert Choir combined to present Handel's "Messiah." They were directed by Mark Schnabel.

Admission was by free-will offering, and proceeds from the event were $4,225. These funds were added to the John Strohm Music Scholarship Endowment Fund.

MSU alumnus receives prestigious award from NASC

Les Anderson, a Minot State University alumnus and principal at Jim Hill Middle School, was awarded the National Association of Student Councils' Distinguished Service Award at its convention Dec. 9. This is only the third time in the association's 76 years that the award has been given.

Anderson has received a number of awards during his career, but this one was one of the most significant, he said. Anderson began volunteering with the organization more than 30 years ago and has served at both its state and the national level. He has witnessed its growth from a small state conference to one with more than 1,200 participants. Presently North Dakota's student association convention is one of the largest in the United States.

Anderson said he has always believed in the importance of the organization.

"If you're going to be successful, you need to be involved in some sort of community service," said Anderson, who encourages students from Jim Hill to get involved too.

Anderson said the two previous recipients of the award had both been special mentors for him, so he was especially honored to receive the award. Anderson plans to display his plaque in his office along with a book showing the pictures of students who have participated in the organization over the years.

Symphony performs family concert Jan. 26

At their family concert Jan. 26, the Minot Symphony Orchestra is collaborating with the Western Plains Children's Choir in a performance of Serge Prokofiev's "Winter Bonfire," something to guarantee a warm evening in the middle of winter. Music from the Harry Potter movies will also make an appearance on this program designed for the enjoyment of the entire family. Maestro Dennis Simons, professor of music, is the orchestra's conductor.

MSU faculty, staff and students are admitted free with a current ID. Additional tickets for adults are $15 per concert or $50 for a season ticket. The price for senior citizens is $13 single, $45 season; students 12-18, $8 single, $24 season; children, ages under 12, $4 single, $12 season. All concerts are held in the Ann Nicole Nelson Hall, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

MSU representatives visit SIAS

An Minot State University group was in China Dec. 14-20 visiting SIAS International University in order to recruit the 2008-2009 Master of Science Intercultural Management cohort and finalize May 2008 study tour details. Travelers were JoAnn Linrud, dean of the College of Business, Gary Ross, program director, Libby Claerbout, international programs, Jason Trainer, enrollment services, and Nancy Si, current MSM Chinese student and long-term employee of SIAS.

Four alumnae receive NDAHPERD awards

Four Minot State University alumnae were recipients of annual awards from the North Dakota Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance in November.

Betsy Gerhart, a 1983 graduate who lives in Minot, was named Elementary Teacher of the Year. She is a physical education instructor at North Plains and Dakota Elementary Schools at Minot Air Force Base and a track coach at Minot High School.

Vicky Bender, Regan, was named Middle School Teacher of the Year. She graduated from MSU in 1983, and she teaches physical education at Wilton Public Schools.

Terry Eckmann, an associate professor in MSU's Department of Teacher Education and Human Performance, was named College/University Teacher of the Year. Eckmann received B.S., B.S.E., and M.S. degrees from MSU. She earned a Master of Science degree from the University of Montana and her doctoral degree from the University of North Dakota.

Kathryn Lenertz, Minot, was named Administrator of the Year. She is principal of Dakota Elementary School at Minot Air Force Base. Lenertz graduated from Minot State in 1983.

The mission of NDAHPERD is to encourage and provide professional development and support for health, physical education, recreation and dance professionals.

Assessment Day is April 15

Spring Assessment Day is April 15. Jillian Kinzie, associate director of the Center for Postsecondary Research at Indiana University in Bloomington, will be conducting the sessions.

Announcements

Condolences being extended to Fuller family

It is with sincere sadness that we inform the campus that President David Fuller's mother, Jacqueline N. Fuller, passed away Dec. 26 in Omaha, Neb. President and Mrs. Fuller attended a private family service Jan. 4. Please join us in extending our sincere condolences to the Fullers on their loss.

Deadlines for spring/summer graduation applications and ordering commencement regalia set

Faculty: Please be aware of the following graduation application deadlines:

- Jan. 25—spring and summer graduation applications are due to advisors.
- Feb. 8—spring and summer graduation applications are due in the Office of the Registrar.

Also, please note that the procedure for ordering graduation regalia has changed this year in order to follow Barnes & Noble Bookstore's procedures. Now that Barnes & Noble Bookstore has formed a partnership with Minot State University, the procedure for ordering commencement regalia has changed.

Please be aware of the following policies and deadlines:

- All commencement regalia needs to be ordered online through Barnes & Noble's partner Herff Jones. Orders for caps, gowns, hoods and announcements will no longer take place in the bookstore—it all must be done online. Please note this includes regalia purchases for faculty and staff as well. Due to the new partnership with Barnes & Noble, the Office of Publications and Design Services will no longer produce commencement announcements.
- A link for ordering caps and gowns will be placed on the home page of the Minot State 2008 Commencement Guide page that can be found at (www.minotstateu.edu/commencement).
- Orders can be placed beginning Jan. 15, and the deadline to have all orders placed is March 14.

Advisors: please inform your graduating advisees of this deadline. March 14 will be the last day to place the order if they wish to participate in the spring commencement ceremony.

— Kim Thompson, director of public information, and Cathy Horvath, director of Information Technology Central

Faculty/staff acknowledgements from the Dec. 19 University Cabinet meeting include:

Teresa Loftesnes, marketing director, and Lucas Havig, student intern, for their work in organizing a very successful "Meet the Beavers" at Dakota Square Mall on Nov. 17.

MSU head football coach Paul Rudolph for being selected as Dakota Athletic Conference Coach of the Year.

Cathy Horvath, information technology director, has been selected to receive a Jane N. Ryland Fellowship sponsored by Educause. Recipients of Ryland Fellowships are selected annually on a competitive basis based on applicant's commitment to higher education and information technology; institutional commitment to information technologies, to employee professional development, and to the applicant; and potential benefit to the applicant and his or her institution. Horvath will receive a grant of $1,500 to apply toward the Educause professional development offering of her choice during 2008.

Joseph Jastrzembski, executive director of the Minot Area Council for International Visitors and history faculty member, has been named as one of six finalists to receive the National Council for International Visitors Excellence in Programming Award for an All-Volunteer CIV. The Excellence in Programming Awards serve to recognize outstanding achievement within the NCIV Network by programmers who have given tirelessly of their energy and creativity to assure the success of the U.S. Department of State's International Visitor Leadership Program and to promote international exchange and citizen diplomacy. Nominations for this honor were sought from representatives of National Program Agencies and from English Language Officers and Interpreters. The National Council will announce the award winner at its Citizen Diplomacy Luncheon on Feb. 15, 2008, at its national meeting in Washington, D.C. Minot State University has hosted the MACIV since 1992 and is one of 93 community-based organizations that works with the NCIV and the International Visitor Leadership Program of the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the state department. MACIV membership includes Minot State University faculty, staff and students as well as members from Minot and the surrounding area.

MSU-Bottineau news

Minot State University-Bottineau provided the following update at University Cabinet Dec. 19:

- MSU-Bottineau is receiving some interest from the community in regard to the Information Technology certificate program they are trying to start in Minot.
- There are two good candidates for the director position for the Entrepreneurial Center for Horticulture project.
- A community meeting was held Dec. 17 to determine the future of Old Main on the MSU-B campus. The group consensus was to form a committee to determine how the building could be used since we no longer need it for classroom and office space. A popular suggestion was to construct an auditorium in the building to provide a place for convocations, lectures and drama presentations. Campus Dean Ken Grosz will form a committee this month to move forward. Those attending were made aware that if a solution cannot be found within a year or two the building will have to come down.
- It has been a struggle to get into a softball and football conference with the Minnesota Community College league. For next year, MSU-B will be playing an independent schedule and have nearly a full schedule completed. Homecoming is tentatively scheduled for Sept. 20.
- The first draft of our self-study for HLC accreditation should be done by mid-spring semester.
- Patsy Rieke, MSU-B coordinator on the Minot State campus, was awarded the Minot Area Chamber of Commerce Eagle Award for excellent customer service. She was nominated by a student's family for her outstanding support of that student. They were very thankful and credited Rieke for helping the student stay in school and graduating.
