Two faculty sabbaticals announced

David Fuller, president of Minot State University, recently announced two new sabbatical projects. Linda Olson, chair of the Division of Humanities and professor of art, will receive sabbatical leave for fall semester 2011, while Patti Kurtz, associate professor of English and director of the Writing Center, will receive sabbatical leave for spring semester 2012.

Olson will engage in rock art research activities. Specifically, the Drake native will obtain additional training to become more proficient with three-dimensional imaging and software currently in use for documentation of rock art sites. The sabbatical will enable her to continue her research and documentation of petroglyphs and pictographs.

“As an engaged artist, scholar and professor, Linda Olson models the qualities we hope our students emulate,” said Conrad Davidson, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and professor of communication arts. “In addition, her sabbatical proposal addresses themes of place and preservation of artistic, historical and cultural heritage, all core values of Vision 2013.”

Kurtz plans to revise, research, edit and refine the manuscript of “Dark Enough to See the Stars.” A young-adult historical novel, “Dark Enough to See the Stars” focuses on events before and immediately after the May 31, 1889, flood in Johnstown, Pa., which killed more than 2,200 people. In addition to finishing this manuscript, Kurtz will acquire increased skill and knowledge of the process of composing a historical novel for teens. She will take the skill and knowledge into her writing classrooms.

“Dr. Kurtz has steadily produced quality scholarship in the areas of writing pedagogy and literary biography,” Davidson said. “She has also published creative writing as well as served as a literary editor.”

The objective of Minot State University’s sabbatical program is to support faculty, professional development and scholarly research. The program contributes in new and powerful ways to students, faculty, the university and Vision 2013. The sabbatical proposals were reviewed and evaluated with three criteria categories: demonstrated teaching excellence, advanced professional development within a faculty member’s discipline and contribution to Vision 2013.

For more information about the program, contact Selmer Moen, interim vice president for academic affairs, at 858-3310.

New staff aboard

Minot State University would like to welcome one new employee, John Johnson, and introduce him to the campus. Johnson, an electrician with the Office of Facilities Management, previously worked for Larson Electric, Minot. He attended the North Dakota State College of Science in Wahpeton for one year and then completed an apprenticeship to become a journeyman electrician. Within the Velva community, he was a city commissioner for six years and currently serves on the golf course board. Johnson and his wife, D’Ann, have two children, Tricia and Gunnar. For hobbies, he enjoys hunting, ice fishing and golf.

MSU Bookstore offering textbook rental program

Beginning in January 2011, Minot State University Bookstore will give students a new lease on their often budget-focused, hectic lives by offering a multichannel textbook rental program designed to deliver maximum savings and convenience.

“This innovative textbook rental program will allow students to rent their textbooks for less than 50 percent of the cost of purchasing a new printed textbook,” said Sandy Foley, MSU Bookstore manager. “As an added convenience, students will be able to rent their books either in the store or from the store’s website. While not every textbook is included in the rental program, more than 100 titles are available to rent this spring.”

Minot State and Barnes & Noble College Booksellers, which contracts to manage the campus bookstore, decided jointly to offer a textbook rental program. Whether students are interested in new, used, digital, unbundled or rental books, they can find what they want at the bookstore.

Other program features include:

- Students can pay the rental fees using any form of tender currently accepted by the bookstore (excluding PayPal) including student financial aid and campus debit cards. For security purposes, a valid credit card must also be provided regardless of the tender used for the rental fee.
- Students can highlight or mark the rented books just as they would if they purchased a book and planned to sell it back to the bookstore.
- Students can convert their rental to a purchase during the first two weeks of class.
- The rental period is for the duration of the semester. Books are due back by the last day of finals. Students can return books in person or mail them to the bookstore.
- Courtesy e-mail messages will go out as the end of the semester approaches reminding students to return their books. Books not returned, or returned in unusable condition, are subject to replacement and processing fees.

Nationally, more than 300 Barnes & Noble College Booksellers college and university bookstores began offering textbook rental programs beginning in fall 2010. In a follow-up survey, more than 90 percent of the students said they would rent from the bookstore again.

MSU and JCFL sign exchange agreement

Realizing emerging trends in today’s global world, David Fuller, president of Minot State University, recently signed an articulation agreement with Japan College of Foreign Language. Under the memorandum of understanding, the two institutions agree to work toward a “two-plus-two” collaboration model, which means courses students complete at JCFL will be accepted by Minot State and will apply toward a four-year degree at MSU.

“The partnership with Japan College of Foreign Language is a great opportunity for Minot State University to enroll high-caliber students from Japan who have already proven their ability to succeed in university-level courses and who have a high level of English proficiency,” said Libby Claerbout, director of international programs. “Students benefit by transferring up to 31 credits towards their general education requirements here at MSU.”

Minot State received the opportunity to work with JCFL, a non-profit educational foundation accredited by the Japanese Ministry of Education in 1978 as a vocational college, through The Language Company. JCFL grants two-year associates degrees, and the school was looking to expand the number of its study-abroad partner universities.

Japanese students will study two years at JCFL and receive a general education associate’s degree. English, as a foreign language, is a main component of the two years of study. Students will then transition into the Language Company to enhance their English skills and finally matriculate into Minot State, a TLC-host institution.

Kristen Wood, transfer articulation specialist, worked closely with MSU’s academic departments on the coordination of transfer-credit approval. JCFL students may transfer up to 31 credits and receive credit for up to seven general education requirements at MSU.

Isaacson shared experiences with business students

Bill Isaacson, Minot State University alumnus, spoke to students Dec. 10 about innovation, intrapreneurship and entrepreneurship. Isaacson, a former 3M executive and inventor of permanent contact lenses, also received an Outstanding Intrepreneurship Award from the Technology and Innovation Division of the Academy of Management. Shawn Carraher, director of the Severson Entrepreneurship Academy and a past division chair of that organization, presented Isaacson with the national award when Isaacson spoke to a business class.

Isaacson, who now lives in Stanley and has a consulting business, described entrepreneurship as the pursuit of inventions, and Isaacson said 3M possessed a culture that strongly fostered it. He continues to work on new inventions more than 50 years after he attended Minot State.

MSU faculty and students impact statewide conference

The North Dakota Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance 2010 state conference was held in late October in Bismarck, where Minot State faculty members and students had a big impact. At the annual recognition and honor awards ceremony, Terry Eckmann, professor of physical education, received the 2010 NDAHPERD Honor Award.

Eckmann is an active member in NDAHPERD and served as president during the 2008-2009 term. In 2007, the Halliday native was named NDAHPERD College/University Teacher of the Year.

MSCOPE students attended the conference providing games and activities that can be used in an elementary physical education setting. This year’s MSCOPE presentation was organized by Sara Deutsch, teacher education and human performance adjunct faculty. Eckmann serves as a co-advisor for the Minot State Club of Physical Educators. The club is known for being one of the most active in the state and district.

Jaimie McMullen, assistant professor of physical education, attended the NDAHPERD conference and provided a session on teambuilding activities. McMullen’s session focused on the benefits of teambuilding, such as cooperation, communication, decision making, problem-solving and critical thinking.

Eckmann and McMullen presented several workshops during the statewide conference.

AUCD is a national network of interdisciplinary centers advancing policy and practice through research, education and services for and with individuals with developmental and other disabilities, their families and communities.

Mary Mercer, community training core coordinator, served as a panel member of Think College mini-grantees for the postsecondary education preconference workshop.

Dawn Olson, consumer liaison, Kari Schmidt, project director for the North Dakota Disability Health Project, and Deb Unruh, Consumer Advisory Council president, participated in poster presentations at the conference. Schmidt spoke about “Diabetes Awareness and Prevention on North Dakota Indian Reservations.” Olson and Unruh presented “North Dakota’s Example of Exceptional Support,” this presentation highlighted NDCPD receiving national recognition for support of its CAC.

Wellness works

Hand washing is everyone’s first line of defense against germs. Hand washing seems like an effortless hygienic routine, but many people tend to forget this very important practice. Washing one’s hands with warm soapy water for at least 15 seconds prevents various forms of contamination.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, if individuals do not wash their hands frequently, they can pick up germs from other sources and then infect themselves. Everyone is at risk every time they touch their eyes, nose or mouth. In fact, one of the most common ways people catch colds is by rubbing their noses or their eyes after the cold virus has gotten on their hands.

If people do not wash their hands frequently, especially when they are sick, they can spread germs directly to other people or onto surfaces that others touch. And before long, everyone is coming down with something!

Think about all of the things that a person touches in a day — from the telephone to the toilet. Maybe they blew their nose or played with their dog. Whatever individuals do, they come into contact with germs. So it is easy for germs on people’s hands to end up in their mouths (for example, when they scarfed candy from their colleague’s desk).

By frequently washing their hands the right way, people will wash away germs — such as bacteria and viruses — that they picked up from other people, through contaminated water and food, from tainted surfaces or from animals and animal waste.

Everyone should wash their hands:
- After using the bathroom.
- After blowing their nose or coughing.
- Before eating, serving or preparing food.
- After touching pets or other animals.
- After outdoor activities.
- Before and after visiting anyone who is sick.
- When their hands are dirty.
- After changing a diaper.

Salvation Army needs gifts for teenagers

This year, the Salvation Army toy distribution will take place Dec. 23 at the MSU Dome from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The Salvation Army annually gives out Christmas gifts to parents who could not otherwise afford gifts for their children. And each year, the Salvation Army does not have enough teenage-appropriate gifts for that age group. Those who donate gifts love to donate toys for children under age 10 (which is really great), but the teenagers are often forgotten.

Some of the more popular teenage gifts each year include: Axe body spray, makeup, brand-name clothes, hats, mittens, scarves, books, perfume, razors, etc. These teenagers are not asking for Wii games or iPods, they are asking for things you and I take for granted on a regular basis.

If you would like to donate any teenage items to this great cause, please bring them to Teresa Loftesnes, marketing director, in Student Center 309 or myself in Student Center 302 by Friday (Dec. 17). Thanks for your help during this holiday season! Merry Christmas!
