Welcome to all!

Students, staff, and faculty, I would like to take the time to welcome you back for another year of school at Minot State University. If you have not already noticed the workers have been busy over the summer finishing up some renovations to the campus on Swain Hall and Herb Parker Stadium. Both look amazing and show the dedication this administration has towards the student's education experience at Minot State and athletic programs. Also you will notice that there are two new sports that are now in their first year of competition. Along with women's soccer, men's wrestling has been added to the athletic department. Much more is to come over the next few months and I am very excited to be a part of it and see this campus continue to grow.

Since the Student Government Association represents the students at Minot State, I extend an invitation to all students to stop by the office to discuss any issues, comments, concerns, and suggestion you may have for us. Our office is located on the second floor of the Student Center, right by the Beaver Dam. Once again, to all new and old students, staff and faculty, welcome to Minot State University. We all have an exciting year ahead of us.

Sincerely Chase Lee, president Student Government Association

Alumni dream becomes students' reality

By Anthony Anderson Staff Writer

The recently reborn Mu Sigma Tau fraternity has completed renovations on its new fraternity house, located across University Avenue from Crane Hall.

The Mu Sigma Tau fraternity was founded at Minot State in the 1920s. It was active for 60 years, and recently became active again last year, after MSU alumni began holding informational meetings about rebuilding Greek life on campus.

The fraternity purchased the house, a former rental property, late last year. The Mu Sig alumni and actives worked on renovating the house all summer long.

"It was quite a transformation," Fraternity President Chase Lee, said. "We had a lot of alumni and actives come by and put their time in as often as they could. Some guys would come by every day and put in five or six hours each day."

The house is almost completely renovated inside and out. Volunteers refinished all the hardwood floors, and put in all-new carpets. They washed and painted every wall and brought in new furniture, fixtures and appliances. The group completely remodeled the bathrooms and put in several new walls to create new rooms. They renewed the exterior as well, with the fraternity putting on new paint, trim, and doors.

While the Mu Sigs do not require their members to live in the house, six of the actives have opted to do so.

"This started out as a dream of some of our alumni," said Lee. "Now it's become the reality of the students."

Marching Beavers at it again

By Bekka Ryan Staff Writer

A variety of Minot State University students – 56 instrumentalists and four auxiliary members – make up the Minot State University Marching Band. This is director Joe Alme's second year to assemble a group of marching musicians.

The Marching Beavers started their fall 2010 season on Saturday, Aug. 21, the first day of the first MSU Band Camp. Camp lasted three days with a total of 21 hours of practice, bonding and sweating in the sun on the new field.

Students range from first year "newbies" to seniors, with a few transfer students thrown in for spice.

"Being a transfer student means that sometimes it's hard to adjust to a new school. Through band camp, I've been given an opportunity to expand my horizons and friend base," Karen Niewoehner, Marching Beavers' piccolo player, said of her camp experience.

One thing is for sure, the marching band would not have come this far in such a short period of time were it not for some very instrumental players. (Pun intended!)

Distinguished drum major Josh Stevens not only has displayed massive amounts of patience, organizational skills and self discipline concerning the new responsibility of being in charge of 60 students, he's also done his fair share of learning this year. Stevens attended the 41st annual Marching Band Workshop in West Chester University in West Chester, Pa., Stevens represented MSU on the national level along with more than  $400\ drum$  majors from all over the U.S.

Alme, MSU instructor of music and director of bands, has had a very vested interest in bringing the marching band back to life. Accompanying Alme on the field are marching band assistants Mark Boren, MSU instructor of music-high brass specialist, and Adam Estes, woodwind specialist.

Alme credits MSU President David Fuller for bringing excitement, enthusiasm and a breath of life to the program. After attending an MSU Band Concert, Fuller approached Alme about bringing back the marching band, after a 25-year hiatus from our campus.

We would be remiss if we did not mention the unending support of MSU Athletic Director Rick Hedberg.

"He's been so supportive ... providing water, field time, whatever we need," Alme said.

Accompanying the instrumentalists on the field is a group of four "flaggers," the MSU Auxiliary, directed by Joyce Alme.

"Although our auxiliary team is small, I'm excited because we have such a dedicated group," junior Taija Hahka said.

Come check out the flag twirlers' moves set to the band's blockbuster music from "Slumdog Millionaire," "Titan Spirit" and "Transformers."

"I see the band growing in the future," Alme said. "We hope to have a longer and more involved marching band in the years to come."

Enjoy the sounds and sights of MSU's Marching Beavers at all five home football games.

The Players play for a day

Emily Anderson Comm 281

The stage is once again ready for the Minot State University Campus Players' 24-hour play festival. The festival takes place Friday, Sept. 17, and Saturday, Sept. 18 in Aleshire Theater in Hartnett Hall.

Peg Morris, who is heading the festival this year, describes it as, "one day of pure insanity."

The festival starts at 7:30 p.m. on the 17th with a meeting of all the writers, directors, and actors. Actors bring one prop and one custume piece. A photo is taken and given to the writers. At 8:30 p.m. everyone leaves but the writers, who spend the night creating five new 10-minute plays.

Scripts are due Saturday at 6 a.m., and at 7 a.m. directors arrive to read over the scripts and create their own vision for the plays. Actors come in at 8 a.m. and memorization and rehearsal begin.

Technical support arrives at 3 p.m. to work their own kind of magic, and the curtain goes up at 7:30 p.m.

"It's what we do in a nut shell." Morris said.

This column is written weekly by one of the Red & Green staff members and may not necessarily reflect the views of the Red & Green or Minot State University.

New year, new editor

By now, the fall semester at Minot State University is in full swing, and with the first-week jitters out of the way, students are no longer frantically running around campus making sure they make it to class on time. Especially freshman trying to make sure they are even in the right classroom. Yes, and you'll even find President Fuller always on the go, but even if he's in a scuffle, he'll make the time to say hello and ask you how your classes are going.

I should probably introduce myself. My name is Cassie Neuharth, and I ended my semester last spring with the honor of being named the editor of the Red & Green, our MSU student newspaper, which you are obviously reading now. My vision is to make sure students, faculty and staff know all the happenings on the MSU campus and in the community.

I was born and raised in Minot and MSU has been my home away from home for five semesters now. When I started as a young 18-year-old freshman, I felt lost knowing I was just a small fish in a big pond. I found my way with the help from faculty members and fellow students. Well, okay, if I should be honest, I got most of the help from my dad, Kevin Neuharth, a professor in the Communication Arts Department. I am working on a major in public relations, minor in marketing and a concentration in speech.

When I was a freshman, I had this crazy idea to get away for a semester. I began looking at MSU's study abroad program after only a few weeks on campus, I always knew it was something I had to try. I left on Jan. 15, 2009, for Kristianstad, Sweden, and stayed until the end of June. Bethany Stai, a fellow MSU student, went also.

We met for the first time a month before we left and became fast friends, relying on each other for that little piece of home. I not only wanted to continue my schooling, but I wanted to learn about other cultures around the world, and my experience abroad changed my life.

Little did I know I had yet another trick up my sleeve. In one of my communication arts classes in fall of 2009, I began getting pressured, yet again by my father, about the fact that as a junior we had to complete internships before graduation. Some might have been thinking "okay, I'll just find an internship here and see what happens." Well, not this girl. I thought "Wow, cool! I want to go somewhere big like Grand Forks or Minneapolis." So, the looking process began for an internship for summer 2010, and I ended up making several interviews and several nervous, failed attempts. I finally found a place that was comfortable and, not to toot my own horn, I stole the interview. I fell in the heart of downtown Denver, working for Signature Advertising, a locally owned marketing firm. With a summer filled of Rockies games and long bus ride commutes, I could not have asked for a better internship opportunity.

Over the years, I have tried to learn as much as I can about MSU and the activities that run through the campus. The students, faculty and staff members can be found and known as some of the nicest people in town, always willing to help someone in need. As a student myself, I recommend getting to know the university and all that goes on, even within your own department or major. Whether you are new on campus or a returning student, MSU has something to offer everyone. I want students to use the Red & Green, along with posters and flyers around campus for upcoming activities, events and ongoing news. The Red & Green is a student-run newspaper with the intention to inform. So, if I must plug the paper again, I am glad to be starting out the 2010-2011 school year with bringing you the news of MSU. Have a wonderful year!

Sincerely, Cassie

NDCPD celebrates 2 decades

(MSU Public Information Office) The North Dakota Center for Persons with Disabilities will host a "20th Anniversary Celebration" on Sept. 14 and 15.

The two-day celebration will commemorate 20 years of training, research, community service and knowledge dissemination to North Dakota and the nation.

NDCPD started with only two full-time employees, Susie Mack and Joe Ferrara. The other eight part-time employees were communication disorders and special education faculty members.

NDCPD, which currently has more than 80 employees, has invited national speakers, honored guests, former administrators, current and former staff, current and past Consumer Advisory Council members, student trainees and state anniversary.

Events open to the public include an opening program on Sept. 14 in the MSU Conference Center (Student Center, third floor) from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m., followed by NDCPD tours and project displays from 3 to 4:30 p.m.

NDCPD is located on second floor of Memorial Hall. The public is welcome to join NDCPD staff as they look back over the past 20

NDCPD, along with the Student Government Association, will sponsor inspirational speaker Chet McDoniel with his presentation, "I'm Not Broken," on Sept. 15 in the Beaver Dam, from 11 a.m. to noon.

McDoniel was born with no arms and shortened legs. remains positive throughout obstacles and delivers a message of hope, and national partners to the happiness and enjoyment of a full life. He graduated magna cum laude from the University of North Texas, Denton, with a bachelor's degree in radio, television film production. McDoniel owns his own travel agency, and he and his family live in the Dallas/Fort Worth area. His presentation is free and open to the public.

> NDCPD will engage the past and current staff, the MSU campus, the local community and the state. The the 20th intent of Anniversary Celebration is to celebrate the people and the programs that have shaped the landscape of developmental disabilities in North Dakota.

Tokyo, Paris, and Milan are well-known fashion capitals. Will Minot someday be considered in this mix?

Minot Fashion Week will be showcasing the talented designs of nine local artists on Sept. 18 at 220 S. Broadway beginning at 8 p.m. Everyone is invited to attend. You can reserve seats and purchase tickets for $10 by calling (701) 822-2327. All proceeds of this event will be donated to the UND Children's Advocacy

If you are interested in volunteering to model or work for Minot Fashion Week, visit their Facebook page www.facebook.com/minotfas hionweek to sign up. You can also contact Minot Fashion Week on their Facebook page if interested in designing in their next show.

Kelly Paul, designer and organizer for MFW, said Minot Fashion Week started as a creative outlet for artists and designers to share their creations with the community while raising money for local non-profit organizations. It both highlights the local art community and the downtown area and is one of the few opportunities in Minot for those interested in fashion and design to express themselves. This week allows the community to gather together and be inspired by the designers' unique creations.

The designers range from those just learning how to sew to those who have attended fashion school. This is MFW's fourth event, so the designers are getting more experienced and more daring.

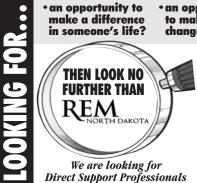

Designing for MFW this year are: Kelly Paul, Tanuel Lowery, Amanda Francis, Andrea Johnson, Kayla Cote, Jazmine Wolff, Terry Chavez, Chris Bieri, and Tonya Stuart. Designs range from Kayla

MSU faculty dig up the summer

(MSU Public Information Office) Margaret Sherve, English instructor, and Mark Timbrook, technology support specialist in Minot State University's Office of Instructional Technology, an adjunct faculty and author, will present "MSU Students Dig into the Past: Cemetery, Archaeology and Service Learning" Sept. 13 in Aleshire Theater, 7 p.m.. The presentation is part of the Northwest Art Center lecture series.

Sherve and Timbrook, along with several students, will discuss their archeological digs in South Dakota and at Minot's First Lutheran Church Cemetery. In June, they started in the summer heat with two students in the cemetery located next to the Student Center and Administration building on the MSU campus. This project became a process spread out between four years with this summer being the first year. Sherve and Timbrook hope to have the project completed by 2013, for MSU's centennial anniversary.

"We are hoping to get more students involved," Sherve said. "I would like to continue the project."

The goal of the cemetery project is to take pictures of each marker located on the property, to later put them all online with the person's identity and links to photos of the markers and location of each grave. The group found many markers covered up by grass and dirt; another goal is — to restore the cemetery and preserve the vegetation on the land.

Following their dig in June, Sherve, Timbrook and four MSU students spent three weeks in July working along with Michael Fosha, a N.D. state archeologist, preparing for a trip to South Dakota. Near Mitchell, S.D., they dug at a stone fort that was used by the U.S. Army. Students retrieved nails, a stake, glass from bottles of medicinal bitters used by the cavalry soldiers and two pieces of pottery.

The Northwest Art Center lecture series is funded in part by a grant from the North Dakota Council on the Arts, which receives funding from the state legislature and the National Endowment for the Arts.

For more information about Northwest Art Center activities, call 858-3264 or visit its Web site, www.minotstateu.edu/nac.

Summer Theatre finishes season right

Comm 281

The 45th annual Minot State University Summer Theatre season successfully ended July 24. The casts and crew put on four plays that had never been performed at MSU before.

The first play, "All Shook Up," was a musical directed by Kevin Neuharth, Summer Theatre director. It ran June 15-20.

"Unnecessary Farce," a humorous piece directed by MSU instructor Paula Lindekugel-Willis, played June 26-30.

"Dirty Rotten Scoundrels" played July 7-11. Chad Gifford directed the musical.

"Seven Brides for Seven Brothers," a musical directed by MSU instructor Aili Smith, ended the season, playing July 19-24.

Neuharth said that over the 21 performance days, more than 7,400 people came to watch the plays, or about 300 per night.

"We really appreciated that the audience stayed with us through the whole season and really supported us," Neuharth said. "It was a fabulous season, and we only got rained out once."

"The most exciting thing about the 45th season was that we had never performed any of these shows before," Neuharth said. "I was pretty surprised at the attendance we had."

"We sold out almost every night," said Brett Olson, the president of Campus Players as well as the technical director of summer theatre. Olson performed in "All Shook Up," "Unnecessary Farce" and "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers."

"It was kind of experimental," he said of all four plays being new this year. "Usually, we'll do one people have heard of to ensure they will come,

Beavers play first game on new turf

Eric Manlove Staff Writer

The Minot State University football team opened the season two weeks ago in the annual Beaver Bash, hosting Bemidji State University. Bemidji was not a very friendly guest as they ran all over MSU for a 24-7 victory, under the lights on the new field turf at Herb Parker Stadium.

The Beavers from Bemidji controlled the game in every aspect from the opening kick-off, outgaining Minot State 499-80 in yardage. Despite the huge difference in statistical numbers, the game remained close throughout.

"I thought our defense played hard and gave us a chance," coach Paul Rudolph said. "Our special teams gave us some opportunities as well."

Several bright spots for the Beavers came on special teams. With no time remaining in the second quarter, senior Johnny Lester crossed the goal line on a 99-yard kickoff return to bring Minot State within 3 points.

"It felt good to come out with the crowd excited at home, but we have to get better," Lester said. "That starts immediately in the weight room; we've just got to get better."

Minot State had a chance late thanks to another special teams play. Bemidji State was in punt formation and had the snap sail over the punters head. Junior Kenneth McCoy recovered the ball on the 15-yard line to give MSU a chance to pull within 3.

But Minot State was shut down on three plays, and Nik Richardson missed a 30-yard field goal wide left.

Minot State was back in action for their first road game this past Saturday at Sea Foam Stadium, visiting Concordia University - St. Paul. The Beavers fell 38-17, but again the game was much closer than the outcome, as big plays doomed Minot State.

"We have to protect the ball on offense and not give up big plays on defense," said Rudolph, "and we didn't do either of those. We gave up too many big plays."

Minot State (0-2) will be idle next week as they prepare for their Dakota Athletic Conference opener Sept. 18. The Beavers will host Mayville State at a 1:30 p.m. kickoff at Herb Parker Stadium.

Beavers launch first game with big win

Thomas Salery
Comm 281

Minot State University's first ever women's soccer team made a good impression as they went on to win the first two games in school history. The Lady Beavers won 1-0 against conference opponent Bemidji State in the first game and followed it up with a victory over Minnesota-Crookston on Aug. 29.

The Bemidji State game was the first game in the new MSU's women's soccer program. The game was very competitive and remained tied 0-0 through the first period. It began to turn in favor of the Beavers early in the second period as freshman Nicole Matsumoto scored the first and only goal of the game and in the history of women's soccer at MSU.

Even though the Bemidji State women made attempts to tie it up, they couldn't overcome the Minot State Beavers' defense. During the later part of the second period, the action began to become intense as a Bemidji State player was yellow carded for excessive roughness.

Although the first game was intense, it was the Beavers next game against Minnesota-Crookston that tested the team's toughness. It was a hard-fought game, but the ladies pulled it out 2-0.

Many fans attended both games, with the crowd supporting the Lady Beavers. The crowd was so loud, you could hear the vuvuzelas from blocks away.

The Minot State team has a tough schedule coming up as it goes against more experienced schools such as University of Mary, St. Cloud and University of Sioux Falls.

The schedule looks tough, but if the first two games are any indication of how the season will go, the Lady Beavers look ready for the challenge.

The Beavers next home game is Sept. 21.

Early enrollment numbers out

(MSU Public Information Office) Along with much of northwestern North Dakota, growth is underway at Minot State University. According to first-day numbers, Minot State's enrollment is showing a 6 percent increase, compared to the same time last year. The total headcount of students taking courses is 3,744, a 211 student increase from the 3,533 students who were taking classes on the first day of fall 2009

"Minot State proudly provides an ideal location for students to learn and grow. The early enrollment numbers for this fall show us at a five-year high for students," said David Fuller, president of Minot State University. "We are very pleased to see more students coming to campus from Ward County, North Dakota and other states."

The counties of Bottineau, Burleigh, Cass, Grand Forks, Morton, Renville, Ward and Williams all showed increases in the number of students who chose to attend Minot State.

A number of these students are finding it difficult to locate a residence within Minot or a surrounding community. Residence hall occupancy has jumped almost 20 percent compared to the same time last year, with almost 650 students living in a residence hall or apartment on campus.

Enrollment numbers show an 8 percent increase in the number of full-time undergraduate students. This means more students are concentrating their time and energy on earning an undergraduate degree from Minot State University.

The number of Canadian students and non-Canadian international students has increased, according to first-day numbers.

Graduate students from across the state and region are also showing an increased interest in gaining an education at Minot State. Graduate School enrollment figures rose more than 6 percent.

These numbers may change, as first-day enrollment numbers are not official. Enrollment figures become official after the fourth full week of classes, when they are reported to the North Dakota University System.
