Dedication

Minot State University celebrated its 75th year as an institution and the 1988-89 Beaver staff dedicates this book of memories to the alumni of the past 75 years, including our most recent alumni, the graduates of 1989.

Since the establishment of Minot as a site for a Normal School in 1913, there has been an ongoing effort to create a relationship with the alumni of this institution. The Alumni Center is located in the lower level of Lura Manor, where work is done to ensure a continued correspondence between the institution and its products. As Minot State University continues to grow and to make its impact in North Dakota and the nation in education, so does the Alumni Association.

What began as a social organization that met twice a year at homecoming and at teachers' convention has grown into a full-fledged alumni association operation. There are more than 2,000 active contributors on the Alumni Association list and hundreds of volunteers have continued to serve Minot State University.

What is an Alumni Association? It is a group of graduates and former students banded together in a common cause, that of remembering the institution where they went to school, supporting this institution as it continues to grow, donating their expertise and their resources in seeing that their alma mater continues to maintain its high standards and continues to make an impact on education and the lives of the people in North Dakota and the United States of America.

So, hats off to all the alumni and friends of Minot State University, to the many officers, former board members, past presidents of the Alumni Association, members of the board of Regents and to all individuals who helped in this cause.

As we head into the year 2000, we go in with our heads high. A lot has been accomplished, but much more needs to be done.

"Hail to thee our alma mater, proud and mighty may you stand. We, your grateful sons and daughters, hail to you fairest in the land."

May 1989

Friends,

As we age, we tend to look back in reflection, remembering what we have accomplished and where we've failed. At the same time, we use the past as a pattern for the future; expectations of what is to come are based on what has gone before, for institutions as well as for individuals.

The choice of "Reflections of the Past" as the theme for the 1988-89 Beaver was thus intended to spark an examination of how Minot State University became what it is, as well as to celebrate 75 years of academic excellence. In keeping with the historical theme of this 67th edition of the MSU yearbook, all photographs are black and white, and a sepia-toned ink was used to give the book an older appearance. The bright red cover with its gold foil seal was intended to provide a touch of elegance. In terms of content, as well as providing a look at the events of 1988-89, this year's Beaver also contains a historical look—in words and pictures—at our university.

Those of us who wrote, edited and shot photographs for the 1989 Beaver were aware that this year's book might have been the last MSU yearbook, and we wanted to make it the best ever. The decision by the student body during the year to fund a radio station by increasing the Student Activity Fee ensured the yearbook's continuation beyond this year; our goal of excellence remained firm, however.

The job of a yearbook staff, as we saw it, was more than simply putting a publication together. The task also required that we focus on all the events of the year in all areas that affected MSU's students; we did our best to do that. And we remained aware that the yearbook is not just our publication. It belongs to all members of the Minot State University family; it touches each one of us. We hope the finished product says something about Minot State University and its past, present and future. And we hope as well that you enjoy our vision and our memories of 1988-89 at MSU.

Sincerely,

Carrie Huber

Remember When

From Yesterday's Normal School to Today's University

What started as a Normal School has grown to become our university.

In 1913, waiting for Old Main and the dormitory to be finished, the Normal School was opened in temporary quarters. In 1914, Old Main and Pioneer Hall were occupied.

The enrollment for regular sessions of the first year was 99, with 297 in the summer session. The faculty for the first year consisted of 11 teachers, who worked together to uphold the ideal of "Service First." The curriculum consisted of one- and two-year elementary education programs.

In 1924, the institution's name was changed to Minot State Teachers College and it was given the authority to offer a baccalaureate degree.

In 1947, a Bachelor of Science degree in teaching was offered. The college was also accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools.

By the early 1960s, the college had changed from a teachers college to a comprehensive college. There was more to Minot State College's offerings than teacher education.

As a result, in 1964, the institution's name was changed to Minot State College and at that time it offered its first master's degree, in speech pathology.

After the name change, many new associate and bachelor degrees were offered, as were master's degrees.

In 1980, the Dome was built to provide a year-round facility for all athletic events. Space for racquetball courts and classrooms also became available within the Dome.

The school received its third name change in 1983. Minot State College became Dakota Northwestern University. It was DNU for only a month, then reverted back to Minot State College.

Many changes took place in 1984 to help transform the college into a university. In the Spring of that year, the college changed from divisions to a five-school academic structure, creating the College of Arts and Sciences, the College of Business, the College of Education and Human Services, the College of Nursing, and the Graduate School and Continuing Education.

In 1985, the President's house was moved in order to make room for a new men's dormitory, C.P. Lura Manor. Construction started in the summer of 1985 and was completed in the fall of 1986.

In 1986, Minot State added computers to the College of Business and to the computer science department. A television station was added to the broadcasting department. MSC Community TV was born.

Two name changes took place in the following year. In January 1987, Minot State College became State University of North Dakota-Minot. In April, however, SUND-M became Minot State University, following action by the Legislature. Ninth Avenue was renamed University Avenue.

The late 1980s have seen other changes as well. On the negative side, due to budget cuts, programs had to be eliminated. The marching band was cut in 1987. Intercollegiate gymnastics and baseball had their last seasons in 1988.

Positively, however, a major fund-raiser in connection with the institution's 75th anniversary, Jubilee '88 was kicked off with a good start.

Another change to the campus scene occurred in 1988 when the men's dormitory C.P. Lura Manor went co-ed, a first for the institution.

"Life at MSU has changed considerably," says Garnet Cox, Dean of Students. "The student population has doubled, there are also more outside activities and part-time employment available to students." Enrollment has grown to more than 3,300 and the number of faculty has grown from 11 to over 175.

The student population now includes a considerable number of older students. "They've come back to complete studies previously started, change careers and to have more employment choices in high technology areas," said Cox.

Although times are uncertain and funds not readily available, Minot State University continues to grow and prosper, as it has since 1913.

Building A Future

Rome wasn't built overnight, and neither was Minot State University. It has taken thousands of people 75 years to bring us to where we are today. The school, under its original name of the State Normal School at Minot, was opened September 30, 1913.

Classes were first held in the Armory, as the main building was still under construction. Eleven faculty and 55 students gathered for their first session to learn all they could before going out into the teaching world.

The students could choose one of five courses of study. A one-year rural school course qualified an eighth-grade graduate to teach in the elementary school for two years. A four-year course for eighth-grade graduates and a one-year advanced course for high school graduates earned a two-year certificate renewable for five years, following practice teaching. The highest course of study, a five-year course for eighth-grade graduates or two-year course for high school graduates earned a two-year teaching certificate transferable to a lifetime certificate after nine months of practice teaching.

Tuition was free, and a registration fee of only $5 was good for the entire year. Rooms were $14 a month and an extra $4 covered meals. It was projected that books for the year would be $6. Thus, students in 1913 could expect to spend $1744 during the year.

Arthur G. Crane was the first president of the school. A few years after the school opened, he took a one-year leave of absence to serve in World War I. After the war, he returned to Minot, but soon left to become the president of a normal school in Pennsylvania. He later went on to become the governor of Wyoming. In 1923, when the west wing of Old Main was completed, Crane returned to attend the dedication ceremonies.

As the 1930s rolled around, so did the Great Depression. North Dakota was among the states most affected by the depression, which also had its impact on the school, by then called Minot State Teachers College. By 1934, the college was forced to cut faculty salaries by as much as 40 percent and make living in the dorms mandatory for all faculty members—even those with families. With the help of President Roosevelt's "New Deal," two new buildings came to the campus. They were the president's house, no longer standing, and the Student Union, which was located where the Administration Building now is.

By 1942, the United States was once more at war, and once again, war brought change to the school. This time the Navy V-5 and V-12 programs brought 600 young men to the campus. The school's staff was to help them learn needed information including plane identification, navigation and more.

In 1954, Dr. Casper Lura took over as president of Minot State Teachers College. Along with the new president came more changes. In 1958, a new library was built to replace the small one that had been located in Old Main. Both McCulloch and Crane halls were built in 1960, and the new science building appeared in 1961.

The early 1970s brought two new experimental programs to the school, which had again changed its name, this time to Minot State College. The "New Program" called for an intensive program in the humanities and English, based on a program used at Berkeley, Calif. The "Experimental College" was a controversial Earth Science Teacher program based on highly idealistic assumptions about students' abilities to take responsibility for their own education. The "New Program" ended after two years, and the "Experimental College" was ended only a few years later.

During this time, Gordon A. Olson had been inaugurated into the office of president at MSC, the draft had been stopped and the Vietnam War had ended.

What started out as a small normal school of 55 students has grown today to a comprehensive university with an enrollment of more than 3,300.

And there have been more name changes--three of them. The names Dakota Northwestern University and State University of North Dakota-Minot have come and gone, and the school is now simply Minot State University.

Though many students have passed through the doors, climbed the stairs, and walked the grounds of SNS, MSTC, MSC, DNU, SUND-M and MSU, all have held one stable fact in their hearts. No matter what they encounter, who is in charge or what changes are made, this is still our school.

75 Years of Excellence

And it always will be.

Orlin Backes

In 1958, Orlin Backes graduated from MSU (then Minot State Teachers College) with a Bachelor of Arts degree in history and social science.

Backes' accomplishments are impressive.

He is currently a prominent Minot lawyer and is a partner in the McGee, Hankla, Backes & Wheeler law firm of Minot.

Other achievements include memberships on the MSU Board of Regents, the board of directors of First Western Bank of Minot, the North Dakota Real Estate Commission and the American College of Trial Lawyers. He is also a past president of the Ward County Bar Association, the State Bar Association of North Dakota and of the Minot Chamber of Commerce.

Backes has shown great concern and pride in MSU and was named national chairman of the university's Jubilee '88 fundraising campaign drive.

"The situation (of MSU) presents a challenge for those of us who care about the institution and want to see it grown and flourish," Backes said (Alumni News, May 1988).

What's in a name?

Swain Hall, built in 1952, was named for Carl C. Swain, president of Minot State Teachers College. Swain Hall was the home of the department of physical education, with classrooms, activity space and a 3,000 seat gymnasium.

McCulloch Hall, built in 1960, is a residence hall for 145 women. It provides a study room, lounge, recreation room and cooking and laundry facilities. The building is named after Hazel B. McCulloch, who taught at the college from 1913 to 1959, making her one of MSU's original faculty members.

Franklin Ford

Tradition.

Cyril Moore Hall, built in 1961, was named for Cyril C. Moore, past science faculty member and chairman of the science division. Cyril Moore Hall houses the department of mathematics and computer science and the division of science. It contains classrooms, computer laboratories, science laboratories, Hoffman Auditorium and an observatory with a 16-inch telescope located on the roof.

Memorial Library was built in 1957 as a memorial to the MSU students, alumni and staff who served in World War I, World War II and the Korean Conflict. The campus library houses more than 110,000 volumes in its book and periodical collections, as well as special collections of North Dakota materials.

What's in a name . . .

Elsie Cook Hall was named for Elsie Cook, who was a member of the MSU faculty from the time the State Normal School was established in 1913 until 1953, serving as supervising teacher and principal in the Campus School and an instructor in English. It serves as home for 188 women, providing them with a study lounge, a recreation room, kitchen and laundry facilities.

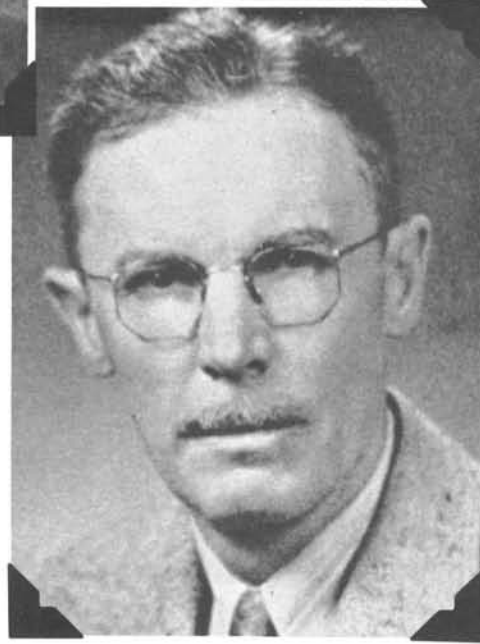

C.P. Lura Manor, the newest campus building, was built in 1986 and is the first co-ed dorm on campus. It houses upper classmen. Lura Manor was named after Casper P. Lura, president of Minot State from 1954 to 1967.

Hartnett Hall, built in 1974, was named for Lester J. Hartnett, who taught at Minot State for 32 years, directed Campus Players for nearly 20 years and started the drama fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega. Hartnett Hall houses the division of music, the college of nursing, administrative offices of the college of arts and sciences and the departments of communication arts and art of the division of humanities. Also located in the building are the Hartnett Hall Theatre, used for lectures and theater productions, and the Hartnett Hall Art Gallery.

Crane Hall was named for Arthur G. Crane, the first president of Minot State. He helped design the campus and its curriculum. He was later the president of the University of Wyoming and governor of the state of Wyoming. Built in 1960, Crane Hall is home to 145 men, providing a lounge, laundry facility and recreation room.

Homecoming '88 started Monday morning with the kickoff breakfast where the king and queen candidates, football team members and cheerleaders were introduced. They all showed themselves at other events throughout the week, making appearances at the Johnny Holm concert, on the KX 13 Noon Show, at coronation, and at the pep rally, parade and football game.

There is always football associated with homecoming. MSU added to that tradition with women's powderpuff flag football. Some of the players from the MSU football team coached and refereed for the teams. They held practices before the actual competition and worked up a few basic plays.

Although there was supposed to be no tackling, there was tough competition, as the teams all had reputations to uphold. As the sun was setting over the MSU football practice field, Leah's Ladies walked away with championship t-shirts, defeating Jeff's Dazzling Diamonds 16-0. This was the Ladies' second year taking the championship. K-Hit radio was even there to announce the game progression between songs!

Johnny Holm made his traditional homecoming appearance. A legs contest, sing-alongs, student solos and popular music hits were featured in his act.

If you felt like having someone make fun of your image, Pete Murphey was on campus drawing caricatures. Monday and Tuesday he entertained crowds by exaggerating people's facial features on paper. Murphey is a free-lance artist from Boston.

The coronation and dance took place Thursday night. Four years ago at the Powers Lake homecoming, Mike Lucy was crowned king. Three years ago at the Grenora homecoming, Bobby Jo Muller was crowned queen. This fall they received the honor of being crowned Minot State University homecoming royalty together.

The Beaver gridders contributed to the homecoming week by dominating their game against Wahpeton 41-10. The game was characterized by good defensive work by the Beavers, who picked off five interceptions and ran three of them in for touchdowns.

During halftime of the game, the first team ever to be inducted into the MSU Hall of Fame, the 1955 MSU basketball team, received its honors. The team's record was 14-2, and it won the North Dakota College Athletic Conference championship over the University of North Dakota. By defeating UND, the '55 Beavers were the first NDCAC member to qualify for the national NAIA tournament.

Concluding the homecoming week was a semi-formal dance at the state fairgrounds in the new beer gardens building. Late arrival was fashionable; the crowd filled the dance floor about 11 p.m. and a local band, Lost Weekend, entertained a full house.

And who is responsible for all these homecoming activities that took students away from their classes and kept them up all night? Could it be—Heidi Berg? Yes, it was. She began the planning process last spring when she was elected homecoming chairperson and started much of the heavy planning in June.

In consideration of the university's 75th anniversary, "Diamonds are a Beavers Best Friend" became the '88 homecoming theme.

King Mike Lucy and Queen Robbi Jo Muller reigned at MSU.

Homecoming king and queen candidates Kip Kohlman, Heidi Berg, Bill Schwan, Vicky Hendershot, Tami Marthuller, Mike Lucy, Bobby Jo Muller, Joey Metzger and Karen Lawrence spoke to their voters.

Sept. 27 and it's now 7 p.m.—"Is there a seat anywhere in the auditorium?"

7:15 p.m.—"As of now seats can no longer be saved." People are kneeling and sitting cross-legged in the center aisle.

Who are these people crowding to see? Not a rock band, but Mike Warnke, a Christian comedian. You say you've never heard of Mike Warnke? Evidently thousands of people have, as Warnke is one of only four comedians to have received the record industry's prestigious platinum album, awarded for outstanding record sales.

About 1,500 students and community members gathered for his appearance at Minot State University, sponsored by the United Campus Ministries. "We ran out of room quickly, but McFarland Auditorium was the only place available when we booked the event," said Donna Marsland, campus minister.

Warnke's appearance—granny glasses, graying shoulder-length hair and a sweater—was anything but typical. "A lot of you older people out there are wondering just who I am and where in the world I came from," Warnke addressed his audience.

"I am a member of a church but also an ordained minister. In fact, I went as far as to get a doctorate of divinity. I have six children, so I am a father.

"That makes me Brother Reverend Doctor Father Warnke. And just 19 months ago my daughter had a baby, making me also Grandpa Warnke. So you older people out there—I'm one of you!"

Warnke soon had the audience howling as he expounded on the rules of being a teenager, playfully poked fun at various religious denominations and gave everyone the cat's-eye view of the family dog.

How did the audience react to Warnke's humor? "I could relate," said Micky Grenier. "I laughed a lot because it was funny, not because everyone else laughed."

Dennis Roberts mentioned he had seen Warnke before. "He was more subdued this time," said Roberts, "but I still enjoyed it and I don't think anyone was offended by the religious humor."

But Warnke isn't just a comedian, he is a Christian and part of his performance involves a religious message. Warnke doesn't preach, but through the subtle use of parable and pantomime and by relating his conversion from a Satanist High Priest to a Christian, Warnke sends a strong Christian message.

The evening ended with the audience joining to sing the pure strains of "Amazing Grace."

....in a Small Town

The sounds of Restless Heart had the crowd jumping when the popular country-rock band performed in concert Nov. 17 at the Minot Municipal Auditorium.

Attendance at the concert, sponsored by the MSU Student Association, wasn't as large as expected. "Only 1,500 tickets were sold," reported S.A. Vice President Mike Anderson. "We lost money on the concert since the band alone cost $25,000 to bring in." The poor attendance, he said, was probably because of basketball tournaments elsewhere in Minot and upcoming final examinations.

But those who were there loved the show. "It was a great concert performance," said Anderson. "The crowd really enjoyed itself."

MSU student Sandi Larson agreed: "Restless Heart was outstanding and stimulating," she said. "I wanted to dance on my chair."

The group's first single, released in January 1985, was entitled Heartache Ridge. Since then, Restless Heart's sound has become a regular offering on the airwaves, and the band was nominated for a Grammy for the hit I'll Be Loving You. To date, the band's biggest hit has been its latest release, The Bluest Eyes In Texas.

The band members have no say in which of their cuts are released as singles, but drummer John Dittrich said at the time of the concert that the group's next single would be Big Dreams in a Small Town, from the album of the same name.

Restless Heart is usually on the road from mid-May through September. The group does about 120 shows a year and tries to play in a wide range of towns and areas. The group's last performance in Minot was as an opening act for Alabama at the 1986 State Fair.

Artful Dodger at MSU

"There are three things that any professional athlete should remember," said baseball great Steve Garvey when he spoke in MSU's McFarland Auditorium Nov. 15.

First, each athlete must be dedicated to trying to find out how good he or she can be in a sport. Then, athletes should also dedicate themselves to education because "it is so vital in teaching you how to think, how to problem-solve."

And last of all, Garvey told his audience, there should come a commitment in life, "because this commitment stems from you finding out how good you can be, how far you can reach. It's important to give 100 percent in whatever you do."

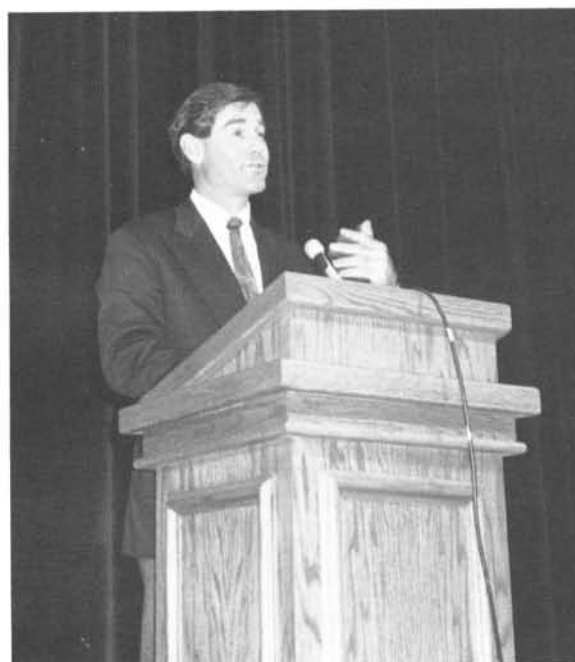

Garvey played a total of 18 seasons in the major leagues--13 for the Los Angeles Dodgers and five for the San Diego Padres. He played in ten All-Star games, five National League Championship Series and five World Series. He was the Most Valuable Player in the National League in 1974 and in the All-Star game in 1974 and 1978. His career batting average was .295.

During his career, Garvey played in 1,207 consecutive games, which is a National League record and third all-time, behind the streaks of American Leaguers Everett Scott (1,307) and Lou Gehrig (2,130).

Garvey retired after the 1987 season because of a shoulder injury that had kept him out of action most of the previous season.

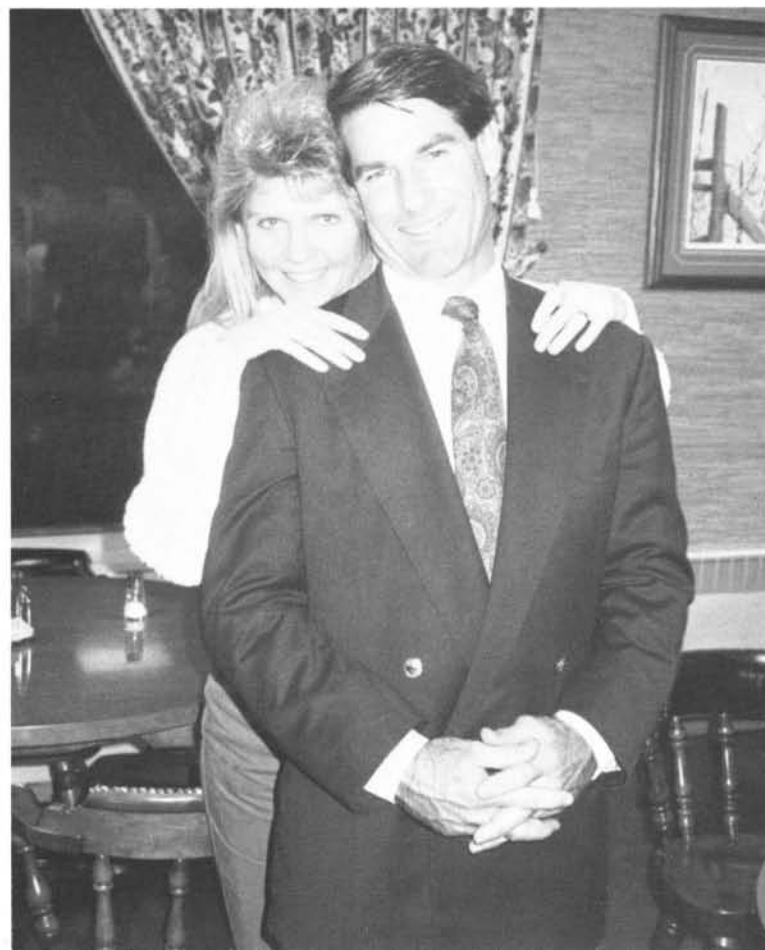

Garvey said his purpose in traveling and speaking to college groups is that he enjoys sharing thoughts, ideas and experiences he's had with other people. He says "It is very important for those that have had the opportunity to be successful" to give back to the society they live in.

Winter Week

The week of Jan. 30 with its record breaking cold temperatures, was truly a "winter week."

The Student Association (S.A.) sponsored Winter Week and scheduled various activities for Minot State University students. "The activities were put on to ward away winter dullness," said Melissa Lunday, S.A. dance governor.

A Hawaiian pizza party and dance took place Thursday. "About 400 people attended the party and dance," said Lunday. "Everyone enjoyed the free pizza and the Hawaiian leis."

Due to the act of God, cold weather canceled the semi-formal dance with "Tourist," which was to be held as a grand finale to the week on Saturday at the Sheraton.

A ski trip to Bottineau was also postponed to the following weekend, when the temperatures climbed slightly. "The ski trip went over well, with nearly 30 in attendance," said Lunday.

AIDS Awareness was also sponsored by the S.A. during winter week. "AIDS awareness is new," said Lunday. "Students do benefit from this. We have to be aware of AIDS before it affects us here in Minot."

Elaine Bostow, First District Health Unit nurse, presented a video and spoke about AIDS. AIDS awareness packets were distributed on Monday in dorm mailboxes and from a booth on the first floor of the Student Union. The remaining packets were distributed Tuesday through Friday in the campus bookstore.

Spring Breakout '89

Carmel Weinrauch was under the Magic Waun's spell.

Students did the bunny-hop during the Bob and the Beachcombers concert.

Spring Breakout, which meant another school year would soon end, began with a co-ed volleyball tournament in Swain Hall on May 1. Twelve teams competed in the tournament, and a group of MSU students from Hazen won the first-place prize of $50.

Tuesday, a caricaturist drew students' exaggerated portraits free of charge in the Student Union. The demand was high, and he will likely return again in the fall during Homecoming, said Melissa Lunday of the Student Association. Later that evening, the ballroom was packed for the always popular hypnotist, the Magic Waun, with free ice cream floats before the show.

Wednesday was "Beach Day" with Bob and the Beachcombers jamming to some old favorite beach tunes on the lawn. A crowd that surpassed last year's attendance enjoyed a free lunch provided by the S.A. and some good music. The band took time out for limbo and hula-hoop contests with a few lucky students receiving leis.

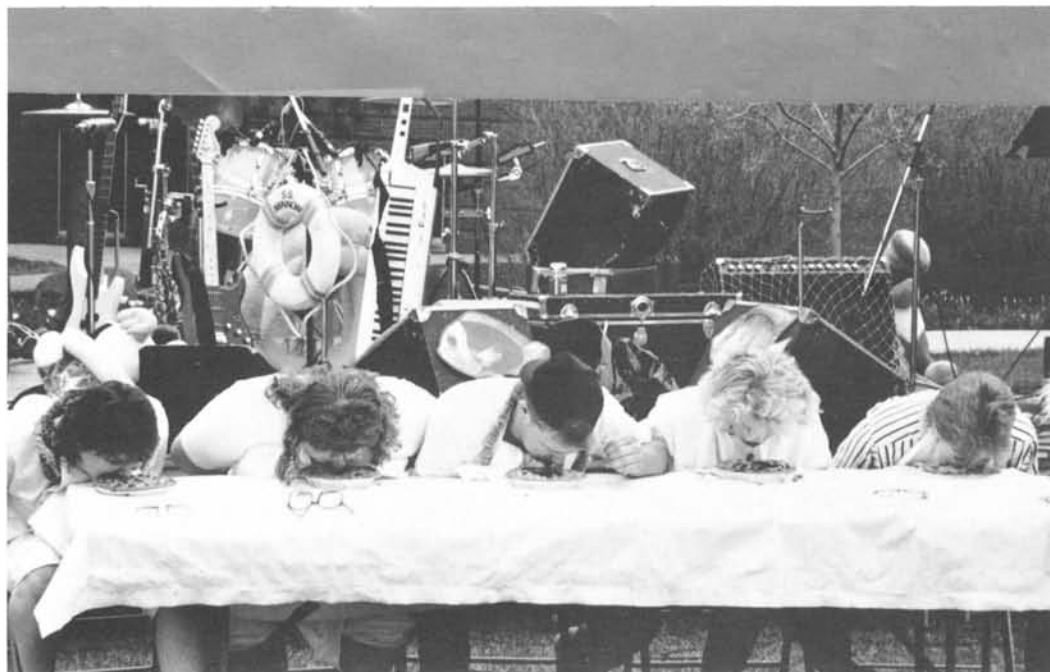

Thursday, the week's events continued with a fashion show during lunch hour in the Student Union. Thursday also brought what turned out to be the biggest event of the week, the performance of the comedy team of Williams and Ree. Also known as the "Indian and the white guy," they performed an excellent show to a full crowd. Approximately 150 people had to be turned away from the door, as an unexpected number arrived and the ballroom was filled to the maximum capacity according to fire codes.

Following the show was the first annual Lip Sync contest. The competition was tough, as four groups and two individuals competed. The "Lura Loads" collected the $50 first-place prize.

Friday, the final day of Spring Breakout ended with a semi-formal dance at the Holiday Inn. The dance floor was packed to the sounds of the Tourists.

Clockwise from above: Students indulged in the Breakout pie-eating contest. Williams and Ree entertained a full-house in the Student Union ballroom. The hula-hoop contest was a big hit. Phil Plush and Will Dowdell competed in the first annual Breakout lip sync contest.

College of Nursing Marks 20 Years of Education

In the 20 years of its existence, the Minot State University College of Nursing has gone from a broom closet to the west wing of Hartnett Hall.

In April 1969, the Mouse River was flooding in Minot. Richard Nixon was president. The Beatles were still playing together. And on April 13, the North Dakota Legislature passed House Concurrent Resolution No. 13, authorizing the establishment of a Bachelor of Science in Nursing program at what was then Minot State College.

There was no financial authorization, however, so private local money was used for 18 months for the director's salary. That first director was Sister Mabel Meng. Bonnie Farhart, now an assistant professor of nursing, was a friend of Meng's, and remembers her "commitment to the concept of a four-year baccalaureate nursing program for Minot."

Meng was on the North Dakota Joint Committee on Nursing Needs and Resources, which sent a recommendation to the North Dakota Board of Higher Education to establish a baccalaureate nursing education program at what was then Minot State College. She and Marita Hoffart, also a current assistant professor of nursing, made numerous trips to Bismarck to testify on behalf of the proposed program. Before the establishment of the Minot State nursing program, Meng was director of the Sisters of St. Francis School of Nursing in Minot, which offered a three-year program. But Meng "saw the need for baccalaureate education," because more and more young men and women preferred a degree. Programs that did not offer degrees were also experiencing difficulty in obtaining qualified faculty because those who were qualified preferred teaching in baccalaureate programs. Meng cited the fact that Minot had clinical facilities where students of a nursing program could gain "hands-on" experience. Sisters of St. Francis School was phased out, and new applicants were referred to MSC.

The original nursing division office was in Cyril Moore Hall; the office had refrigerators, tables, another faculty member and a secretary. Next stop was a small "broom closet" office near Moore's main entrance.

The first class graduated in 1973. Linda Pettersen, now an assistant professor of nursing, was a member of that class. She remembers those years and sees differences between then and now: "There's more content to learn now," she said, "but the need for clinical experience remains crucial to education. Goals are the same," she continued, "with patients' needs kept foremost in mind; maximum attainable goals are always personally strived for."

The commitment may remain the same after 20 years, but some things have changed, notably in the areas of health-care costs and the emergence of home health and advanced technology.

"In the area of technology," Pettersen said, "computers are becoming important aspects in health care. Computer literacy will be necessary, since hospitals are moving toward the use of computers for care plans." And teaching tools, methods and appearances are different, too. "In the days of the first nursing class," Pettersen remembered, "we didn't have a well-developed lab with mannequins as we do now. Students then didn't start IV's, but now junior student nurses do."

"Nursing caps were difficult to keep on our heads because hairdos were full, ratted, bouffant styles." Today's nursing students don't wear caps.

Following Meng's resignation, Francis F. Svec was Director of Nursing from 1975 to 1979. In 1976, the nursing program moved to the West Wing of Hartnett Hall, and 1979 saw the nursing program designated as the Division of Nursing and Health Professions. In 1981, the title was changed to the Division of Nursing and Health Management Sciences.

Valeda C. Fabricius joined the nursing program as division chair in 1982. The designation as School of Nursing and Health Management Sciences, with Fabricius as its dean, came in July 1984, and in May 1987, the division became Minot State remains crucial'*

University's College of Nursing.

The college's current goals are "many," said Fabricius. Following re-accreditation in the fall, "time and energy will be devoted to continuing education for nurses in the northwest North Dakota area and to provide for rapid transition for Licensed Practical Nurses." Planning for the conversion to the semester system—a change slated for 1992—will also begin.

Through the 1988 school year, a total of 380 nurses had graduated from MSU; the Class of '89, Fabricius said during the 1988-89 year, included the college's 400th graduate.

Who Needs Cheerleaders?

We Cheer

Can you drive a car without gas? Can you not study for a test and still expect to get an A? Can you go to either a football game or basketball game and not have cheerleaders? Of course not!

The cheerleaders at Minot State University were a unique and diversified group of young women. Many of them were involved in other aspects of campus life and were on the President's Honor Roll and the National Honor Society, said Hermelle Wilson, adviser.

To become cheerleaders, these women went through tryouts, floor cheers and dance routines. "They have to be physically fit and flexible, energetic, have body coordination, rhythm and most of all, patience !" said Wilson.

As cheerleaders, they had many responsibilities. They worked to boost the teams' spirits and morale and to fire up the spectators. The cheerleaders took on the tasks of making all the posters, decorating each locker in the men's locker room and making cookies, bars, popcorn balls and other treats for each game. They also decorated the buses for their teams' away games.

The cheerleaders this year also sold picture-buttons of each team member to fans as a way of spreading spirit.

To be cheerleaders took a lot of time and practice. The squad practiced on the average for one-and-one-half hours daily, making up new routines —and they sure got a workout doing this! They also worked on special dance features, such as dance routines to "Mony, Mony" and "Twist & Shout," which were performed at halftimes and at pep rallies.

"I want my cheerleaders to excite the crowd and cheer, not perform gymnastic moves," said Wilson, who has been cheerleading adviser for 10 years. "So I have them dance instead. Before the NAIA came out with rules and regulations for mounts and pyramids, I had my own rules. Because of this, not one of the girls has had a serious injury."

The cheerleaders enjoyed their jobs as spirit promoters. "The biggest rewards you get from being a cheerleader are the appreciation and response you get from the players," said cheerleader Janet Grindy.

"Cheerleading has been one of the most enjoyable experiences that I have had in college," said cheerleader Wendy Behm.

Wilson said the best part of cheerleading is "I'll always be young, because I'll always be a cheerleader."

National Geographic Guided Tour

In November 1988, Minot State University had the distinction of hosting "one of the most famous anthropologists of modern times," according to Lee Ellis, professor of sociology at MSU.

Napoleon Chagnon, professor of anthropology at the University of California, Santa Barbara, has a list of credentials and awards that fills pages, as well as being the author of a number of articles, books, chapters in books and book reviews.

It was Ellis' request that Chagnon contribute a chapter to a book he is preparing for publication that led to Chagnon's appearance at MSU.

Chagnon has spent summer months of the past 25 years in South America living among a primitive people called the Yanomamo.

The noted anthropologist treated his audience at MSU to a "National Geographic guided tour" of the area along the Amazon Basin, bordering Venezuela and Brazil, where the primitives, some of whom have never been contacted, live.

A slide presentation introduced the audience to the tropical forest farmers who live lives of aggression and warfare.

The Yanomamo are known largely through Chagnon's book, Yanomamo: The Fierce People.

First identified by explorers in the 19th century, the Yanomamo Indians, at 20,000 strong, are the largest remaining primitive group in the Americas. Little was known of them before Chagnon started his research. Chagnon dubbed them the "Fierce People" because of their chronic and sometimes deadly feuds with each other.

"I'm alarmed and distressed by what I see in the Yanomamo. . . their entire culture is breaking down," said Chagnon. Civilization is moving in on the imperilled people, largely due to the discovery of an eldorado of riches (gold, diamonds, uranium, tin) in the heart of their region.

With thousands of miners and prospectors entering the region have come fatal diseases which have already wiped out whole villages.

Now, according to anthropologists who have studied the Indians, and Roman primitive society.'

—Napoleon

Catholic missionaries who have worked for decades to protect them from the worst effects of Western civilization, the end of their existence as a people may be near. (Washington Post, April 4, 1988).

What lies ahead for the Yanomamo? As the tropical rain forest shrinks due to economic exploitation, Chagnon is prepared to continue the struggle to preserve native cultures.

"There is so much to learn from the Yanomamo about the nature of primitive society," said Chagnon, "mainly because they are one of the last, large, relatively unacculturated tribes left in the world." (Daily Nexus, Jan. 20, 1988).

Changing of the Seasons

Fall Quarter. . . Winter
Registration. . . Spring Break. . .
Summer Vacation. . .

Trudging through a pile of crisp leaves that crunch beneath your shoes as you plod onward to Old Main; running past Hartnett Hall in a futile effort to avoid boxelder bugs. These were sure signs that the academic year was once again in full swing at Minot State University.

There were others: the beaver doing push-ups at football games; club members working frantically into the wee hours of the morning covering that last bit of chicken wire on the float for the homecoming parade. Fall brought the promise of new beginnings.

But the wind grew raw, and jean jackets gave way to wool coats and parkas. The distant winter sun reflected off ice crystals glistening in the air, and frost on the trees turned our campus into a living Christmas card. People trotted briskly past Memorial Library on their way to classes, counting the days until spring break, dreaming of warm sands and tropical breezes as they dipped their heads and leaned into the wind . . . and waited . . . waited . . . waited for spring.

New classes began—a final chance to bring up your grade point average for the year. Slowly, the ice and snow receded, leaving lakes on the sidewalks that always managed to find a way through your shoes and soak your socks.

Weather played with you, warming up enough that you dug out the t-shirts and sandals and packed away the bulky sweaters. Then came wet snow.

But finally the sidewalks dried and the weather stayed warm. Dave Connor moved his German classes outdoors, and arias wafted gently from the second floor windows of Old Main. More ice cream bars were sold in the Student Union and the bookstore had a run of students getting measured for graduation gowns.

Life on campus revolved around the seasons, which lent security and stability to students as they created memories.

To explain this picture is difficult; there's no real significance to it. I started it out as an apartment side building with an electricity outlet—the electricity is the pure white space on the right/turning to pure imagination. There are different characters—nothing I got from anywhere but my mind. This picture is just simply the playful part of my imagination captured.

From French farce to existential cynicism, this year's three dramatic offerings of the MSU communications arts department covered a broad range of theater. The range was no accident, said Kevin Neuharth, chairman of the department.

The season began with fall quarter's production of Tartuffe, a farce by Moliere. The play fell into what Neuharth called "a style play" while the winter quarter production, Adam vs. Eve, was one that Neuharth termed a traditional play, with recognizable and predictable roles, lines and characters.

Adam vs. Eve was notable as well because it was written by Conrad Davidson, MSU assistant professor of communication arts.

The spring quarter offering brought MSU theater-goers a third type of dramatic offering: The Bald Soprano and The Chairs, by existential playwright Eugene Ionesco.

Attendance at theater events was higher this year than the year before, Neuharth said. About 45 percent of this year's audiences were MSU students and faculty, compared to only 25 percent during the 1987-88 academic year. The increase in campus interest, Neuharth said, brought faculty and student attendance levels back to where they had been for several years. The drop during the 1987-88 year, he said, was a "fluke."

Theater activities continued on into the summer with the annual productions of the MSU Summer Theater, which performs at the Amphitheatre (north of the Dome).

MSU Celebrated North Dakota's Centennial

The North Dakota Centennial officially began November 2, 1988. Various activities were planned across the state, as everyone got in on the celebration.

Minot State University kicked it off with the North Dakota Statehood Symposium. The symposium was in Hartnett Hall and open to the public. It featured a panel of seven MSU faculty members and was moderated by Clark Markell, chair of the division of science. Markell; Judy Greenwood, the university's coordinator of centennial events, and Donald Wharton, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, planned the event.

November 6 thru December 16, 1988, Bacon Signs of North Dakota held an exhibition in Hartnett Hall. Showing were the old and the new, from painted to neon signs.

In January, Prairie Empire was presented in Hartnett Hall. The exhibition displayed photographs by Minot Daily News photographers from over the years.

To close out the Centennial celebration, two final exhibitions will be hosted in the fall. Scheduled for September and October is a "Country Fair." The country fair will consist of domestic art, and will be curated by Floyd Fairweather, associate professor of English and humanities. In November a postcard art show "The Future of North Dakota: Mail Art Show," will appear in Hartnett Hall.

Of the activities and events in celebration across the state, the biggest was the arrival of the President of the United States. President George Bush came to North Dakota on April 25 and planted a Centennial Bur Oak that is an offspring of a tree planted by former President John Quincy Adams. The tree came from the lawn of the White House. President Bush also brought an American Elm to plant. This was to mark the plans to plant 100 million trees in N.D. in the next ten years.

Recitals, concerts: Excellence pursued

Bruce Thornton, conductor and adviser, played the saxophone in one of the numbers performed at the fall concert.

All Minot State University music majors were required to present a full Senior Recital. This requirement was applied in conjunction with other requirements for graduation.

The purpose of the recital requirement was to provide an opportunity for performance with an audience. It allowed the students to show their talent as well as gain experience in public performance.

Juniors were permitted to perform recitals, but it was an option that served only as experience and filled no requirement—sort of a trial run for the graded Senior Recital.

The students practiced long and hard to perfect chosen pieces to entertain others with their gift of instrumental or vocal talent.

Music recitals were scheduled throughout the year in McFarland Auditorium and were open to the public.

Tracey Mehrer

The Minot State University vocal and instrumental groups presented several concerts throughout the year. The first concert presented in the fall was a special one, as it introduced the year's musical talent and the holiday season.

The City Lights, Choraleers and Concert Choir gave their fall concert November 8 in McFarland Auditorium.

The City Lights, MSU's jazz choir, began the evening with a mixture of Gershwin and Christmas songs.

The women's chorus, now dubbed the Choraleers, performed four numbers. Director Sandra Starr introduced each song, giving a bit of background about its composer.

The Concert Choir, directed by Gary Walth, titled its section of the concert "Music to Begin the Holiday Season." Walth said he wanted the choir to be the first group to present Christmas this year.

Musical selections ranged from Bach's "Magnificat" to the spiritual "Mary's Little Boy Child."

The highlight of the evening was a medley of German Christmas carols translated and arranged by Walth. The carols were accompanied by piano and hand bells. The bells were a wonderful complement to the medley, ringing joyfully through the auditorium.

The Concert Choir later produced an album "Christmas With the Minot State University Concert Choir," which included the carols presented at the fall performance.

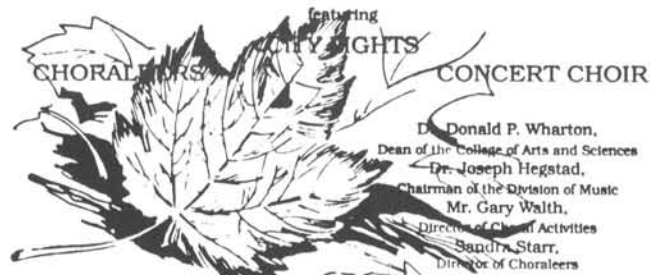

The concert ended with a rousing rendition of "We Wish You a Merry Christmas."

Good Times, Great Fun . . . With

The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship has been a non-denominational student-run group on the Minot State University campus for 34 years, and has grown to include more than 30 active members, a resource person and officers.

The IVCF started informally in the spring of 1955 when a group of students decided to get together for Bible study.

During December 1955, national representatives of the IVCF assisted MSU students in writing a constitution for the group. This was the first time that the group formally met. The IVCF was recognized June 29, 1956, as an active organization at the Minot State Teacher's College (now Minot State University).

Carla Rodin was the club's president this year. "Belonging to IVCF is important to me," she said. "It's a good group to help a person grow in their Christian walk, whether it would be from the fun activities or from studying the Bible. The IVCF tries to relieve the pressures of college by helping students reach out to one another and help you with your spiritual needs."

Meeting spiritual needs in a fun environment was the goal of the IVCF. The large group met Tuesday evenings when speakers, skits, special music or other activities were scheduled. The IVCF also had small group Bible study during the week.

The club sponsored ice-skating parties, annual spring picnics, weekend workshops, hayrides and other activities for its members. As a group, the members attended a religious concert by Acapella at the state-fairgrounds in September. Also in September, the IVCF group went to Christian comedian Mike Warnke's performance on campus.

The IVCF attended several retreats throughout the year. In the fall, members traveled to Moorhead, Minn., for the Bible and Life retreat. For a winter retreat, members went to Break Away in Bemidji, Minn. These retreats allowed members of the group to meet members of IVCF groups and other students from other universities as they gathered to share God's word.

The IVCF had bake sales, car washes and bowl-a-thons in order to raise funds to cover the cost of transportation to retreats, costs for speakers, films and other group activities. Members took part in Slave Week as their biggest fund raiser of the year. The group members were "sold" to do various odd jobs for Minot church members.

Right: These MSU students have waited a long time for this day to arrive.

Five hundred ninety-seven Minot State University students became alumni on Friday, May 19, and a record 645 degrees were awarded. The commencement ceremony took place in the University Dome at 10 a.m. and was followed by a reception luncheon in the Student Union.

The Rev. Blaine Cook was the commencement speaker. Tempus fugit was the theme of his speech. The phrase is ancient Latin and means "time flies," he said. He told of a story from his own boyhood, relating it to how time has flown for the graduating students and for MSU. "Tempus fugit: time does indeed fly," he said. "But this is not an end; it's a new beginning."

Cook is retiring this year from Bishop Ryan High School, Minot. He became the first superintendent and administrator of Bishop Ryan High School in 1958 and served in that capacity until 1970. He returned to the high school in 1987. He served for a short time at MSU's Newman Center.

Along with the graduating students, two retiring MSU professors were honored at the ceremony. Harold Aleshire, associate professor of humanities and English, has been a part of the MSU faculty for 33 years. He came to MSU in 1956. Henry DuGarm, professor of history and social science, has served MSU for 25 years. He came to MSU in 1964. He plans to write full-time after retirement.

The C.P. Lura Award for Distinguished Service to Education was awarded during commencement to Hardy Lieberg and Evan Lips.

Lieberg has been the director of alumni affairs since 1978-79, established and developed a comprehensive alumni program, including an extensive alumni records system.

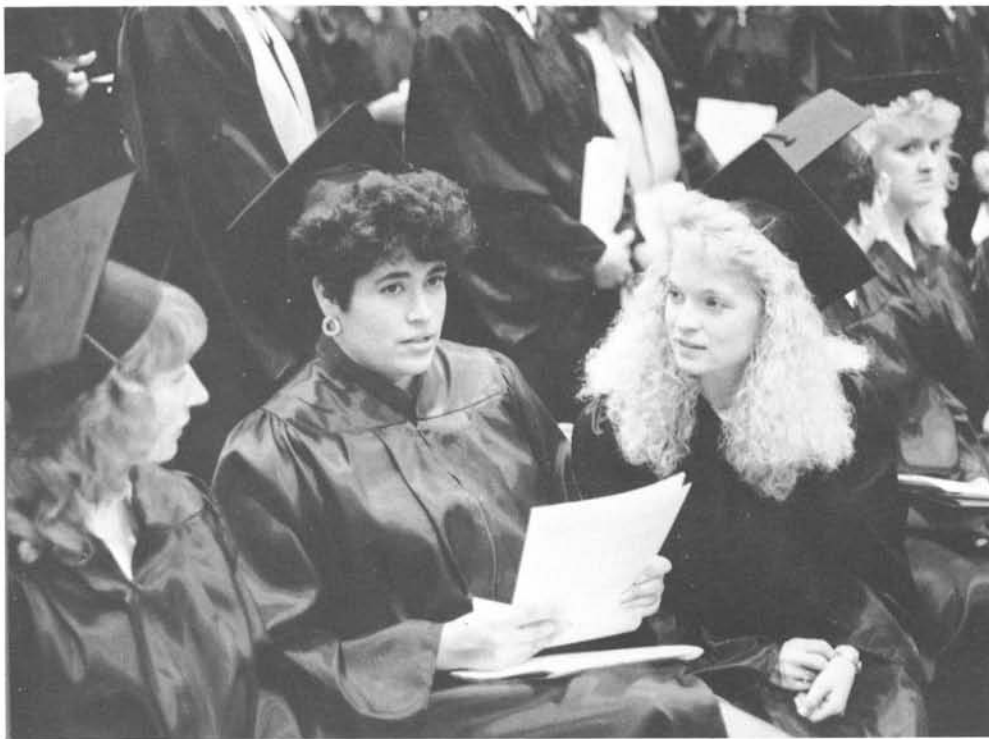

Lips, a member of the North Dakota Senate since 1960, has served on the Senate Appropriations Committee since 1971. For seven sessions, Lips served as chairman of the committee. He also served as majority leader in the Senate for the Republican Party during the 1967 session.

The C.P. Lura award is named for Casper P. Lura, MSU's fifth president. It is the highest award bestowed by the university.

The Minot State University men's cross country team was able to obtain enough points for a conference victory this season, outrunning contender Valley City State University by one point. It was the first time since 1974 that the MSU team had taken first place in the North Dakota College Athletic Conference.

From there, the team went on to district competition, where it placed third.

Although the team was unable to participate in the National Athletic Intercollegiate Association National Meet, one team member, Jarrett Baker, qualified for the national meet. "Baker was unable to compete because of injuries," said coach Wiley Wilson.

While the sport was one of individual competition, the members worked as a team and teamwork became their theme. "We won the conference as a team," said Baker. The team members even got a team look; they visited the barber shop together and came out with spiked cuts, crew cuts and flat tops.

"In past years there were always a few team members that worked hard and did well," said Wilson. "This year there was good leadership on the team and they all worked hard, which made for a good team."

A typical week for the season included: Monday, a hard eight to ten miles; Tuesday, mile intervals; Wednesday, hill workouts; Thursday, pace-changing workout; and meets were scheduled for Fridays and Saturdays. Many of the team members also ran on their own each morning.

This year the Minot State University women's cross country team had only two members: junior Carla Rodin and freshman Marsha Streitiz .

Coach Wiley Wilson said that having only two women on the team was a problem because they were unable to compete in team competitions; five women are required for a team.

Wilson said he was impressed with the women's individual accomplishments. "Both of them improved all year," he said.

"Rodin ran strong throughout most of the season," said Wilson. She battled bronchitis conditions in the All-Conference meet and dropped out. In district competition she took 13th place out of 46 finishers, in the midst of a continuing battle with a bronchitis condition.

Streitiz defeated 25 of her 76 competitors during the season. she came on strong late in the season and performed at her strongest in the All-Conference Meet, according to Wilson. She took 14th place out of 31 competitors. In district competition, she took 18th place. "This being her first year to run competitively," said Wilson, "she did quite well."

Minot State University's golf team placed second in both the conference and district this year. Of the three meets won by the team, Coach Dick Limke said that the MSU golfers performed their best in the Jamestown Invitational meet.

Chuck Kranz, a sophomore from Underwood, was the outstanding MSU golfer this year, according to Limke. Kranz was named the season's medalist in the NDCAC. David Eide should also be recognized, said Limke: "He was an improved golfer and played with great consistency.

"Experience was one of our greatest strengths this year," said Limke. The team will have experience next season as well, as the team won't lose any members to graduation.

New coach hopes for increased participation in the coming seasons

The Minot State University volleyball team compiled a record of seven victories and 24 losses.

With 12 women on the team, Coach Terry Voiles had just enough young Beaver volleyball players for a full squad.

The lone senior this year was Lesley Olson. "She was our strongest attacker and hitter," said Voiles. "We'll certainly miss her for next year." Though the team lacked in numbers and experience, the members played consistently, said Voiles.

This was Voiles' first year at MSU and his first time coaching volleyball. "It was a new experience because I have never coached volleyball before," he said. "My primary goal here is to get the numbers back up and increase participation in the sport."

One of Coach Voiles' most memorable matches of the season was with Valley City. "Valley City was the dominant team this year, and even though we lost, we took them to five games, which was an accomplishment," he said.

Voiles' view of the season was positive. "It was very enjoyable to work with a fantastic group of girls that went out and played to have fun," he said.

The coach was already looking forward to next year. "On the positive side, most of the players will return and the team will gain freshmen and transfer students for next season," he said.

The team members planning to return have begun an off-season self-conditioning program on their own in preparation for next year's challenges.

Football

The 1988 Minot State University football team ended its season with an overall record of 6-3, and statistically it had the best defense in the conference.

The outstanding characteristics of the 1988 football team, according to Coach Randy Hedberg, were enthusiasm and a good attitude. "This fine group of athletes has been very fun to coach," he said. "They have been enthusiastic and they have a good attitude, which is half the battle."

There were a lot of freshman and sophomores on the team this year. "I was especially impressed by how extremely hard they worked to get better," said Hedberg. Six of those freshman players started consistently, including quarterback Chad McNally.

Hedberg said he felt pride and satisfaction about the 1988 season. In looking ahead, he said, "We have a good nucleus returning for '89, and we're really looking forward to it." Marsha Leeson

The Minot State University women's basketball team had a season record of 12 victories and 12 losses. The team won three and lost seven conference games for fourth place in the NDCAC.

"The women's basketball team represented themselves, Minot State and the community of Minot in tremendous fashion," said coach Terry Voiles.

Voiles said he thought that the team worked well together, even though it was a young team. Kim Crest was the only senior on the team, and the younger members looked to her for leadership on the court. Crest was often the leading scorer for MSU and contributed to the team's games in many other positive ways throughout the season.

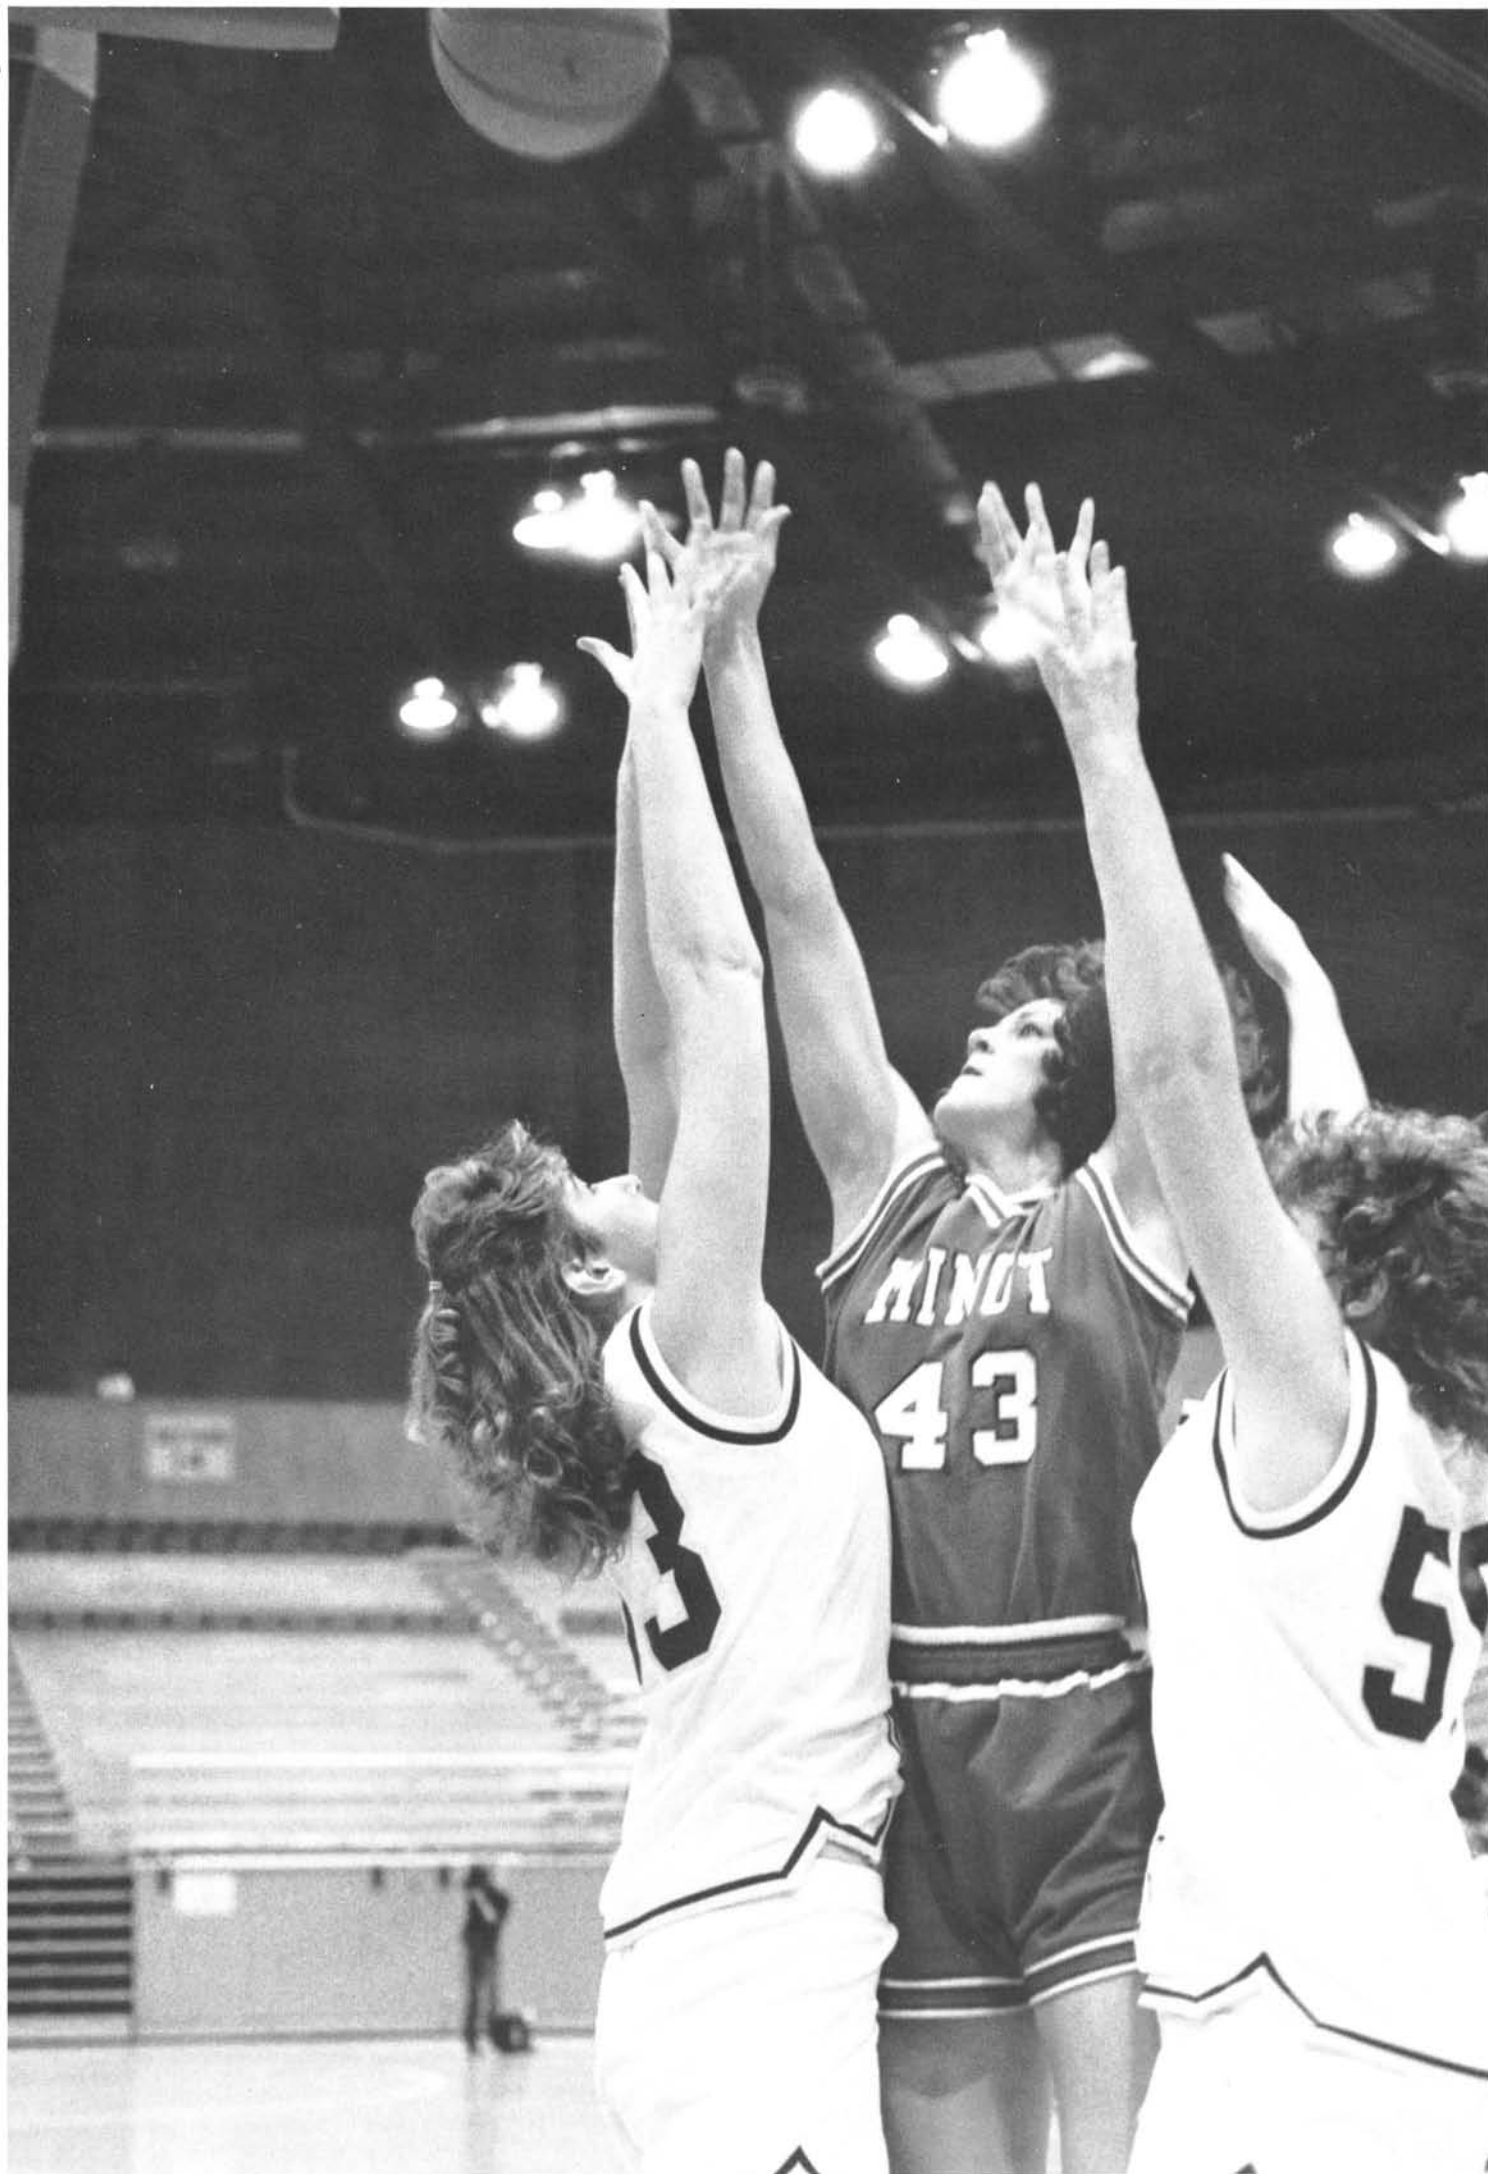

Voiles joined the staff at MSU in the 1988-89 year, and coached the women's team for the first time. His previous coaching experience is in men's basketball. "I had no difficulty with the transition, because coaching is a people-oriented business," he said. "And I had a nice group of young ladies to work with, which made my job much easier.

"I am pleased with my first season here and I appreciate the attendance and support of the community and the school."

NDCAC Champions

The Minot State University men's basketball team finished the 1988-89 season as NDCAC champions with an overall record of 17 victories and 9 losses. The team had nine victories and three losses in the conference.

"It was a great year for the men's basketball team and the university should be very pleased with the accomplishments and success of the Beavers," said Coach Dick Limke.

A big part of success is often support. MSU crowds provided "the best fan support in the conference," said Limke. "Overall, the support and accomplishments of the whole season should be commended and rewarded."

Named to the All Conference NDCAC team were players Chris Lamoureux, John Schaffer and Kevin Bohl. Lamoureux was also named All District.

There were four seniors on this year's team, but Limke is not overly concerned about the future. "We will be losing a lot of talent," he said, "but there is a lot of talent waiting to get on the floor."

Wrestling

Of the 11 Minot State wrestlers this season, only one, Pat Thomas, was a veteran to the team.

The youth and inexperience of the team may explain its dual record of 2-6. Coach Dean Bachmeier said he felt the record was satisfactory. The team placed fourth in the conference, third in the district and was in the top 20 at the national level.

"The last three tournaments of the season were the most important, and that is where the Beavers peaked," said Bachmeier.

As a season finale, five MSU wrestlers competed in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Wrestling Tournament. Steve Lipp, wrestling in the 126-pound weight class, and Pat Thomas, wrestling at 118, placed sixth in the nation and achieved All-America status. This was the first time in 14 years that an MSU wrestler had received this honor.

"The Beavers ended their season on a positive note and can be extremely proud of their accomplishments," Bachmeier said.

The MSU most valuable wrestler award went to Lipp, with a season record of 32-7.

"I am proud of all of them," said Wilson. "We may have been short-handed in numbers, but what we had was quality.

"I'm especially pleased with Mike Toy's performance," he said. Toy, a junior, competed in the national tournament in the 800-meter run and placed fourth with a time of 1:51.46, making him All-American. His time was a new school record in that event.

Also competing in the national tournament were sophomore Greg Boos and freshman Lenny Rodin in the javelin throw.

Howell and junior Sara Tufton competed in the national tournament in Azusa, Calif. Howell competed in the high jump and Tufton competed in the 100- and 200-meter dashes. Howell placed ninth with a jump of 5'6".

Individual contributions were the key to success for this year's men's indoor track team. Coach Wiley Wilson said the outstanding team members were Mike Toy and Mike Larson. "They were certainly two of our highlights," he said.

"Mike Toy has matured into a very outstanding half-miler and miler for us," said Wilson. Toy was the conference champion in the 1500 meters—the metric mile—and was narrowly defeated in the 800-meter.

Among the difficulties the team encountered this year, Wilson noted, were "lack of depth, injury and academic ineligibility." Nevertheless, the indoor season accomplished what it was intended to do. "The indoor season is preparation for the outdoor season, which is much more important to us," he said.

"We felt pretty happy with our fourth-place finish in the conference," Wilson said, but he added he has hopes of improving upon this season's record next year: "We need to recruit some seniors out of high school to add depth to what we do have."

Women's track coach Wiley Wilson said his goal this season was to develop his team members into the best they could be.

Wilson said he felt he had a very talented group of juniors and seniors who developed their skills well enough to be leading scorers. "Everyone made a contribution to the team," he said, "but some really had the ability to score points at our meets. We have a major task ahead of us for next season to replace our six graduating seniors.

"We also have some freshmen out that appear in years to come will be important to the program," he said. He said he was not disappointed in their performance this year, though. "They're developing," he said. "Freshmen generally need a year to get going."

The team took second place in the conference. "It was a solid finish," said Wilson. "We were well behind the conference champions, Jamestown, but we sat in second by ourselves. We are a good track team, but we just couldn't cope with the numbers and talent that Jamestown assembled."

Student Clubs

Student Clubs, Groups, Organizations

Campus organizations have become as varied as the individual students involved. Student organizations have grown to include musical, religious, sports and political groups, sororities and fraternities, and those concentrating on areas of major study. Campus living quarters and special groups such as the Students Older than Average and Vet's Club were also represented.

For organizations to be recognized by the university and be included in the annual, they are required to have a constitution and by-laws. Approval for recognition was dependent on the Student Welfare and University Affairs Committee. Once the constitution and by-laws have been accepted, the organization is recognized as being affiliated with the university.

Currently, there are 41 organizations, including 9 musical groups and 16 sporting organizations.

"The Computer Science Club's main purpose is to provide a place where people can share computer ideas and to promote computing on campus," said Larry Atwood, adviser. To become a member, one was only required to have an interest in computers.

Some of the club's activities included attending state-wide contests, hosting seminars and conducting an annual contest for high school students interested in using their computer knowledge and skills to win a computer or other prizes.

The club also provided the students with a service by selling disks and disk holders at a reasonable price.

Established in 1933, the Alpha Psi Omega was one of the oldest national fraternities on the Minot State University campus this year.

The goals of the club were to promote theater and its excellence. To become a member of the theater club, one was required to earn merit points by participating in productions. After receiving these points, the prospective members were invited to join the fraternity and go through induction services.

The club participated in theater and speech workshops throughout the year and attended the Region 5 American College Theatre Festival in Vermillion, S.D.

Alpha Psi Sigma at Minot State University is an honor society for criminal justice students. The club has national affiliation, and membership requires a high grade point average.

The group made money through bake sales and raffles. Perhaps more fitting for criminal justice students, they also raised money by providing security for the Norsk Hostfest and the Minot Americans Hockey Team home games.

Group funds were used to attend conferences and take various trips throughout the year.

Faculty members from each of the four colleges of MSU nominate students they believe would make good representatives of their divisions. Once nominated, these students are invited to submit an application, and a committee then selects members to the Ambassador's Club.

Art Club

"The purpose of the Art Club is for the members to share their appreciation for art and also to get an idea of the business side of art," said Lurlynn Franklin, president of the club.

The club sold picture frames along with artwork at a Christmas art sale in Hartnett Hall as a fundraising event for the club. The club members assembled the frames, which were donated by ArtMain of Minot. "I hope to see the Christmas sale become a tradition where students and faculty will do their Christmas shopping," said Judy Greenwood, adviser.

Beaver Yearbook

This is the 67th volume of the Beaver yearbook. The yearbook was produced by Minot State University students throughout the year and was distributed during the following fall registration to all students who attended the previous fall, winter and spring quarters. The book was paid for by a portion of all student activity fees.

It was designed and laid out by the student editors, selected by the Board of Student Media. Students who signed up for Journalism 282 wrote stories, took photos and assisted in production. The class was worth one leisure-time credit.

Adviser to the publication was Greg Erickson.

Beta Gamma Phi Science Club

The Beta Gamma Phi Science Club had between 10 and 15 members. The club's purpose was to provide an avenue for student members to get together to discuss scientific philosophies and work on science projects together.

In the spring the club worked with the Science Olympiad, during which junior and senior high school students competed in science events.

In April, the science club held an open house for people to view demonstrations put together by faculty and students of the science club in order to give others a chance to see their work.

Brass Ensemble

The Brass Ensemble consisted of only five members this year. The ensemble performed as a quintet in concerts in conjunction with the other Minot State University instrumental groups.

The group got organized late this year as it was going under some reorganization and received a new adviser this year, Bruce Thornton.

Organizations

Business Administration Club

The Business Administration Club was open to all business or accounting majors.

Learning about different aspects of business was just one of the Business Administration Club's concentrations. By having speakers in from area businesses, members were able to learn about the business world.

The club was also active in community service projects. The group was reorganizing this year and trying to get more involved in business related activities, said Karla Juergens, club treasurer.

Campus Players

Campus Players consisted of people interested in drama and theater. Most of its members were students of communication arts.

Members participated in performance and production of drama; this year they did a special dinner theater performance, Play It Again, Sam, at the Minot Elks Club.

The group also visited the American College of Theatre Festival at Vermillion, S.D.

Advisers to the Campus Players were Kevin Neuharth and Todd Aleshire.

Deb Roberts

Catholic Student Association

The Catholic Student Association is located across the street from Minot State University in the Newman Center. Its main goal was to bring students, faculty and staff together to praise and worship God.

To serve the students' needs, Thursday liturgy, Sunday Rosaries and once-a-month charismatic services were held.

The association also sponsored the Pro-Life Awareness Day on January 20. By showing a pro-life film throughout the day, the group aimed to increase awareness of life from the embryonic stage and on.

Concert Choir

The Minot State University Concert Choir was made up of students who share a love for music, said director Gary Walth.

The choir members began raising money for their spring trip early in the school year, and their hard work paid off.

On March 22, the choir left for Colorado. It preformed in Vail, Beaver Creek and at Mount Olive Church in Denver.

The group returned on March 27, satisfied with the success of the tour, said Walth.

Concert Band

"The objective of the concert band is to increase the awareness and enjoyment of literature through performance," said adviser Bruce Thornton.

The band performed at the Northwest Festival of Music in November. It also presented a Feb. 14 concert and a spring concert, went on a spring tour and performed at Minot State University commencement exercises.

Music performed by the band varied from early compositions to marches and contemporary literature.

Fund-raising activities such as playing at a dance and selling t-shirts for the Northwest Festival helped the band obtain funds for its spring tour.

Cook Hall

Cook Hall offered more to its residents than just a place to live. Located strategically near Broadway and several convenience stores, this dorm became "home" to the 188 young women who lived there. The population of Cook Hall was mainly made up of freshmen.

Cook Hall sponsored group activities, floor parties and lectures for its residents on a regular basis.

A spirit of togetherness and friendliness made Cook Hall a popular place to live at Minot State.

C.P. Lura Manor

Lura Manor, once an all male dorm, has turned co-ed. The change took place in July 1988, when it was discovered that the number of women seeking campus residence had exceeded the available dorm rooms.

The solution was to move some of the men from Lura Manor over to Crane Hall where there was plenty of room, making the fifth floor of Lura Manor available for 32 upperclass women.

There have been no problems with the new arrangement, according to the fifth floor resident assistant Curt Marschner.

Tracy Spencer

Council for Exceptional Students

The Council for Exceptional Children (CEC) is an organization concerned with improving the education of exceptional children, both gifted and handicapped. Membership provides contact with related organizations in the city and state, various activities and an exchange of ideas for its members.

The Minot State University group attended the CEC state conference in Jamestown and this year sent a representative to the national conference in San Francisco.

Crane Hall

Crane Hall is the campus dorm that houses all the rowdy freshman guys, said the new head resident, Bill Schwan. "Being Crane's head resident is like wearing a pair of shorts that are too tight," said Schwan. "It's what I call paradise in hell. But I would do it again because I've gotten so close that it's like one big episode of 'My Three Sons.'

"The only difficulties come when the Crane Hall Running Association decides to hold a marathon in the hallways," he said.

Dorm activities in Crane are few and far between "because we're more concerned about raising our GPA's," said Schwan. "We are having the annual Crane Hall pig roast, though."

Tracy Spencer

Dakota Hall

This year 110 upper class and graduate female students lived in the 57 year-old Dakota Hall dormitory at Minot State University. "Dakota Hall looks much like it did 12 years ago when I lived in a dorm room," said Deb Witteman, MSU student and head resident of Dakota Hall. When the students' mothers come into the dorm many of them say, 'Wow, the dorm hasn't changed since I was a student at MSU.'"

Kristi Boucher said the most important part of living in Dakota Hall was that she learned to tolerate the different personalities of people.

Economics Club

The Minot State University Economics Club was only in its second year, but already took on hard work. Its biggest project has been to complete research on the economic impact of MSU students on Minot.

"Our main purpose is to stimulate student interest in economics and then nurture that interest," said Shari Johnson, president of the club.

The group posted cartoons and articles on bulletin boards around campus to inform people about the club and about economics.

Evette Swiney

English Club

The English Club is open to all students who wish to enhance their understanding of literature, said adviser George Slanger.

The club provides an opportunity for students to share any creative work and receive constructive comments from peers and faculty members.

This year the club sponsored the Writer's Forum in the evenings; various writers with MSU connections read and discussed their works. The English Club also gathered to watch video presentations of famous poets reading and explaining their works.

Organizations

French Club

The French Club is "a social club that promotes the French language and culture on campus and in the community," said Harold Smith, the club's adviser. This year the club had approximately 20 members.

The club took part in the French-Canadian Winter Festival in Winnipeg, a Christmas party with the German and Spanish clubs and monthly meetings and get-togethers.

German Club

The Minot State German Club had a busy year. In the fall, the club won first place in the Homecoming float competition for the second straight year.

Club members baked and decorated Lebkuchen Herzen (gingerbread hearts) and sold them on campus for Christmas and Valentine's Day. The hearts quickly became a popular treat.

The major activity in the spring was the annual trip to Winnipeg. The students visited the German-speaking section of Winnipeg and met with the German Society of Winnipeg and the German-Canadian Society.

Sue Hoffer

International Relations Club

"Gorbachev meets with Reagan." "U.S. Declares War Against Drugs." "Navy Ships in the Persian Gulf."

"As U.S. citizens we need to be more aware of world events such as these," said Everett Ballmann, adviser of the International Relations Club.

One way to become more informed about these events was to involve yourself in the International Relations Club. Membership is open to all students.

The club members gathered to discuss U.S. relations with other countries and to become better citizens. In the fall the club participates in an annual conference at the U.S.-Canadian border in the Peace Gardens with Brandon University, Manitoba.

Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship

The Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship is a non-denominational, Christian campus organization.

The club's goal was to share life's joys and the word of God in a fun environment. It held activities just for fun and sharing such as ice-skating parties, picnics and game-filled get-togethers.

Members met weekly as a group for special speakers and discussions on various religious, social and moral topics. Small Bible study groups were also held regularly, and the club went on several retreats throughout the year.

Angy Edison

Jazz Ensemble

The Jazz Ensemble this year performed at the Northwest Festival, at a Feb. 14 concert and a spring concert. Members also participated in two short tours.

Music performed by the jazz ensemble consisted of varied jazz literature with different styles and composers. The music played by the group "promotes the American art form of jazz," said adviser Bruce Thornton.

Jazz Madrigal Singers

The Jazz Madrigal Singers, better known as City Lights, performed local concerts and toured much of Western North Dakota.

A major project for the City Lights this year was recording a commercial for Midwest Federal.

The music group started planning and raising funds for a trip scheduled for next year, when it will audition for a national affiliation in Kalamazoo, Mich.

Kappa Delta Pi

Recognizing excellence in academic achievement is one of the primary goals of the educational honor society Kappa Delta Pi.

Among the activities during the organization's meetings were discussions of current topics of interest in education such as writing resumes, job application techniques and computers in education.

Membership has remained stable throughout the years. Adviser Harold Stolt says about 15 to 25 members join Kappa Delta Pi every year. New members are required to go through a three step process, attending and taking part in 1) an informational meeting 2) a pledge ceremony and 3) an initiation ceremony.

Debbie Hance

Karate Club

The Minot State University Karate Club, advised by Bob Feller, is an organization based on the traditional Japanese karate.

The club consists of MSU students and members of the community who range in ability levels from beginning students to advanced members.

Both beginning and advanced members had the opportunity to compete in various meets around the state as well as in regional and national competitions.

Some members of the Karate Club demonstrated their abilities to surrounding schools and also taught classes for those people interested in learning karate.

Lutheran Student Movement

The Lutheran Student Movement was a "confederation of students," said Neil Ruedisili, leader of the group. Members gathered to share fellowship with others of their faith at 9 p.m. every Wednesday, which the group called "holy night." The nights' activities ranged from worship service to discussion, movies, curling or service projects. Between five and 20 people participated in the holy nights and other group activities.

The group also went on trips and retreats throughout the year, such as a cross-country ski trip.

McCulloch Hall

McCulloch Hall, a women's residence hall at Minot State University, was built in 1960 and houses 146 female students. McCulloch Hall is an upperclassman dorm, housing only sophomores through graduate students.

Despite the slamming of doors, waiting for an empty washing machine and listening to a neighbor's ringing telephone, dorm life has its rewards. "Some of the best friendships I have were made as a result of living in McCulloch," said one resident.

M-SCOPE

M-SCOPE (Minot State Club of Physical Educators), had about 35 members this year. The club members participated in various events in order to gain experience in instructing physical education activities. "The main purpose of M-SCOPE is to promote professional growth," said adviser Nancy Christensen.

M-SCOPE held fund raisers in order to pay for members' attendance at conventions. This year, members attended conventions in Lincoln, Neb., and Boston, Mass.

Music Educators National Conference

Music Educators National Conference (MENC) is an organization promoting the advancement of music education in the public schools.

Involvement in the national and division conferences was in conjunction with meeting the group's goals. The conferences offered a full spectrum of musical and topical sessions to advance the individual's professional excellence in teaching.

Organizations

National Student Speech, Language and Hearing

The National Student Speech, Language and Hearing Association consists of students interested in increasing public awareness of services offered by the campus speech pathologists and clinic.

There were 92 members this year, the most ever. Most of the members were associated with communication disorders, majoring in deaf education, speech pathology and other disorders.

The club raised money for new equipment in the media center and to travel to conferences held in the United States and Canada.

Native American Club

The main goal of the Native American Club at Minot State University is to provide its members a chance to share the Native American culture and history.

This year the Native American Club sponsored guest speakers from around the state for Drug Awareness Week at MSU, which was set up to help students become aware of the symptoms of alcohol and drug abuse.

Deb Roberts

Phi Beta Lambda

The Minot State University Phi Beta Lambda club is a local chapter of the national organization for business students. Phi Beta Lambda stands for "future business leaders."

The MSU chapter members took the idea of being leaders seriously. Members traveled to Pierre, S.D., to compete in the state Leadership Conference in various areas of business, and 14 MSU students placed first in the competitions.

The MSU PBL worked with other campus organizations and community businesses to organize MSU Career Day, which took place in the Dome March 17.

Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia

The Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia is a professional music fraternity dedicated to the excellence of music. The Minot State University chapter underwent extensive reorganization and gained a new adviser, Bruce Thornton.

The group visited Aberdeen, S.D., for the activation of five new chapter members.

The MSU chapter belonged to a province including North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Minnesota. The province governor this year was Daniel Hornstein, MSU assistant professor of music.

Deb Hance

Pi Omega Pi

Pi Omega Pi is an organization for business education students, business teachers and alumni. The honor society creates a fellowship among business education students and encourages civic responsibility.

Pi Omega Pi is limited to students majoring in business education who maintain a grade-point average of at least 3.0. Twelve members made up this year's Minot State University chapter of Pi Omega Pi, headed by adviser Robert Sando.

Red and Green

The Red and Green is a campus newspaper run by students. It consists of a one-credit lab course in which class members work on the weekly publication.

Adviser to the Red and Green, Greg Erickson treats it like a regular newspaper. He supervises the budget and acts as a publisher, critiquing the paper after it comes out and being available as a resource for the students.

By being on the Red and Green staff, students can gain experience in reporting, photography and production. (What's it like to be on the staff? It's hard work—deadlines. . . we needed it yesterday.)

Marsha Leeson

Republicans

During the 1988 presidential campaign, the members of the campus Republican party were individually involved in both state and local election campaigns. The club volunteered its services at the Republican headquarters in Minot and promoted the appearance of political candidates in the area. Its goal was to encourage students to be informed voters.

"These volunteers have such a keen interest in politics," said Everett Ballmann, associate professor of political science, "that I believe half of the students active in campus political parties (either Republican or Democrat) will be running for office themselves in the next decade."

Sigma Alpha Iota

The women's music fraternity at Minot State University, Sigma Alpha Iota, had only five members this year. Sandra Starr, adviser to the group, said she was concerned that the women's music society could die-out on the MSU campus.

The professional music society was still active this year, however. Its main goal was to promote music, and in doing so, it awarded an annual scholarship to a student in the music division.

Debbie Hance

Spanish Club

The Español club traditionally gets together to share the Spanish language and the Spanish culture.

Activities of the Spanish club this year included games, a volleyball match, plays written and produced by the group and a festive evening of cultural foods with the French and German clubs at Christmas time.

The Spanish club members are noted for their "like for food," said adviser Linda Gresham.

String Ensemble-- Bow

Keeping in the music tradition of Minot State University, the bow ensemble was hard at work this year, practicing twice a week to keep in fine tune for its performances.

In the past, MSU had a string ensemble of only bow instruments. This year, the bow instruments were joined by guitars, practicing and performing separately.

Adviser to the ensemble was Russell Munneke.

Debbie Hance

String Ensemble-- Guitar

The string ensemble included a new group of stringed instruments this year. A guitar group was added to the traditionally all-bow ensemble. The ensemble was headed by adviser Russel Munneke.

The addition of the guitar group allowed more students to become a part of the string ensemble.

Student Association

The Minot State University Student Association (S.A.) represents the enrolled student body.

According to Shari Johnson, S.A. President, all students who pay the activity fee each quarter are members of the S.A. The association's senate and officers serve as the governing body of the association.

"We are the voice of the student," said Johnson. "As President, I serve as a liaison between administration and students."

Among the most prominent of the association's functions is providing student activities throughout the year. The S.A. provides a variety of educational, social and entertainment activities, such as concerts, speakers and dances.

Student National Educators Association

Minot has one of the most active SNEA chapters in the state. "Out of the 520 state wide members, MSU has 180 members," said adviser Helen LaMar.

"The SNEA is aimed at making education students feel a part of the education profession," she said. "The group deals with different problems and issues that the students may face in the teaching profession."

Several speakers gave informative speeches on topics such as discipline in the classroom and on how teachers are evaluated.

Julie Caranicas

Student Nurses Association

The Student Nurses Association consisted of between 20 and 30 nursing students this year. Adviser to the group was Jennifer Schaller-Ayers.

The group participated in community projects, sponsored student educational programs and was active in the state and national conventions.

The group looked ahead, working on preparations for the 1990 state conventions.

Student Social Work Organization

Under the leadership of President Dorthy Dohlen this year, the Student Social Work Organization met on a monthly basis to arrange activities for its 45 members, other students and community members. The group helped the Community Action Program set up the annual Halloween party at the Dome and the Second Story Program at Christmas.

The SSWO took field trips including a tour of the Boys Ranch, the State Hospital in Jamestown and the prison in Bismarck.

Speakers on family systems and family stress were also sponsored by the group this year.

Women's Choraleers

The Women's Choraleers were directed by Sandra Starr this year. The 29 singers performed in black skirts, white blouses, red bow ties and red cummerbunds at Minot shopping centers in December, at several morning church services and at a spring concert.

In the late 1960s and early 1970s, the women's chorus, then directed by John Spoelstra, had about 110-120 members.. Starr said she plans to bring that number back up by making students aware that chorus can fulfill music major and minor requirements as well as provide a leisure time credit for general education requirements.

Woodwind Ensemble

The woodwind ensemble consisted of members from the concert band.

The group was new this year, and adviser Bruce Thornton said the group's objective was "to cover as much literature as possible with a variety of ensemble."

With 10 members, the woodwind ensemble played chamber literature for ensembles of many combinations, performing mostly in area churches and schools.

Senior Profile

"Once you get bitten by media it's hard to get out of it. It becomes a power trip," said Sheila Doll, editor of the Red and Green. She has worked on various newspapers for the past 12 years.

In addition to being editor of the Red and Green, Doll was the assistant editor last year. She is also a member of the Speech Club, International Relations Club and German Club. Doll has been honored in being named in the 1989 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

Doll came to Minot State University in 1986. By going to classes full-time through the summers, she became a senior in less than eight quarters. She is majoring in German and minoring in Spanish and geography.

Doll graduated from Valley High School, Hoople-Crystal, Hoople, N.D., in 1977. She started her newspaper career in 1977 by working as a "gopher" and sports reporter and was in charge of the darkroom at the Grafton Record, a biweekly newspaper. She then went to work at the Dickinson Press, doing ad layout.

Doll came to Minot in December of 1982. She joined the North Dakota Army National Guard in 1985 and received her military occupation specialty for photojournalism in May 1986. From 1986 to the present, Doll has been a photojournalist for the Army National Guard. She takes part in the publication of The Nodak Guardsman, which is published once a month.

She hopes to either go to the University of North Dakota in the fall to finish her German degree or go to the UND Law School.

Just One Student Teacher Among Many

MSU sent 293 student teachers out in the 1988-89 school year. "This number is higher than normal, but it is following the trend of the last two to three years," said Harold Stolt, director of student teaching. "We expect the number of student teachers will level out in the next year or two."

Student teaching is designed to give potential teachers a chance to apply the information and techniques gathered through their education studies. They observe, plan and finally teach in classrooms under supervision. The student teacher learns how to prepare lessons, activities and techniques in order to be effective.

The student teacher is placed under a supervising teacher and is allowed to move into the role of "teacher" gradually.

Debbie Cahoon, a student teacher, spent the first week observing a kindergarten class, learning the children's names and building a rapport with them. She also observed the teacher, taking note of techniques used and of the interaction between the teacher and students.

As the quarter continued, she slowly began teaching—taking over one lesson at a time.

Debbie Cahoon, student teacher.

"Student teaching is a lot of work, but I enjoy it," said Cahoon. She said disciplining young children in a manner consistent with what their regular classroom teacher had done proved to be the most challenging aspect of student teaching for her.

Cahoon continued student teaching in a first-grade class in Hazen spring quarter.

Freshman Profile

Rhonda Schrenk is an outgoing freshman at MSU. Her days and nights are filled with activities.

Schrenk is from Assiniboia, Saskatchewan. She came from a high school where she participated in sports, and her interest in athletics has carried over into her MSU studies. Her major is in physical education.

Schrenk's involvement in athletic activities has continued during her first year of college. She has been involved in varsity volleyball, city league volleyball, intramural basketball and track events.

Schrenk said she enjoyed her first year at MSU. "I especially liked living in Cook Hall and making so many new friends," she said.

Studying and finding time to study was the biggest challenge of her freshman year, said Schrenk, "especially with the busy dorm-life!" She learned to use the library as a quiet retreat.

Sophomore Profile

Politics and student government have been the main interests for sophomore Nick Chase in his first three years at MSU.

Chase has been involved in the Student Association for three years, starting as a freshman senator, then returning to the S.A. as a senator representing the College of Business. He served as publicity governor this year.

He also has an interest in politics beyond the university level and belonged to the Young Republicans, a campus organization, his first two years at MSU. He sees himself as a "moderate republican," supporting capital punishment, the ERA and affirmative action groups.

Attending MSU in pursuit of a B.A. in business finance with a minor in communication arts, Chase said he feels MSU is a wise choice in schools because of the opportunities it offers. "MSU is the perfect size," said Chase. "It's big enough to offer a lot to get involved in, and yet it's small enough to get to know people."

Junior Profile

"Getting involved in school activities is very important," said Mike Anderson, an MSU junior. Anderson, a 1986 graduate of Tioga High School, takes part in many campus activities and has been especially active in student government.

He was elected vice president of the Student Association in November 1988. He started his S.A. career in 1986 as a representative for the Business Administration Club. He was elected treasurer for the S.A. in the spring of 1987 and continued in that position until he became vice president in November.

Anderson has worked on several S.A. committees, serving as chairman of the Finance Commission from 1987 to 1988, and he was the chairman of the Student Activities Committee this year. He was also a member of the University Welfare and Student Affairs Committee and Athletic Policy Committee.

He received a national government award in 1987 for being an outstanding student and member of the S.A. and was appointed Secretary of State at the 1987-88 North Dakota Intercollegiate State Legislature in Bismarck.

Anderson is majoring in elementary education and physical education/coaching and he enjoys taking part in intramural basketball, volleyball and softball games. He spends some of his spare time as a volunteer coach for the sixth-grade boys' basketball team at North Hill Elementary.

Who's Our Beaver?

Who is under the beaver skin?

It may be someone who sits right next to you in a class, or it may even be a good friend of yours.

The beaver this year, just like the previous beavers, wants to remain anonymous. But the identity of the beaver is more than the person who wears the costume.

Hermelle Wilson, adviser to the MSU cheerleaders, said that she has never had any problems finding an MSU beaver--there are always plenty of volunteers.

Before a person becomes the beaver, he has a trial run to see if he can handle being the beaver. If the student feels like he can handle the heat of the costume and all the activity, he gets the job. The student who becomes the MSU Beaver registers for the class and gets one credit hour.

According to Wilson, the beaver has been around for many years. Wilson stated that when she went to school in the 1960s, MSU had a beaver mascot. But today's beaver is a better beaver. With help from the Student Association and the MSU Bookstore, Wilson and the cheerleaders raised money to have the new, cute, beaver costume custom-made in 1980. The costume was designed by student Jim Turner.

Staff Member Returns To Faculty

"Faculty," said Robert J. Nelson, MSU's Vice President for Academic Affairs, "are professionals who have the primary responsibility of providing quality teaching and a sincere concern for the student."

Nelson said that faculty comprise the heart of the campus, which may form part of his reason for returning to a faculty position in the fall. Nelson will join the mathematics division. His career goals are "centered around a strong interest to serve higher education within my abilities and experiences."

Those abilities and experiences abound: he has served as a faculty member at Montana State University, St. Cloud State University and Purdue University, where he taught mathematics, probability, and statistics. Among other positions, he has also served as Provost/Vice President for Academic Affairs at Missouri Western State College and Vice President of Southwest State University in Marshall, Minn.

"I am an advocate of individual rights and due process," said Nelson, "and for providing equitable treatment to employees and students." He also believes that "as a professional, one has the responsibility to share time, talents and resources with the community...and as the university reaches into the community, both the university and the community are enhanced."

Memories Of A Maverick Teacher

What makes a good teacher?

"You have to think what you teach is important for students to learn," said Floyd Fairweather, MSU associate professor of humanities.

"Hopefully you would like to instill in them the idea that you just can't really be a civilized person unless you know these things. That's not easy--you have to have some kind of personality for it."

Fairweather started teaching French and English in 1961 at the Minot Model Campus School. In 1963, he moved over to the Administration Building on campus and began to teach humanities.

Fairweather said he was intimidated in his first year of teaching.

"The students looked more like the enemy, like a bunch of savages that I somehow had to civilize and that was a frightening experience," he said. "As you get older, you naturally develop all kinds of techniques." He said he tends to over react; it's part of his personality. "When I was young, I would over react and take action. Now I've learned to control myself."

Raised in Souris, N.D., Fairweather majored in art and minored in English and French at Concordia College in Moorhead, Minn. After graduating, he taught junior high art in Devils Lake for one year.

Fairweather's early teaching years were interrupted by his service in the Korean War. His four-year hitch in the U.S. Air Force included a two-year stay in Tokyo, Japan.

Upon his return to the United States, he studied art at the University of Minnesota and then costume and design at Stanford University in California before coming to Minot. In 1967-68, while on sabbatical from MSU, he did additional graduate work in art history at New York's Syracuse University.

In his classes, Fairweather tries to give his students a general understanding and feel for specific periods in art history and introduce them to some new areas in the field. In addition, he also hopes that his classes might trigger someone's interest in entering art history as a career.

As for his own preferences, he says he likes classical Greek and Roman art, as well as works from the rise of Western Civilization into the Renaissance.

His love of art extends into at least one quirky hobby: He likes to collect junky versions of the Last Supper, perhaps as a jigsaw puzzle, a Jell-o mold, a paint-by-number kit or chocolate bar.

When he first came to Minot, he planned to stay here for a year, no more, and then return to California. But there were few opportunities there, and as time passed, his friends and colleagues on the West Coast were telling him about student riots there.

After six years at Minot State, Fairweather took a sabbatical, which required him to return. And he's been here since, even though he says he never planned to live in North Dakota, and he doesn't like cold weather.

But he likes what he does, and he thinks that's important in teaching: "You need that, and you need to like people. And you should feel that what you have to teach is important."

"I believe in giving a performance--it's part of the drama. I always wanted to be an actor. If I could have been what I wanted, I would have been a classical actor."

MSU 1988-89 Events

The 1988-89 year was an eventful one. Americans watched closely as the space shuttle Discovery was launched, the first U.S. launch since the fatal accident of the Challenger in 1986; several meetings between officials from the United States and Soviet Union brought hope of a friendly relationship between the two nations; Republican George Bush was elected as the successor to President Reagan; Soviet Armenia suffered extensive damage from an earthquake, and the American response of goodwill was overwhelming; Oliver North's name remained in the headlines; and Exxon was the name behind the biggest oil spill in the nation's history off the Alaskan coast.

On campus, the year was one of tradition and of change. The following events are a recap of the year's highlights, taken from the pages of our campus newspaper, the Red and Green:

Fall enrollment was at an all-time high, with a record of 3,365 students (1,258 males and 2,040 females). The increase came with a greater number of married, Canadian, out-of-state and older-than average students.

Not enough campus housing for women was available, so the fifth floor of the men's dorm C. P. Lura Manor was transformed into female housing, making C. P. Lura Manor the first MSU coed dorm.

The football team dominated in the homecoming game against Wahpeton 41-10, and ended its season with an overall record of 6-3. Eight of the gridgers were named All-Conference: John Aplan, honorable mention; Travis Bakken, honorable mention; Mike Casey, first team; Rick Gefroh, first team; Curt Kittelson, honorable mention; Mark Kramer, first team; Jeff Mark, honorable mention; and Mike Sivertson, honorable mention.

The History Club was created under the direction of Mary Pearson, associate professor of education. It has a dual role: First, the promotion of social studies focusing on the North Dakota Centennial and second, to allow history education majors to meet and work with junior high level students. It is a one-credit hour elective on a pass/fail basis.

The MSU Campus Players presented "Tartuffe" in November, "The Best Christmas Pageant Ever" in December, and "Play It Again Sam" in March.

"Allen Kihm, assistant professor of earth science, suggested 'facetiously' that before 2089 the western counties of North Dakota secede from the United States, merge with Canada and become Baja Saskatchewan." Red and Green, Nov. 9, 1988.

Steve Garvey, former major league baseball player, spoke in McFarland Auditorium, November 15.

AIDS Awareness week was sponsored by the MSU Student Association during which 2,000 packets containing a variety of safe sex and abstinence materials, including condoms, were handed out.

"Adam and Eve," a one act play written by MSU communication arts assistant professor Conrad Davidson, was performed December 7 and 8 by the communication arts department.

Fifty students from MSU were named to the 1989 edition of Who's Who Among Students In American Universities and Colleges.

United Campus Ministries started a Drop-In-Center in the Pioneer Room on the first floor of the Student Union. Its purpose is to help those students in crisis, near a crisis or just wanting to talk.

Six students from MSU attended Higher Education Day in Bismarck to show their support for the higher education system.

The men's basketball team won the conference championship for the first time in 10 years, with a season record of 17-9. Chris Lamoureux was named the most outstanding senior by the North Dakota College Athletic Conference.

Five MSU wrestlers competed in nationals. Pat Thomas at 118 pounds and Steve Lipp at 126 pounds each placed sixth, gaining the right to be All-American. Also competing were Dave Hillard at 142 pounds, Dave Isaak at 150 pounds, and Blair Berg at 167 pounds.

MSU reinstated baseball, but it won't be in full swing until 1990, in order to give the coaches an opportunity to recruit.

The women's basketball team ended its season 12-12 with a freshman-sophomore dominated team. Kim Chrest was named to All-Conference for the third consecutive year. Teammate Marsha Hermes was also named All-Conference.

A new guide for academic standards was developed in an effort to raise the academic quality on campus.

18.8 percent of MSU students turned out for the Student Association elections, compared to the previous year's 10 percent. Nick Chase became the new president; Paul Demke, vice president; Roberta Porter, secretary; and Sara Armstrong, treasurer. Also approved in the vote was a raise in the student activities fee of $2 per quarter to fund a campus radio station.

The husband-wife team of Brad and Camille Oothoudt became MSU's new tennis coaches. Both are former students and tennis players from MSU and are employed by the Minot Indoor Tennis Club.

Thomas Seymour, associate professor of business, was chosen by the Minot Chamber of Commerce as Distinguished Educator of 1989.

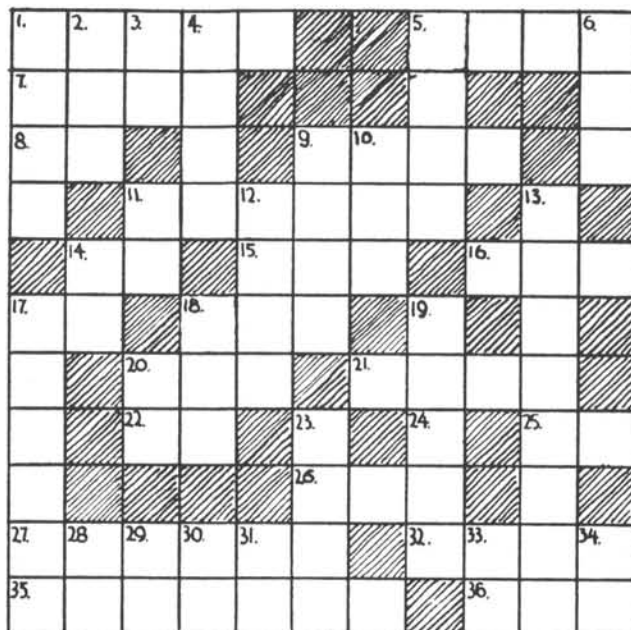

The criminal justice department was given approval to begin a master's degree program in the fall of 1990.

Harold Aleshire, associate professor of English and humanities, retired after 33 years of service to MSU. Aleshire began teaching at MSU in 1956.

Henry DuGarm, professor of history and social science, retired in the spring. He plans to work full-time as a writer after his 25 years of teaching at MSU. DuGarm came to MSU in 1964.

A budding reporter rushed up to Mr. Hartnett after assembly and asked him what he thought of the violinist who had just played.

Mr. Hartnett: “He reminds me of Paderewski.”

Reporter: “But Paderewski is not a violinist.”

Mr. Hartnett: “Just so. Just so.”

Duane Carlson Presents Poems

New Volume a Sensation

Long-haired and short-brained poet lariat Duane Carlson, presented to an enthusiastic audience his newest volume of poems.

The audience, consisting of intellectual degenerates, arose 'midst thundering applause as Bard Carlson read (as he put it) his finest poem:

A POEM

It's ever so hard to write a poem
When your heart is filled with hope
But it's harder still to find the towel
When your eyes are full of soap.

After the strenuous appeal to the audience Mr. Carlson sank exhausted to the floor. His doctor, legal advisor, and dietitian, Robert Crippen, had to carry on.

Mr. Crippen spent a minute in silence explaining Shakespeare's contribution to Carlson's poetry. Crippen's body shook with convulsive sobs and tears rolled down his fragile cheeks as he told of the author's brief moments of inspiration.

When the lecture drew to a close, the audience stood with bowed heads in respectful silence as the gurgling poet slowly crawled up the aisle on his hands and knees.

Two other poems that received considerable comment were:

PHILOSOPHY

Philosophy lectures
Are quite uncanny,
But sitting so long
Is hard on your (censored).

STRENGTH

There was once a coed quite shy,
Who said to a student named Cy:
“If you kiss me, of course,
You will have to use force,
But thank heaven you're stronger than I.”

Partofthetimetheysitlikethis,
And now and then they kiss,
But now and then they have a spat,
And then they sit
Like This.

A Few Fundamental Rules

1. Don't ever let your lessons interfere with your regular work.
2. Never, never for a moment forget your own importance.
3. Never think twice before you act, you might miss a good time.
4. Have some good friends on the faculty. They might be able to help you in an hour of need.
5. Always laugh at the teacher's jokes. It's the hard things in life that make men and women of you.
6. Don't loiter in the halls. They are filled with the contagious disease of love.
7. Don't spend all your time dreaming. Study once in awhile to relieve the monotony.

LOVE MATCH

Mr. Nelson wandered into a tennis tournament the other day and sat down on the bench.

"Whose game?" he asked.

Miss Hughes sitting next to him looked up hopefully.

"I am," she replied.

Getting Down to Cases

In order to determine the average college girls' reaction, and in order to compare the coeds of Minot State Teachers College with those of other colleges, the following questionnaire was sent out by Fernando Torgerson and Elliot Carlson. The results show that our average coed is just an average coed.

1. Do you believe in kissing on a first date? Yes, 10. No, 53.
2. Do you prefer a gentle lover to a cave man? Yes, 45. No, 17.
3. Does money mean anything to you in picking a boy friend? Yes, 24. No, 40.
4. Do you prefer fraternity men to independents? Yes, 40. No, 24.
5. Are you in college to find a husband? Yes, 5. No, 62.
6. Are you interested in marriage more than a career? Yes, 40. No, 23.
7. Do you want children after marriage? Yes, 62. No, 2.
8. Do you like to double-date? Yes, 58. No, 4.
9. Do you believe in going with more than one boy at a time? Yes, 45. No, 18.
10. Are you flattered when a boy shows he is jealous of you? Yes, 37. No, 18.
11. Do you accept personal gifts from the boys you go with? Yes, 29. No, 31.
12. Personality ranks first in selection of dates. Yes, 48. No, 12.
13. Is petting on your "mustn't list"? Yes, 26. No, 38.
14. Do you prefer to have your escort trade the dances on your program or accept the invitation directly from the boy you will dance with? Escort trade, 31. Direct acceptance, 4.
15. Do alcoholic refreshments at a party repulse you? Yes, 39. No, 20.
16. Do friendly telephone calls bore you when a boy is not asking for a date? Yes, 16. No, 47.
17. Do you frown upon a girl and boy who make themselves conspicuous by constantly being together in the library, halls, etc.? Yes, 16. No, 47.
18. Do you prefer a date to a dance with an exceptional dancer to one who is an average dancer but a good conversationalist? Yes, 17. No, 44.
19. Do you expect a boy to spend over 25¢ for your lunch after a date? Yes, 9. No, 54.

Cow College

Back in the good old days, when potatoes grew on the campus, and horses used the dormitory lawn for winter forage, the Minot State Teachers College was known as the "Cow College." The name was not one of scorn; rather it was a title of respect. The location, population, and appearance all tended to give a noble, rural atmosphere to a college of agricultural North Dakota.

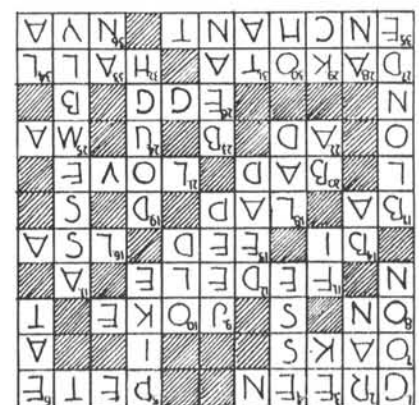

Potatoes are no longer planted on the campus; horses no longer used the dormitory lawn for a winter feeding ground, and the traditional title of "Cow College" has been lost in the shuffle of shifting policies and changing students. But the influence remains.

After nearly 25 years of working for Minot State University, Pearl Hanson retired in February. She began working at the Student Union Snack Bar in 1964 .

and sometimes i wanted to be alone to escape the others
i looked for a glimpse of my own reflection solitude
a wonder of ideas memories
dreams
i sought the personal the unique and found myself changing
