Introducing Dale Brown

MSU was lucky to have had Dale Brown's spirit at the pep rally before the Homecoming football game.

Brown, who attended MSU from 1953-1957, spoke to the student body about the importance of teamwork. Brown is a motivational speaker who addresses corporations about teamwork and leadership.

Although Brown gets to Minot only about every three months, it remains an important part of his life. He is the national director of the McFarland Campaign, aimed at raising money to refurbish McFarland Auditorium.

Brown, who was born and raised in Minot, still owns a farm in the area. Brown's book, "Tiger in a Lion's Den: Adventures in LSU Basketball," includes a chapter titled "Why Not Minot."

Brown's book is about the 25 years he spent coaching basketball at Louisiana State University. Brown was Shaquille O'Neal's coach in college.

Currently, Brown resides in Baton Rouge, La., with his wife Vonnie. He presents basketball clinics and hosts a national radio sports show. Brown is collaborating with the Girl's and Boy's Towns to create a home for abused children.

Vonnie Brown, also an MSU graduate, is originally from Columbus. She is a folk-dance researcher who lives in Europe four-to-six weeks out of the year.

When asked to describe his education at MSU, Brown used the word "superb."

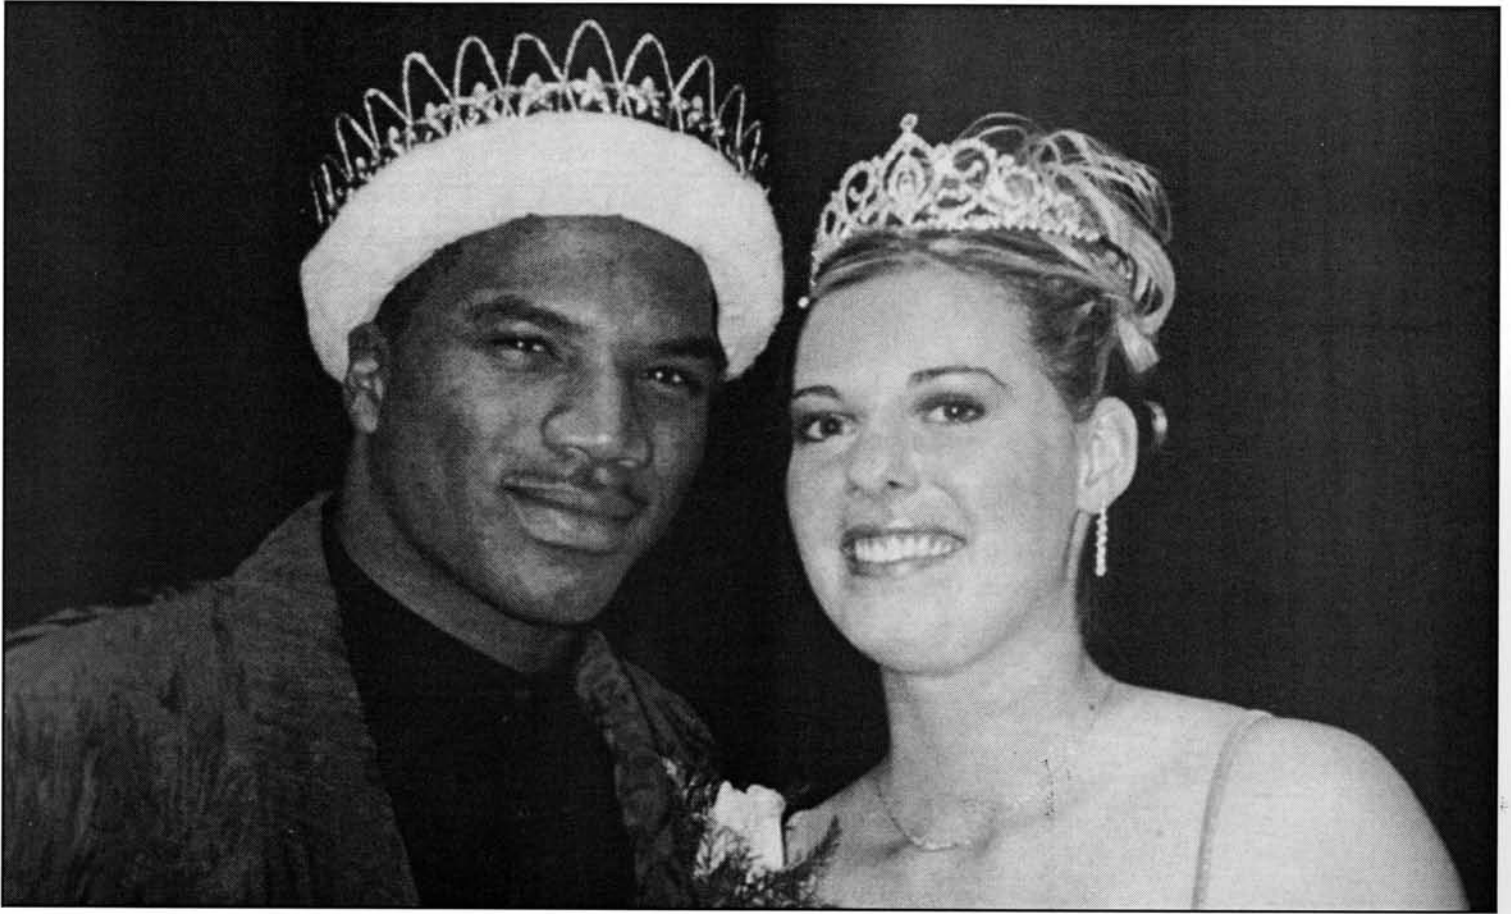

"It wasn't until I had gone away from MSU that I recognized what it had given me. I really appreciate the education MSU gave me. When I went to MSU, there were only 500 people attending," he said.

The spirit of royalty

2001-2002 Homecoming King Charles Jonassaint and Queen Evelyn Holmquist receive their crowns at the Homecoming coronation ceremony held at the MSU Dome.

Coronation night

The spirit of royalty was in the air. The crowd was thin, but the proud parents stood out.

The coronation of the Homecoming King and Queen was hosted by two Student Association senators. The senators briefly profiled each candidate.

The candidates included Linde "Tito" Sifuentes, Darrik Trudell, Shane Blondin, Tom Miller, Brad Tighe, Kim Power, Rebecca Starr, Sara Carlson, Charles Jonassaint, Evelyn Holmquist, Kayla Blom, Sarah Kohlenberger and Amanda Haase.

Richard Jenkins, vice president for advancement and student affairs, gave a history on the king-and-queen tradition at Homecoming. It began in 1928 and once featured a 49-year-old queen who was also a grandmother.

Jenkins thanked Dale Brown, a MSU graduate and former basketball coach at Louisiana State University, for his support at Homecoming this year.

Jonassaint and Holmquist were crowned as the new royalty.

The king, who is a native of British Columbia, is majoring in psychology and broadcasting. The queen, who hales from Havre, Mont., is majoring in marketing and public relations.

by Camille St.Croix

Homecoming King and Queen

Becoming Homecoming King and Queen were major accomplishments for Charles Jonassaint and Evelyn Holmquist.

"Being Homecoming King is one of those things you remember your whole life," Jonassaint said.

"I was honored to be Homecoming Queen; it was really cool," Holmquist added.

But that's just the tip of the iceberg.

Jonassaint was vice president of the Psychology Club, KMSU manager, double major in psychology and broadcasting, football superstar and, first on his list, a Christian.

"I am free and belong to no one, but I make myself a slave to all people. To win as many as I can." (1 Corinthians 9:19) This is Jonassaint's vision statement, and it makes sense with regard to how he lives his life.

Jonassaint, a native of British Columbia, points to football coach Andy Heitkamp as the main reason for his coming to MSU.

"I knew I wanted to come to the States and play football, but I wasn't getting much accomplished. Coach Heitkamp believed in me and helped in bringing me here, and I'm thankful he did," he said.

Since coming to MSU, Jonassaint has not only accomplished many things, but he also knows what he wants to do for the rest of his life.

"If it's God's will, I want to combine my experience with broadcasting and psychology to inform kids through multimedia," he said.

He is also currently writing a book on oppositional defiant disorder with school psychologist Phil Hall. The book is only the first of what Jonassaint expects to be many. He is planning to attend graduate school next year, but he hasn't pinpointed where yet.

"I love Minot State," Holmquist said, with a jubilant smile on her face. Holmquist is definitely familiar with success. In her senior year at Havre High School in Montana, she was a member of the girls' basketball and volleyball teams that took home state championships, all while she maintained a 4.0 GPA.

Minot State was the last of the schools that Holmquist toured after graduating from high school, but she instantly fell in love with the campus, academic program and student body.

She is currently the university's student body president, a title she is extremely proud of.

"That was definitely one of my goals. I am proud of that because I worked hard and earned that," she said.

Holmquist plans to go to graduate school. In the long run, she sees herself as an athletic director or in marketing and fund-raising. She doesn't want an office job, but wants to work with people and make a difference.

'Crazy Real Deal Game Show'

The good times were certainly rolling Monday night in Aleshire Theater during Homecoming Week. All the way from Grand Rapids, Mich., the "Crazy Real Deal Game Show" fit its name to a "T." It was indeed a crazy game show, and it was a real deal designed for entertainment, fun, laughter and lots of prizes.

Onstage, contestants answered trivia questions and performed gags, all in the hopes of winning the most money and a chance at the grand prize. Questions included "What year did Monday Night Football premier?" and "What is the medical term for the stomach flu?"

The gags were all in good fun, not only for the contestants but for the audience as well. Tito Sifuentes played the Baby Game, crawling across the stage in a bonnet and diaper. Jenny Hill pretended cafeteria food got the best of her, as she spun all the paper off the toilet paper roll as quickly as possible.

Between the contestant stunts, host Grant Evans kept the audience hopping by giving a buck or two to the first person who could show him various bizarre items, such as scissors, credit cards and shampoo.

After the gag, contestants were given a chance to spin the "Wheel O' Money" and keep either the amount on the wheel or exchange it for a mystery prize or whatever Grant had in his pocket. Some of the contestants lucked out and got a bigger prize than the one on the wheel, like Hill's mini-cassette recorder. Unfortunately, other contestants bummed out with a smaller prize, like Michael Bills, who won bubbles for over $12.

By the end of the show, everyone had won something. Of the seven contestants who got up on stage, Jen Veith won the chance for the grand prize, which was a hand-held color TV.

The good times kept rolling after this great start to Homecoming Week.

Servant Auction

The popular Servant Auction was held on Thursday during Homecoming Week. The would-be servants were either members of the Homecoming court or the Student Association.

To catcalls of "Take off your shirt" and "Do you rub feet?" the participants were sold into a day of bondage. Some went solo, while others, like Ryan McNally and Nathan Perdue, chose to go as pairs or triads.

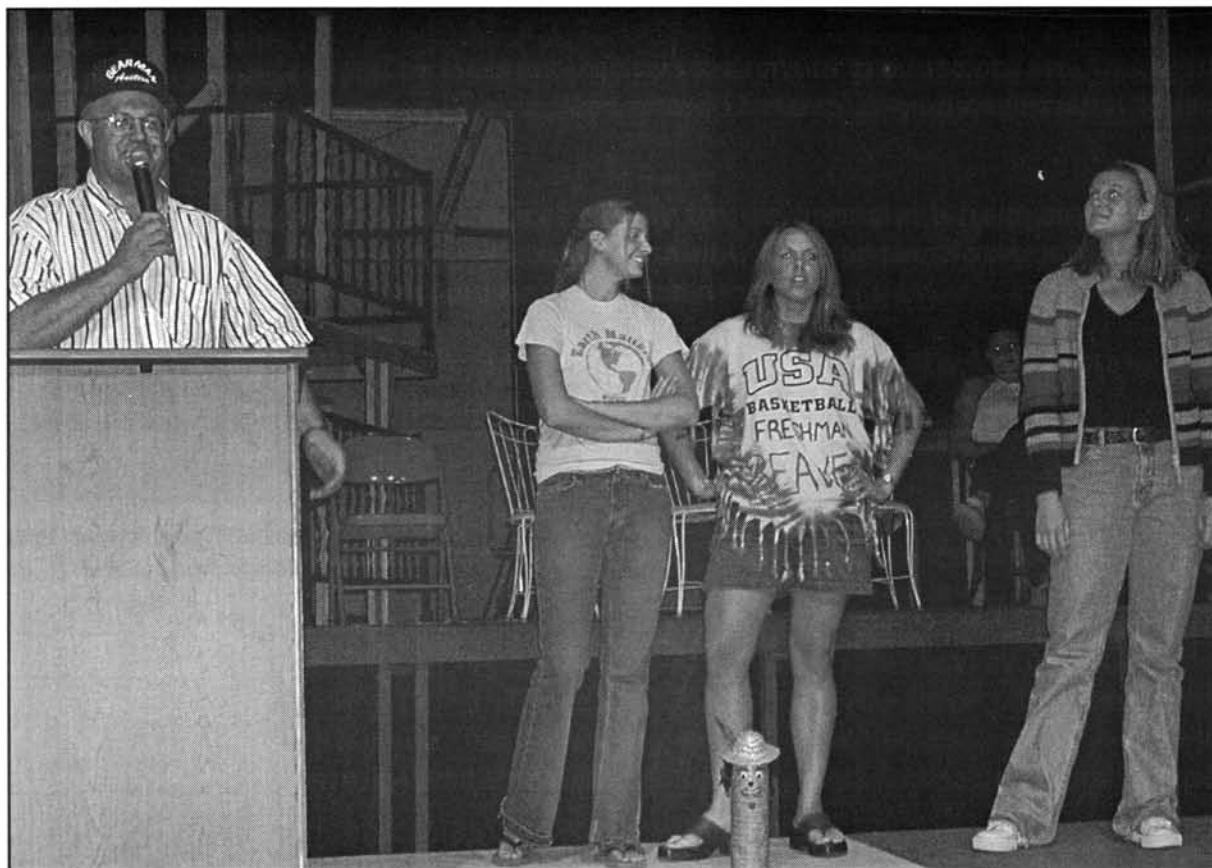

Although the average going price was between $5 and $15, there were a few high-priced servants to be had. The most valued servant of the evening was Kimberly Power, who went for an astounding $82.50. The highest multiple sale was the triad of Jaimie Lamoureux, Lacy Collins and Lyndsi Johnson. They went for a whopping $70.

For all this money, the servants agreed to be labeled as property and devoted an entire Friday, 8 a.m. to 10 p.m., to doing their masters' bidding.

The evening culminated in the auctioning off of a pool party at President H. Erik Shaar's house and a ride with Dale Brown in the Homecoming Parade. The opportunity to meet Brown cost $42.50. However, it appears that Shaar has one amazing pool, as 12 people were willing to pay a total of $171 to swim and eat at Shaar's home.

Considering the turnout and the amount of money raised, it is safe to say that the servant auction is an MSU tradition that will be back for many years to come.

Eager Beavers have

The Minot State University football team came into the 2001 season with high expectations. It ended the season with a 4-5 record in the DAC-10 and 4-6 overall. Head Coach Mike Sivertson, in his second season, was pleased with what the future holds for the team.

The high-powered Beaver offense, led by junior quarterback Kenny Smith, ended up No. 1 in the DAC-10 in total offense. The defense held its own with one of the top pass defenses in the conference.

Minot State had wins against Mayville State, Dakota State, Black Hills State and South Dakota Tech.

The Beavers placed multiple players on the DAC-10 All-Conference Team. Quarterback Smith and kicker Cody Saunders were chosen to the first team. Running back Darrik Trudell, offensive lineman Nathan Perdue and defensive back James Drayton were voted to the second team.

Wide receiver Josh Dascher, tight end Ryan McNally, defensive back Charles Jonassaint and defensive end Deangalo Halfacre were DAC-10 honorable mentions.

The Beavers said goodbye to seven seniors. McNally, Perdue, Bert Blondin, Brian Difonzo, Kevin Marks, Vinny Mesa and Cam Trudell are players that the Beaver coaching staff will have to replace before next season.

The football team has a bright future, with many of its top players returning. All the returning players have bought into the Beaver system and will be a force to reckon with next season.

Cross country teams make impressive showing at nationals

The men and women's cross country teams featured a new face as they opened the 2001 campaign. It wasn't an incoming freshman; it was new coach Scott Simmons.

Simmons brought an attitude of intense training to the program. He believes in building up runners not only physically but also mentally. When he arrived, he was not satisfied with where his runners were physically; consequently, the teams did not start competing until Sept. 23 at Jamestown.

Missing from the men's team was leader Brad Tighe, who decided to redshirt because of an injury. His brother Mike Tighe picked up the slack, however. The men's team placed second at the DAC-10 championships, qualifying it for the NAIA Nationals in Kenosha, Wis.

The Beaver men placed 14th out of 28 teams at Nationals. Mike Tighe placed 36th out of the 240 runners. Nolan Taylor placed 65th, Eric Hanson 73rd, George Anderson 113th, and A.J. Peterson 199th.

The women's cross country team had a successful year as well, even though it was not able to qualify for the national meet. The women placed fourth in the DAC-10 Championships. All-American Teri Mawson led the women, while Jen Gerving gave the women's team added boost. Mawson placed second at the conference meet, while Gerving placed 11th. Leslie Suchy, Leah Armstrong, Melissa Roehrich and Evelyn Holmquist also made the 2001 season a success for the women's team.

Simmons was pleased with the way his teams ran all season.

"This was a building year for us. After starting late in the year, I was very pleased with the results and look forward to next year," he said.

Minot State struggles in rebuilding year

After going to the DAC-10 semifinals in 2000, the Minot State University volleyball team was looking for a repeat performance in 2001. But the Lady Beavers' season was not as successful as they had wanted. They ended the season 3-10 in the DAC-10 and 3-19 overall.

The Lady Beavers' three wins came against Dakota State University, Huron University and Valley City State University.

But Coach Dana Fiedler said that the team will be a power in the coming seasons.

"This year our record was a great indicator of things to come. We were always positive and battled with everybody," she said.

Seniors Crystal Holen, Krista Moffatt and Bree Vollmers led the team with their work on the court and in the classroom.

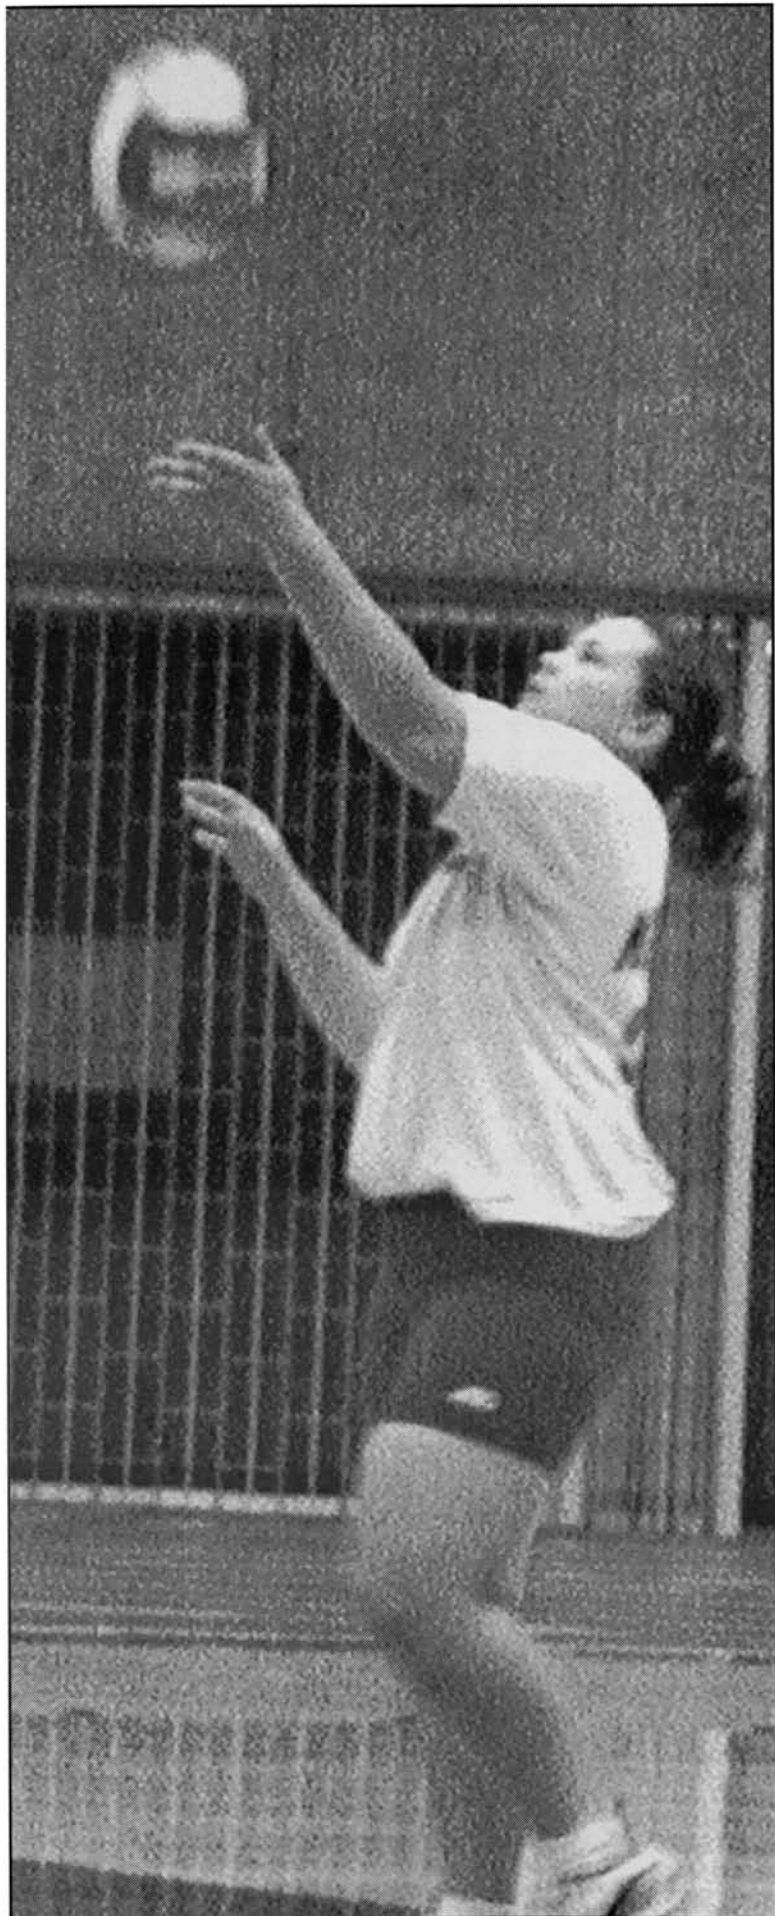

Junior Ashlyn Busche led the team in the most statistical categories with 256 kills, 25 blocks and 34 aces. Holen helped the cause with 196 kills and 95 blocks. Junior Trista Ortynsky had a good year, smashing 96 kills and 22 aces.

"We only lose three seniors. We also had a lot of new faces this year. Hopefully, the good things that we did will carry over to the next year. We plan on having a great recruiting year," Fiedler said.

For the first time in years, the Lady Beavers failed to place a player on the all DAC-10 team.

NACA is active at Minot State

Did you know that the Native American population is the largest minority community at Minot State University? With so many Native Americans on campus, is it any wonder that they have their own organization.

The Native American Cultural Awareness (NACA) Club has been at Minot State for quite some time. Last year, it relocated its offices to the third floor of the Student Union.

Currently, NACA boasts a roster of more than 150 members. The current president is Kim Mancera. The advisers are Wylie Hammond and Nelrene Yellow Bird.

Although NACA stays active throughout the year with everything from cultural activities to volunteer work for community and campus events, it has a few special events.

Every year NACA holds two important events. The first is Native American Awareness Week, which ran from Nov. 5-9 this year. During this week, a variety of ceremonies and displays were presented. In addition, there were Native American artists and speakers on campus.

The second event held was the Spring Honor Dance. This event is held to honor all Minot State graduates.

If you are a Native American enrolled at Minot State, you can join the club by contacting one of the advisers or Mancera. You can come to one of the meetings and let someone know that you would like to join in on the fun.

Campus Players present ...

Minot State University has many clubs and organizations. But do you know which one has been around the longest?

Campus Players, an organization that sponsors theater productions, has been around since November 1925.

"As far as I know, it is the oldest organization on campus," said Adviser Kevin Neuharth. "They were doing plays right away when the school opened.

"Campus Players is a real, real active organization," Neuharth said. "They sponsor the Christmas production every year. They do the concessions for Summer Theatre."

Campus Players also sponsors a dinner theater each spring.

Members are encouraged to participate in the Communication Arts Department and Black Box productions that take place throughout the year.

This year, Eric Roberge served as president of the club, with Michael Rose as vice president, Aaron Schilke as treasurer and Amanda Lindstrom as secretary.

Last December, they sponsored two Christmas plays, "A Visit from Saint Nicholas" and "The Best Christmas Pageant Ever."

"Probably the most exciting thing this year had to do with one of our spring productions," Neuharth said.

"Last spring, Campus Players, along with Communication Arts, brought by in a former student of ours, Jason Groce."

Groce received a master's of fine arts degree in playwriting from the University of Texas in Austin. "I decided that I would like to premiere one of his plays here," Neuharth said.

The play, called "Better Than Burning," is the first full-length comedy Groce has written.

"Campus Players is going to be vital part of that production," Neuharth said. "That's what Campus Players needs to do. They need to help spread the word about the making of plays and the making of theater."

Sigma Tau Delta is back in action

English instructor Michelle Sauer revived Sigma Tau Delta, Minot State's English honor society, after nearly 20 years of inactivity. Sigma Tau Delta, which combined with MSU's English Club, had 25 members, including an alumna as adviser. Officers included President Sarah Kohlenberger, Vice President Melinda Obach, Secretary Carmen Jerome, Treasurer Camille St. Croix and Alternate Officer Alycia Dubuque.

The English Club has organized many fund-raisers since its revival. The annual Valentine's Day sale featured homemade valentines.

"The Valentine's Day sale was a surprisingly profitable activity, and we had a lot of fun making the valentines," Kohlenberger said.

Other activities included a High Tea before the Christmas holidays. At the tea, members prepared scones, ladyfingers, Rice Krispie bars, a variety of British goodies and two types of tea.

They also held a community day, which combined reading to children, language games and a used-book sale. The club hopes to make this an annual event.

No English club would be complete unless the members read books. The club has read and discussed the "Harry Potter" series, "She's Come Undone" by Wally Lamb and "White Oleander" by Janet Fitch.

A fine example of a university-sponsored organization is MSCOPE.

MSCOPE is the organization for physical education and corporate fitness majors. It is currently run by Sarah Alexander, president, and Kadee Simenson, vice president.

This year's faculty advisers are Terry Ferebee-Eckmann and Gary Leslie.

Since MSCOPE's inception in 1986, it has been an active organization at the university as well as in the community.

Off campus, MSCOPE sponsors Fitness Fun Day, a program intended to expose children to physical fitness in a fun and interesting way. The group's adult social dance classes are a big hit with the Minot community.

In addition to these, the club also sponsors sports tournaments, speakers from the fitness profession and workshops for the development of fitness majors and professionals.

Members take particular pride in their support of the Special Olympics State Basketball Tourney held in Minot.

If all of this sounds like a fun, interesting and productive way to spend your free time, here is how you can join. First, you have to be pursuing a major or minor in either physical education or corporate fitness.

Second, you have to have $5 in your pocket to pay for your membership in the North Dakota Alliance of Physical Education, Recreation and Dance (NDAPERD).

Lastly, you have to be an active participant in club-sponsored events. Wanting to have fun is a definite bonus.

Student Association

The Student Association was a huge success in 2001-02.

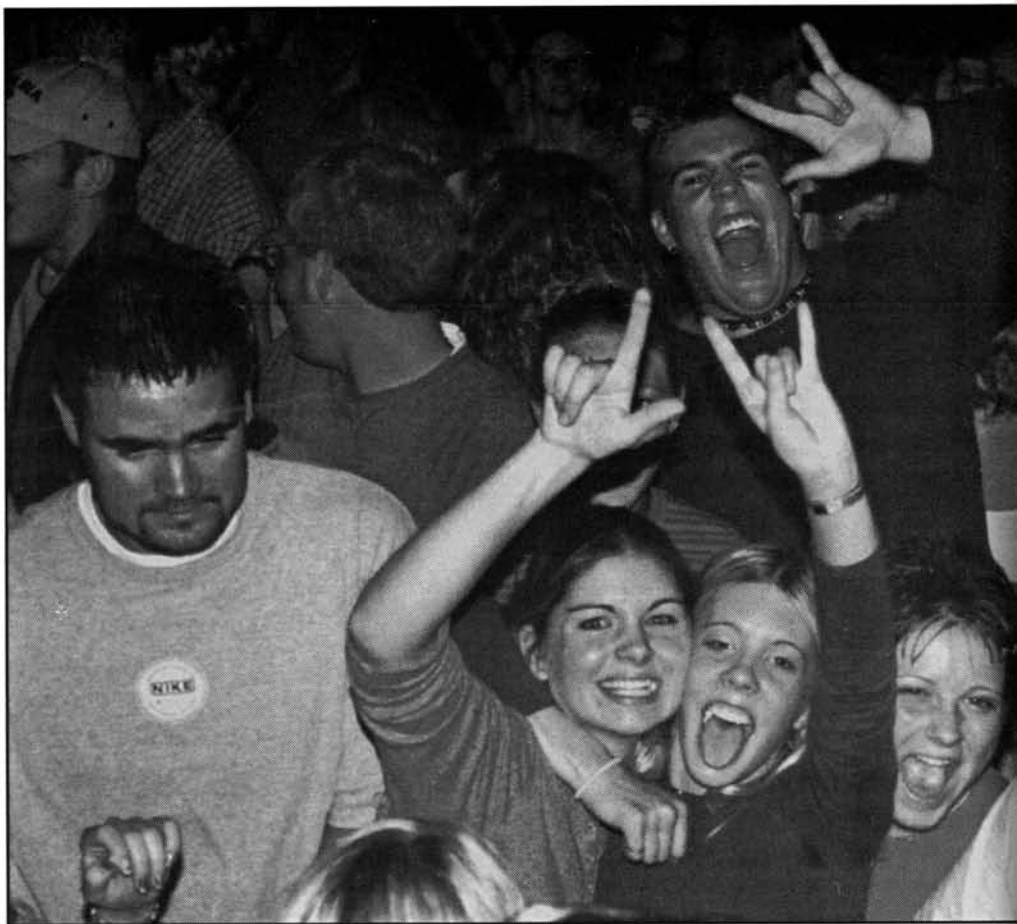

There was a record turnout for Homecoming, and students became more involved in on-campus activities.

The SA was led this year by Evelyn Holmquist. She said that it accomplished a lot more than the administration from the year before.

A key issue the SA dealt with was the activity fee increase to fund on-campus events. SA members met with every department on campus to discuss the increase. There was much debate, and the Student Senate passed the increase. The fee increase amounted to $170,000 more for student activities next year.

A plan also has been proposed to make Swain Hall into a fitness center with more stationary bikes, treadmills and stair-steps. The facility will then be geared more for the student body than for athletes.

The on-campus activities were also bigger than ever this year. Not only was Homecoming a success, but there were great responses to the quiz bowls, bowling at North Hill Lanes and movie nights at Aleshire Theater. The average attendance for the movies was more than 200 students.

Fans go wild as they dance the night away at a Johnny Holm dance during Homecoming Week.

The Johnny Holm dances were very successful. The turnouts for both dances were great.

Holmquist gives a lot of the credit for the success to her supporting cast in the Student Association, especially Tito Sifuentes, the SA vice president.

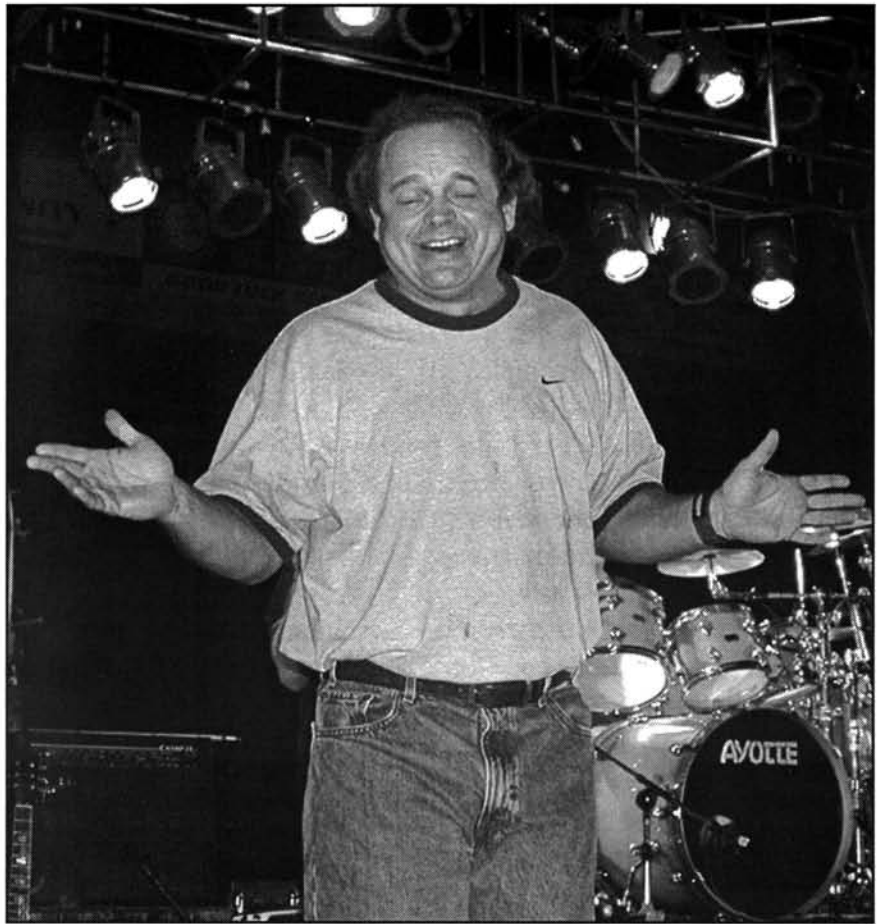

"Tito is a good leader," the president said. "He's helped us make leaps and bounds from the past."

The credit for planning all the events and activities went to programming director Lyndee Hoiland.

"Lyndee did a great job. She's planned more activities than any other (programming) director," Holmquist said.

Jason Jenson served as SA treasurer as well as the North Dakota Student Association state treasurer. Marie Boyoff was secretary, and Jesse Parizek handled publicity.

makes it all possible

Holm gives the crowd a careless shrug at a dance sponsored by the Student Association April 23.

Cooperation with this year's Student Senate was also a big part of the success.

"I respect everybody in the SA and Senate," Holmquist said.

With the end of the year, everybody is looking forward to the future.

"I wish it could be a two-year term," she said. "There's already more things that could be done next year."

Women's Hoops

With the men's basketball team usually claiming all the glory, the MSU women's basketball team showed why it had reason to make noise of its own.

The Lady Beavers played their way into the DAC-10 championship game, but lost to Dickinson State 63-59. The loss was heart-breaking because the Lady Beavers had the lead late in the game. But crucial turnovers and missed free throws were the nails in their coffin.

"We played not to lose instead of playing to win, like we did all year," said Coach Sheila Green Gerding.

The Lady Beavers had the best home record in the DAC-10. They lost only two games all season at the Dome.

The Lady Beavers had huge wins over archrivals University of Mary and Valley City State University.

The season had more positives than negatives for the squad. Senior Kayla Blom became the all-time leading scorer in Minot State history, and the team made it deep into the conference playoffs.

The Lady Beavers are hoping for a strong recruiting class, as they need to replace nine seniors who graduated in May.

By Pete Harr

Men's Hoops

The men's basketball team had its ups and downs during the 2001-02 season.

At the beginning of the season, the Beavers looked like the team to beat in the DAC-10. Defeating Division II powerhouse University of North Dakota and keeping pace with nationally ranked Jamestown College, the Beavers were near the top of the conference halfway through the season.

But in the second half, the team showed a lack of depth off the bench. In many games, the Beavers had problems finishing opponents off. They lost to teams they could have easily beaten.

MSU finished the season strong, winning six of its last seven games, before losing to South Dakota Tech 70-68 in the first round of the playoffs.

"It was a bad time to play one of our worst games of the season," said Head Coach Mike Hultz.

The Beavers lost two seniors to graduation, forward Louis Brown and Division II transfer Matt Murray.

With the loss of only two seniors and a huge crop of newly recruited talent, look for the Beavers to contend again next season.

By Pete Harr

The MSU Beavers show their stuff on the court as they make their way to the DAC-10 playoffs.

Hockey

After a disappointing fifth place in the WCHA National Tournament during the 2000-2001 season, the MSU club hockey team was looking not only for a return trip to the tournament but also the title itself.

The Beavers had a successful regular season, being ranked as high as third in the national poll at one point, behind Penn State and Delaware.

Led by Captain Scott Spencer, Caley Cox, Todd MacMurchy and Sheldon Schneider, the team rolled into Baltimore to skate for the title.

The Beavers won the first game 8-1 against Towson State. Junior goalie Shawn Bergstrand shut down the Tigers, making multiple saves. The squad won the following game against Eastern Michigan 4-3 behind stellar scoring and great goaltending. The win put Minot State in the semifinals.

The Beavers matched up with the University of Illinois but were outmuscled and outplayed, losing the game 9-4.

In the third-place game, Minot State made amends, beating Iowa State 7-6 in an overtime shootout.

The Beavers finished the season with a 20-6 record.

The hockey team loses nine seniors this year. Young talent will get plenty of playing time next season, as the program sets its sights again on the national title.

Indoor Track

It was an excellent season for the Minot State University men and women's indoor track teams. Runners from both teams broke school records and qualified for the National Indoor Championships in Johnson City, Tenn.

The men's team, led by Brad and Mike Tighe, made an impressive showing in the DAC-10 conference meet and also at Nationals.

At the DAC-10 meet, Travis Hanson and Harry Mills came up huge. Hanson won the triple jump, and Mills sprinted to a new school record in the 55-meter dash.

At the national meet, Minot State finished in seventh place, its best finish ever. The team was well represented on the awards stand. Brad Tighe won his first NAIA national championship in the 3,000 meters. Mike Tighe followed his brother to a second-place finish in the same race. The distance medley team also took second place.

Jen Gerving was the lone woman to make the trip to the national meet, but she did not disappoint. She finished fourth in the 1,000 meters and broke the school record in a preliminary heat.

Mills finished seventh in the 55 meters, and Travis Hanson finished eighth in the triple jump.

"I couldn't have asked for a better season for my first year," said Coach Scott Simmons.

The Beavers look to keep the winning ways going next year. With a rigorous conditioning program and the commitment to winning, the Beaver track team should be leaving opponents in the dust again next season.
