Tips When Raising Flags and Making Comments

For each flag raised, an email is sent to the student, as well as advisors and select support staff. If possible, submit one versus two flags to reduce email fatigue. Choose the flag that is most crucial, and provide comments that encompass your other concerns – i.e., if the student is not attending class and has not turned in assignments, choose either the attendance concern OR assignment concerns flag and explain both issues in the comments.

Tips for writing an effective comment in a flag or note:

- Direct your feedback towards the student, as comments are included in the email.
- Professionally and respectfully tell the student what behavior prompted the flag, providing supporting facts.
- Describe expectations of actions the student should take to resolve the issue.
- Offer support and resources as appropriate.

Reminder: Flags may be raised at any time in the semester.
