

ADELAIDE AND ELEANOR JOHNSON SCHOLARSHIP

Adelaide and her sister Eleanor spent most of their careers in education. Adelaide initially taught at the secondary level but spent most of her professional career at Minot State University until her retirement in 1987. Dr. Johnson was recognized for her exemplary career at MSU by being designated an emeritus professor at the time of her retirement. She was recognized by the MSU Alumni Association in 2006 with their Golden Award.

Eleanor was an elementary education teacher until her retirement in 1983. She received her standard certificate from Minot State Teacher's College, her bachelor's degree from Iowa State Teacher's College, and a master's equivalent from the University of Minnesota-Duluth. She taught in several schools in North Dakota, but the last 30 years were spent in the Duluth Public School system. Eleanor passed away in 2007.
