ABOUT THE JUROR :

SARAH CONTI is a ceramic sculptor who sculpts birds as an access point to discuss social and environmental issues. Sarah is passionate about ecology, human rights, and sparking conversations about climate change and human impacts on the earth. Sarah is from western Washington, she received her BFA with a sculptural emphasis from University of Idaho. After undergrad Sarah lived in Illinois for three years and was a resident artist at Terra Incognito ceramic studio. She then moved to Portland, Oregon and attended Oregon College of Art and Craft to receive her post baccalaureate in ceramics. She then completed a second ceramics post baccalaureate at the University of Montana. With a group of four other ceramicists, Sarah cofounded Wildfire Ceramic Studio in Missoula, Montana and ran the in-house gallery. Sarah now lives in Boise where she sculpts full-time and keeps busy bird watching, hiking with her dogs, and gardening.
