ADMISSION

Acceptance to the Social Work Program is based upon the applicant's grade point average, written application, volunteer service experience, completion of pre-requisite coursework, and qualifications as stated in the general admissions criteria. The program faculty will make the final decision. All applicants will be notified in writing of the decision. If the student is denied, the student will be provided the rationale for the decision and the specific conditions the student needs to fulfill to be accepted into the program at a later date.

Students must sign and return their letter of acceptance/denial prior to receiving official admittance to the Social Work Program. This letter is maintained in students' academic files. Only after the student is formally admitted can they proceed with core social work courses in the major.

APPEAL PROCEDURES

The student may appeal the decision through the appropriate structures of the Program or through the appeals process of the University (see the University Handbook).

If students choose to appeal the admissions decision, they have a right to take the following action:

1. Discuss decision with faculty advisor; if unresolved:
2. Take the appeal to the Program Director in writing; if unresolved:
3. Take the appeal to the Department Chair; if unresolved:
4. Take the appeal to the Dean of Education and Health Sciences; if unresolved:
5. Take the appeal to the Vice-President of Academic Affairs; if unresolved:
6. Take the appeal to the University President.

Failure to meet the application deadline or to follow the application procedures may result in delayed entry into the program and/or delay graduation beyond the minimum four semesters required to complete the Social Work Program.

Applications not processed during the faculty review of applications will be considered inactive and will be kept for two semesters, and then destroyed.

PERSONAL CHARACTERISTICS

In addition to academic expectations, social work students are expected to demonstrate professional behavior which reflects a commitment to the ethics of the social work profession and the NASW Code of Ethics.

<http://www.socialworkers.org/pubs/code/default.asp>

Students are expected to demonstrate personal behavior which upholds professional standards of conduct, and shows acceptance of appropriate responsibility for one's own behavior. Conflicts in values and ethics are not uncommon and students are encouraged to self-examine and clarify their own attitudes and beliefs through discussion and collaboration with their peers, faculty, and individual advisors.

Behavior contrary to the NASW code of ethics will be cause for review of the student's admission to the program or continued future as a social work major. Examples of behavior which would warrant such a review might include discriminatory or derogatory oral and/or written statements towards students, faculty, and/or other persons; the inability to appropriately resolve conflicts, un-rehabilitated substance abuse, and/or conviction of an offense that could impinge on the individual's ability to practice social work.

Since the role of social worker involves helping people from a variety of backgrounds and with a wide range of problems, it is important that the social work student not permit personal issues to interfere with this role and that he/she have the emotional and psychological resources to render effective assistance to those in need. In instances where students demonstrate behavior which suggests that their own difficulties are not sufficiently resolved to be able to help and support others at this time, students may be denied admission to the program or once admitted, may be asked to withdraw from the program until personal issues have been resolved.

STUDENT SUCCESS PLAN

The SWP utilizes a formative evaluation model to assess students' performance throughout the curriculum, and support them either toward successful completion of the program, or the selection of another major. Known as the Student Success Plan (SSP), all students are assessed academically to determine whether they have mastered the knowledge necessary for entry-level social work practice.

Additionally, students are monitored non-academically to determine whether they can function effectively and professionally in a field placement, and ultimately as autonomous licensed professionals. Therefore, the SWP equally emphasizes both academic and non-academic performance standards during all phases of the evaluation process to determine students' professional potential.

CONTINUED ENROLLMENT IN THE SOCIAL WORK PROGRAM

Students must receive a "C" or better in all social work courses.

Students are only allowed to repeat a social work course once. Students who fail to obtain a "C" or better after two attempts will automatically be suspended from the SWP for one semester. Students who receive grades of "D" or "F" in social work courses are expected to take the course again to improve their grade. A grade of "F" in any general education and/or required social work support courses must be successfully repeated in order to receive the BSW degree.

When a student is accepted into the SWP, the student is expected to progress toward graduation within a reasonable time period. Therefore, once a student is accepted into the program, the acceptance will expire if the student is not enrolled in any social work courses within five consecutive semesters after admission or is terminated from the program (this does not include the field practicum).

In addition, if a student has been out of the SWP program for three years or longer, the student will have to submit a new admission application and be readmitted into the SWP (Policy Implemented 12/20/00).

All SWP students are expected to meet at least once per semester with their faculty advisor to confirm that program requirements are being met. Transfer students are strongly advised to make an appointment with their faculty advisors at the earliest possible time to discuss any additional requirements regarding acceptance of transfer credits as well as regarding Minot State University BSW graduation requirement.
